Sun storms send TV viewers bad vibes

by PAUL GORES

What's causing those black, wavy lines on your television set when it's tuned to WBBM-TV, Channel 2? The answer is probably 93 million miles away.

Costation interference, or "venetian blinds" as TV repairmen call it, are the result of atmospheric conditions caused by storms on the sun.

One local television repairman said sun storms, which appear as spots on the sun's surface, give off a tremendous amount of energy which ionizes upper layers of the atmosphere and causes them to reflect TV signals normally lost to the atmosphere.

As a result, TV signals from stations as far as 1,000 miles away are reflected and picked up by low-channel receivers, such as Channel 2.

"SO WHAT YOU'RE really seeing is probably a station from Milwaukee or somewhere trying to come in on Channel 2," he said. "And there's nothing you can do about it." This type of interference occurs most as seasons change.

Several area residents have complained within the last two weeks about black, wavy lines on Channel 2. Citizens' Band radios or some other type of electrical source were suspected as the cause.

L. A. Pierce, director of the technical department for CBS in Chicago, agreed sun storms are probably the source of interference.

"It is characteristic of low frequencies such as Channel 2 to pick up signals from stations as far as 1,000 miles away," Pierce said.

Nothing can be done to eliminate or reduce interference caused by sun storms, Pierce said.

When is there smoke but no fire...

Where there's smoke there's not always fire

All the elements of a fire were there: smoke billowed from the windows as firemen swung their hatchets, sprayed their bulging hoses and even rescued stranded "victims."

So realistic were the conditions that crowds gathered to watch as Arlington Heights firemen participated in training drills Wednesday at 414 N. Vail Ave., former site of the Countryside Art Center.

Firemen will utilize the soon-to-be-demolished building again today for additional training exercises.

The art center is now housed at 408 N. Vail Ave.

A needed rest is still appreciated.

'We can't afford it': McCarthy

by NANCY GOTLER

Five days a week Mike Kereven drives an empty Continental Air Transport Co. bus down Northwest Highway to O'Hare Airport.

His employers say they can't afford to continue the service without modifying it. But, possibly because of pressure from Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan, the company won't admit what Kereven and fellow driver Ed Rice say is inevitable: that the runs will be halted.

"We can't afford to keep it up now," Continental Vice Pres. John C. McCarthy said, "but I can't say that it definitely will be discontinued.

"We're planning on talking with (Northwest suburban) village officials next week and hope to look at readjustment of the schedule," he said. "Things like cutting back the number of runs a day, stepping up limousine service and a guaranteed ridership program are possibiluties."

BUT SOME SAY those measures would even further discourage riders because buses will not be available when they are needed and residents will not patronize a service that might be temporary.

Taking a bus to the airport does have advantages. The one-way fare is $4.25, compared to approximately $11 for a cab and $15 for a limousine. And residents who drive to O'Hare will be assessed a $3.15-per-day parking fee.

The history of Continental's service to the Northwest suburbs has been controversial and erratic. In 1974 the route between the suburbs and the airport was discontinued because of low ridershp and rising fuel costs.

Last year Ryan, angered at that decision, filed a complaint against Continental with the Illinois Commerce Commission in an attempt to force the company to either resume service or lose its rights to the route.

IN JUNE, Continental agreed to reinstate the route on a trial basis. But McCarthy said the experiment has been disappointing. The run averages 1.7 passengers per trip, far below his prediction of eight.

And bus driver Kereven said he picks up only one passenger a week during his 11 a.m. route from Arlington Park racetrack to the airport.

The buses, with a 29 passenger capacity, leave Arlington Park at 6, 7:20, 11 a.m. and 2 and 5:10 p.m. and the airport at 10:35 a.m., 1:35, 4:15 and 6:30 p.m. Only the 4:15 and 6:30 p.m. runs continue to Palatine and Barrington.

Buses leave Palatine from the Smith and Colfax station at 5:55, 7:10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

"The 120-day trial run was supposed to end the end of August," McCarthy said, "but because we wanted to have a few more figures after Labor Day, it's been extended until the end of September."

CONTINENTAL HAS a contract with the City of Chicago for ground transportation and must provide service "where there is a need," he said.

However, if it is determined there is no need for bus service between the Northwest suburbs and the airport, McCarthy said Continental could discontinue service without violating its charter.

Ryan is on vacation and unavailable for comment on Continental's current problem, but Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said if service is halted area residents will not feel a transportation pinch.

"I don't know too many people who are taking the bus," he said, "because it's not as convenient for them. Many executives living in our area are on expense accounts and just take a limousine."

HE SAID HE favors strengthening the Regional Transportation Authority service to the Northwest suburbs instead of weakened Continental service.

"Although I told Mr. Ryan at the time (of his complaint about Continental to ICC) that we would back his action," Jones said, "I would favor an RTA that functions.

"If Continental discontinued its service, it probably wouldn't affect the people here any more than if the RTA discontinued its service," he said. "The people in the Northwest suburbs are already paying for transportation service — the RTA — and not getting it.

"This might not seem to have anything to do with whether Continental continues its service, but it does," Jones said. "because the real issue is transportation."

Meanwhile, McCarthy is planning how to cope with the problem. "People are used to door-to-door service and have come to expect it. It's going to be a matter of time and re-education. People are just going to have to be educated toward mass transportation."

Ford dares Carter to 'earn' trust

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — President Ford officially opened his campaign against Jimmy Carter at his alma mater Wednesday, challenging the Democratic candidate head-on with "it is not enough for anyone to say 'trust me' — trust must be earned."

Ford came back to the University of Michigan where he was graduated 40 years ago and said he led the nation to "an incredible comeback" during his two years in the White House.

"The question in this campaign of 1976 is not, 'Who has the better vision of America?'" Ford said. "The question is, 'Who will act to make that vision a reality?"

FORD'S SPEECH was his first outside Washington since winning the Republican nomination for election.

There were hecklers in the Michigan audience, but Ford got a one-minute standing ovation when he made his entrance with his wife.

Just as Ford was winding up his speech, a firecracker went off in the upper balcony of the Crisler Arena. Secret Sercice agents rushed to the spot. No one was injured.

Ford's speech was aimed at what White House aides say is Carter's greatest weakness — apparent indecisiveness and inconsistency. It said the American public deserves "specifics — not smiles, performance — not promises" from candidates.

"IT IS NOT enough for anyone to say 'Trust me.' Trust must be earned. Trust is not having to guess what a candidate means. Trust is leveling with the people before the election about what we're going to do after the election.

"Trust is not being all things to all people, but being the same thing to all people. Trust is not cleverly shading words so that each separate audience can hear what it wants to hear, but saying plainly and simply what you mean and meaning what you say."

In policy matters, Ford broke major new ground only in the area of housing.

He said he would recommend changes in the Federal Housing Administration law "to reduce down payments on lower and middle priced housing, by up to 50 per cent."

He also said he would order the Housing and Urban Development Dept. to speed up a new federal guarantee program to lower monthly payments in early years of ownership and gradually increase them as family income rises.

ON OTHER MAJOR issues, Ford pledged to continue policies which he said were aimed at creating 2.5 million new jobs each year, holding down inflation, assuring all Americans "accessible and affordable" health care, producing "quality education," and foreign policies to keep the nation out of war.

Ford said he would fight unemployment "with an emphasis on our youth, especially the minorities," to produce "permanent jobs" in the private sector rather than "demeaning, dead-end jobs paid for out of the federal treasury."

Ford, hinting at some new future effort to help young Americans entering the job market, recalled the government has grants, loans and scholarships to help provide a college education.

"I believe we can apply this same principle to create a program for young people who choose not to go to college, but want a job at which they can learn a trade, a craft or practical business skills," he said.

Dist. 25 vote tonight on teachers' pact

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education will vote on the 1976-77 teachers' contract at 8 p.m. today at Park School, 306 W. Park St., Arlington Heights.

The contract, which was approved by the teachers Sept. 7, calls for an average 7.27 per cent salary increase for teachers. Salary increases for individual teachers will range from 2.5 to 10 per cent.

The administration also will present enrollment figures for the opening of school.

The average daily enrollment figure for the first six days of school was 7,411 this year compared with 7,953 students last year.

Gerald Williams, director of administration and planning, said Wednesday that this year's opening enrollment figure is about 235 students short of the district's projections.

He said the major cause for the deviation was the kindergarten enrollment projection. The district anticipated having 821 kindergarten students but only 705 enrolled.

Liquor license ban urged for nightclub

Schaumburg officials plan to ask the Illinois Appellate Court to reinstate a 20-day liquor license suspension for a village nightclub. Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne recently ruled in support of an Illinois Liquor Control Commission ruling ordering B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., closed for three days in May. Dunne said he agreed with Village Pres. Raymond Kessell's 20-day suspension, but said he could not find legal authority to overturn the state commission's ruling. Kessell, who as village president also serves as village liquor commissioner, said the B'Ginnings matter must be pursued "in the interest of defining and supporting the concept of local control."

Owner to fight for pinball games

The owner of an Elk Grove Village record shop said Wednesday he will fight to keep his pinball arcade, which village officials say violates zoning codes and the store's lease. Frank Schlinkhoff, owner of One Octave Higher at the Grove Mall Shopping Center, said both the shopping center management and the village were consulted before he and his father spent $30,000 to buy the 20 machines and remodel the store. Schlinkhoff said he had a verbal agreement with the mall management for installation of the machines and has village licenses to operate the arcade. Village Atty. George B. Knickerbocker has said the licenses were "issued incorrectly" because the store is in a zoning district that prohibits amusement centers.

Des Plaines may pass up funds

Des Plaines Mayor Charles J. Bolek Wednesday said it is unlikely the city will apply for up to $170,000 in 1978 under the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act.

The city council has passed up $469,000 during the first two years of the program, and Bolek said he does not foresee much change in the attitudes of the city council in the third year. "My guess is that the city won't apply for the funds because I don't think there is enough support on the city council," he said. Under the federal program, the city could use the funds for public improvements to benefit low-and moderate-income families and to prevent the deterioration of present housing. The funds would not be used to finance new construction.

Union strike against Lag ends

The six-week-old strike by 120 Teamsters Union employes against the Lag Drug Co., 301 N. Third St., Des Plaines, has ended. Raymond Hamilton, business representative and trustee for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters 743, said Wednesday the union reached agreement with the company Monday afternoon and that the striking employes returned to work Tuesday. He refused, however, to release the details of the settlement. "The strike is over, but that is about all I can say," he said. Officials of the Lag Drug Co., a wholesale distributor of drugs, also were unavailable for comment Wednesday. The strike reportedly was the first in the company's history.

The contract, which was approved by the teachers Sept. 7, calls for an average 7.27 per cent increase for teachers. Firms must help end crime: Kelley

by DAVE IBATA

Businessmen and corporations actively must help police in battling white-collar crime, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley told metropolitan industry and business leaders in Chicago Wednesday.

During a luncheon speech delivered at a seminar on commercial crime sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry, Kelley said, "We want to reduce crime — that is the major goal of law enforcement. But we cannot do it alone.

"The vital element is citizen involvement — citizen resistance to crime," Kelley said.

THE DIRECTOR spoke at the Pick-Congress Hotel in downtown Chicago before an audience of more than 300 representatives of area businesses and law enforcement agencies.

Kelley urged businessmen to combat crime by taking preventive measures.

"On the one hand, citizens and businesses must form a firm crime resistance resolve. They must become determined to develop as through an understanding of practical crime resistance approaches as they can, and then make crime resistance a habit — a way of life," Kelley said.

Kelley said that while the FBI traditionally has entered a case after the crime has been committed, lately it has begun a crime prevention program aimed at educating citizens. The bureau has begun in-house seminars for its employes and has sponsored seminars for cities and corporations.

"WE HAVE participated in numerous seminars and other activities with those in industry, government and law enforcement in an effort to curb white-collar crimes which are costing Americans an estimated $40 billion annually," Kelley said.

The FBI's objective, Kelley said, "is to see that it (crime prevention) is made a facet, a part of, integrated with the lives of all Americans."

Kelley urged businessmen to follow the FBI's lead in "turning inward" and fostering crime resistance programs among employes. The director also urged businessmen to set up crime resistance programs within their firms, with the aid of local law enforcement agencies.

"A well-planned, well-managed crime resistance effort is, in my estimation, simply good business," Kelley said. "Crime is everyone's concern. It's also everyone's responsibility."

Chiefs' Social Security extended

A temporary federal court order requiring municipalities to continue deducting Social Security payments for police and fire chiefs has been extended to Oct. 1.

The temporary restraining order issued Aug. 23 by U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall was to remain in effect only until Wednesday but was extended to coincide with the next court date for hearings on a lawsuit on the matter.

The civil rights suit, filed against several federal and state agencies by Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case, charges that police and fire chiefs in Illinois were unconstitutionally dropped from the Social Security program by an order issued in April by the federal Social Security Administration.

The order said chiefs participating in the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund program would not be entitled to Social Security retirement benefits. The order was made retroactive to 1969.

Case has filed the suit in behalf of the state's chiefs to win back entitlement to the Social Security program.

The suit is being backed by the Illinois Assn. of Chiefs of Police and the Illinois Police Assn. Five Illinois Congressmen, including Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and Philip M. Crane, R-12th, are sponsoring legislation to eliminate at least the retroactive clause of the ruling.

Power earthquakes felt in six European countries

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — A string of powerful earthquakes felt in six European countries killed and injured dozens Wednesday in northeast Italy's hilly Friuli region, where a slightly stronger quake May 6 killed nearly 1,000 persons.

Officials estimated another 20,000 homeless joined the 41,000 who have been living since May in tent cities turned into quagmires by recurrent rainstorms.

Police said at least seven persons died in the two dozen major shocks that rocked the Friuli region from early morning to sunset.

The dead included three persons buried under debris, three killed by heart attacks and a Venice shipworker who fell 20 feet to his death while attempting to escape from a shaking vessel.

Fire officials said several motorists may have died in a landslide on a mountain road.

More than 60 persons were injured, including several soldiers who jumped from barracks windows.

Thousands fled their homes in northern Italy and parts of Yugoslavia, Austria and West Germany after the first shock hit with a force of 6.3 on the open-ended Richter scale. The quake also was felt in Switzerland and France.

A stronger shock came next. It registered 6.4 on the Richter scale — just short of the 6.9 point shock of May 6 that killed nearly 1,000 persons and left tens of thousands homeless.

"It is a frightening morning," said the Rev. P. Coccia, director of the Prato observatory near Florence. "We are recording repeated phenomena and there doesn't seem to be an end."

Villagers who had refused to leave their homes after the May disaster panicked and demanded emergency relocation.

Giuseppe Zamberletti, commissioner for relief work, arranged truck convoys for the refugees and said he might requisition rooms in nearby beach resorts and private homes if their owners did not provide free accommodations.

The tremors, along with another shock last Saturday ruined much of the reconstruction work completed since the May quake. Police said buildings weakened by that quake collapsed in about a dozen towns and villages including Gemona, Majano, Trasaghis, Pradelis, Osoppo, Venzone and Ugovizza.

In Vito d'Asio, a home being repaired by several men toppled on their heads, killing one and critically injuring three.

An Italian parliamentary delegation which came to study relief for victims of the May quake fled their Udine hotel when the first tremor struck.

They fled again six hours later when the second main shock cracked walls of the building where they were meeting with Friuli mayors.

RESIDENTS OF MAIANO, Italy stare at pile of rubble that was a building until an early morning earthquake Wednesday — registering 6.3 on the Richter scale — rocked the area. Dozens of quakes hit the hills of northeastern Italy and five other European countries.

S. Africa peace less hopeful: Tanzania

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania said Wednesday 4½ hours of talks with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger left him "less hopeful, less encouraged than before" about chances for peace in southern Africa.

Nyerere, leader of the five so-called "front line" black African states working to overthrow the white minority regime in Rhodesia, said Kissinger would need a "miracle" to convince Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian government of the need for majority rule.

However, Nyerere told a news conference the first meeting in Kissinger's 10-day shuttle diplomacy mission was not necessarily a failure.

"I'm less hopeful, less encouraged than before," Nyerere said. "But if this visit clarifies for the United States the intransigence of the white minority in southern Africa, that would not be a failure."

A spokesman for Kissinger said the two leaders "discussed in great details the major issues of South West Africa (Namibia) and Rhodesia."

They agreed to meet again next Tuesday in Dar es Salaam, the spokesman said, after Kissinger's trips to Pretoria, South Africa and Lusaka, Zambia. Kissinger aides earlier said a return visit to Tanzania by the secretary would mean the talks were going well.

While Kissinger and Nyerere met, Smith attempted to convince his Rhodesian Front party to participate in the American effort to stave off racial war in southern Africa.

At a meeting at Umtali, Rhodesia, near the troubled border with Mozambique, party officials said Smith will present a plan for negotiations over majority rule.

If he gets a mandate for his plan, he might meet with Kissinger in Pretoria next week, party officials said. They added the plan would meet strong opposition.

Asked repeatedly why he was less hopeful than before, Nyerere answered in scholarly, elliptical terms which boiled down to his frequently repeated phrases: "Nobody has told me that Ian Smith's regime is convinced of majority rule . . . Nobody has told me that the South Africans are ready to convene a constitutional conference on Namibia."

Nyerere seemed most hopeful about the possibility of a conference to settle the problem of Namibia. He said it first would be necessary for the South African government to accept the participation of the South West African Peoples' Organization, the liberation group backed by black African countries.

Asked if he and Kissinger had made progress, Nyerere said, "What kind of progress can be made? We only exchanged views."

Panel votes to reopen JFK, King cases

The House Rules Committee Wednesday voted to reopen the investigations of the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King through a special House committee with sweeping powers. The rules committee resolution asking the House to set up the assassination committee was passed 9 to 4 and sent to the floor for final approval. The authorization as it stood was so broad it would give the special panel powers to investigate any death it chose.

Penny, half dollar may be on way out

The Treasury Department, citing increased coinage costs, announced Wednesday it may do away with the penny and the half dollar and replace the silver dollar with a smaller lighter version. The treasury released the results of an 18-month, $120,000 study indicating the cost of making pennies may soon outstrip their value and concluding that "the half-dollar circulates very little; the dollar (coin) does not circulate at all." Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, told a news conference the department may decide before the year is out whether to accept suggestions on coinage changes.

Passing lie test grade claimed by Howe

Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, released results of a lie detector test Wednesday which he said backed up his story that he was innocent of soliciting sex from two police decoy prostitutes. Howe, convicted on a misdemeanor charge of offering $20 for various sex acts to the two decoys, kicked off his reelection campaign with a news conference at which he said he passed a polygraph examination by a Chicago expert.

The test was administered by Leonard Harrelson, director of the Keeler Polygraph Institute, and showed the freshman Democrat told the truth in court, according to Howe. The two young women, who also took lie detector tests and were given passing marks by police officials, testified that Howe offered to pay them for sex.

Unit votes to deny lawmaker pay hikes

House and Senate conferees voted Wednesday to deny an almost 5 per cent cost of living pay raise to members of Congress, federal judges and top level government workers. Approving a compromise $1 billion legislative appropriations bill, the conferees also agreed to accept a Senate amendment repealing the automatic 1 per cent increase added to cost-of-living raises for military and civil service retirement pensions. The compromise bill must be approved by both houses of Congress.

Blast halts water flow to Los Angeles

An explosion early Wednesday ripped through an aqueduct which supplies 80 per cent of Los Angeles' water, damaging a water gate and a gate house. The explosion halted the flow of water to Los Angeles but a spokesman for the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, which operates the aqueduct, said: "Because of the backup reservoirs we have in the Los Angeles Basin we do not feel there will be any interruption of service to people."

Soviets rocket cosmonauts into orbit

The Soviet Union sent space veteran Col. Valery Bykovksy and a fledgling cosmonaut, Vladimir Aksenov, into earth orbit Wednesday in its third major space mission in as many months. The official Tass news agency said their mission aboard the small Soyuz 22 craft was to perfect techniques of studying the earth's surface from outer space "in the interests of the national economy." They also were assigned medical and other scientific experiments.

Flu public awareness drive ready

ATLANTA (UPI) — Billboards and television public service commercials soon will be urging Americans to "roll up your sleeve" for swine flu shots, federal health officials said Wednesday.

The national Center for Disease Control said the exhortations directed toward 200 million Americans will be part of a massive public awareness campaign to get the already-lagging immunization campaign off the ground when vaccine becomes available the first week of October.

Don Berreth, CDC public information officer, said the slogan "Roll Up Your Sleeve America" had been adopted for the program, including a picture of the international traffic sign for "no" with the word "flu" crossed out.

The CDC is turning out 800 public service commercials for television stations urging Americans to get swine flu shots this fall and winter when public clinics begin operating at shopping centers, hospitals, government buildings and other public places.

The shots will be free but each person will be required to sign a consent form which outlines benefits of the shot, warns of some side effects and lists certain categories of persons who should not get the vaccinations.

Berreth said the commercials, including one in Spanish, will be distributed to state health departments, along with suggested billboard and newspaper ads, posters and lapel buttons that say, "I did."

The publicity campaign will be coordinated to start with arrival of the vaccine shipments in the various states.

A line of persons are shown getting inoculations with a jet gun in the television spots, none of which runs more than 30 seconds. An actor says, "See how easy it is to protect yourself against flu." The spots end with, "Roll up your sleeve, protect yourself."

Berreth said the publicity emphasizes that "flu is a serious disease but that it can be prevented because there is an excellent vaccine available."

The CDC expects 20 million doses of the vaccine to be received by the states Oct. 1 and the program to be substantially completed by the first of the year, although the flu "season" normally starts in late November or early December.

Delay in auto exhaust standards voted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted Wednesday to postpone for five years the imposition of tougher auto exhaust standards under the Clean Air Act of 1970.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., won a 224-169 approval vote on his amendment relaxing the timetable for the stricter requirements. The House rejected a provision backed by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., that would ease the current law's requirements, but not as much as Dingell's provision.

The House hoped to complete work on the bill, which covers such problem areas as smoke from factories, switching of fuels, new developments that would pollute and transportation controls.

Dingell said both the existing law and the car exhaust standards recommended by Rogers' subcommittee would put a "straitjacket" on an auto industry that is trying to make cars that get more miles to the gallon.

Current law imposed certain clean-exhaust standards on the 1976 models, which came out a year ago. Those standards were to get considerably tougher for the three main pollutants — hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides — in the models that come out next year.

The Clean Air Act amendments sponsored chiefly by Rogers and written up by his health and environment subcommittee would have made existing law somewhat more lenient.

But Rogers would have gotten to the tougher standards by the 1980 models, which come out in late 1979. The Dingell amendment would reach the tougher standards only in late 1981 for hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, and would never get as strict on nitrogen oxide as the existing law.

Dingell said the existing law would impose a big gasoline penalty when Americans are being urged to conserve fuel. Auto makers say they cannot get the technology to meet the clean-air standards without seriously affecting a car's fuel economy.

Abortion language accord in money bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a blow against abortions for "emotional and social convenience," congressional conferees agreed Wednesday on the language in a $56.6 billion bill allowing federal money to be used for abortions only when the mother's life is "endangered."

They also agreed on the language in the bill's accompanying report which went further in saying when abortions could be paid for with federal money — primarily under Medicaid programs.

The conference report also made it clear that the amendment was not intended to prohibit abortions for rape or incest victims, "nor is it intended to prohibit the use of drugs or devices to prevent implantation of the fertilized ovum."

Moreover, the report added abortions would not be prohibited when a pregnant mother had multiple sclerosis or renal disease, two diseases in which pregnancy could result in the shortening of life.

The decision, reached by conferees representing the Senate and the House, ended months of fighting over abortion, a top political issue in the presidential campaign.

In the $56.6 billion bill are funds for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Labor Department and other agencies for the 1977 fiscal year, starting Oct. 1. Between $45-50 million in federal funds were spent last year to perform 250,000 abortions.

The bill, agreed to by the conferees, must be approved by Congress.

Schorr refuses to betray source

• Citing the First Amendment and his own professional standards, CBS reporter Daniel Schorr refused under oath Wednesday to tell House investigators where he obtained the classified intelligence report he leaked to the press. Testifying before the House Ethics Committee, and warned repeatedly he might be prosecuted for refusal to cooperate, Schorr said if he disclosed the source of the report "the ultimate losers would be the American people and their free institutions. But, beyond all that, to betray a source would be to betray myself, my career, and my life. It is not as simple as saying that I refuse to do it. I cannot do it." Schorr said in some 40 years of practicing journalism, "I have never yielded to a demand for the disclosure of a source that I have promised to protect and I cannot do so now."

Ford hedging on social issues, Mondale says

by United Press International

Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale Wednesday night accused President Ford of "bald misrepresentation" by expressing concern for health, housing and unemployment in his campaign kickoff speech.

Asked in Chicago for reaction to the speech, Mondale said, "the main surprise is the baldness of the misrepresentation incorporated in that speech . . . the only surprise here is that he thinks the American people would actually by gullible enough to buy statements of this kind in light of the miserable record of his administration and his personal positions on those programs."

Mondale said the issues singled out by Ford "are exactly the issues on which he's done the poorest job.

"THEIR RECORD ON employment is abominable with two and a half million more Americans out of work; their record on home ownership is a disgrace; their record on health care is absolutely indefensible, yet he is trying to tell the American people that he's for them, identifies with their needs, hoping apparently that the American people will not realize the difference between what he's done and what he's saying now."

The Minnesota Senator said Ford's speech "undermines any possibility that the American people can trust their statements or have any confidence that they are truthfully committed to meeting the real needs of the American people."

Mondale said he and his ticket mate Jimmy Carter have made it "very clear" where they stand on the same issues.

"The difference is that Mr. Ford has a record that belies and puts the falsehood to everything he now claims he's for."

Mondale said he hopes the American public will "see this" and realize that if they want more jobs, improved health care, decent housing and an emphasis in parks and recreation, "it is only the Democratic Party that offers this opportunity."

Offtrack betting by 1978: Daley

Mayor Richard J. Daley said Wednesday Chicago may have offtrack horse race betting by 1978. "We've been researching it with intelligent men and women who run the system in New York," Daley told a news conference. "I understand about $35 million to $40 million, maybe more now, goes into the treasury of the city."

Daley didn't say whether the city would run its own bookmaking operation or just license and tax the messenger services already in existence. He said city aides have been exploring offtrack betting in connection with the 1977 city budget but, "I don't know if it can go into effect in 1977. It takes time to set up." Asked if offtrack betting could be in operation by 1978, Daley said, "I would think so."

Record Chicago school budget

Chicago School Supt. Joseph P. Hannon Wednesday presented a tentative 1976-77 school budget with a record $147.1 million deficit — but said he hoped to avoid teacher layoffs and a shortened school year. Hannon proposed spending $1.19 billion, but said anticipated revenue was only $1.04 billion, leaving the largest deficit in the history of Chicago public schools. Hannon said the school board was aiming for a full school year of 176 days in contrast to the 1975-76 year, which ended 16 days early because of shortage of funds.

Cops seek Teamsters' help

Chicago policemen have turned to the powerful Teamsters union for help in their battle with Mayor Richard J. Daley to win collective bargaining rights and a contract, the president of the Chicago Patrolmen's Assn. said Wednesday. "We have been banging our head for years in trying to get collective bargaining and a written contract with the city," Joseph Pecoraro said. "So we decided to get a big stick. Now, with the Teamsters, we'll have a big stick."

Murder suspect beaten: lawyer

Willie Lewis, 27, charged with shooting and killing a police officer, appeared in court Wednesday with swollen eyes and his forehead bandaged and his lawyer hinted he had been beaten by police. Lewis was arrested Monday night and charged with murder in the death of patrolman Patrick J. Crowley.

Lewis' attorney, Michael Jay Green, told the court his client was heavily bandaged "with blood filled eyes" and his pants "appeared covered with blood." He said Lewis "did not appear this way until he was taken into custody" and asked that photographs be taken of Lewis.

Illinois briefs

Speck parole denied by officials

Illinois parole officials took only 10 minutes Wednesday to deny freedom to Richard Speck, the Texas drifter convicted of murdering eight Chicago nurses in 1966. Speck 34, a sometime seaman from Dallas, was given a folded statement in private by an aide to the Stateville Prison warden telling him. "Parole is denied." At morning-long private and public hearings, Speck was called "a fiend . . . spawned in hell."

The father of one of Speck's victims said he wished the hearing "was an execution" and that Speck should be behind bars "as long as the girls are in their graves." It was Speck's first bid for freedom since he was sentenced to 400 to 1,200 years in prison for the murders committed July 14, 1966, in a townhouse on Chicago's far South Side. Authorities said Speck would be given another chance for parole in 10 to 12 months.

He had little reason for optimism. Chairman Peter Kotsos said the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board had received "more than 3,000 letters from all over the world asking that parole be denied." Those who appeared at the hearing unanimously opposed Speck's release.

School penalty appeal urged

Former Illinois School Supt. Michael Bakalis said Wednesday the decision of a Cook County Circuit Court judge holding unconstitutional a $53.3 million early closing penalty against Chicago schools should be appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court. Bakalis, Democratic candidate for comptroller, said he was not asking for an appeal of the decision because he wants to see Chicago schools penalized but said it could have far-reaching effects and needs clarification. He said a clarification was needed on how a penalty could be assessed. "I think the court saiying that the Office of Education had no authority to impose the penalty is not a very wise policy," Bakalis said. He said other districts in the state might decide they also want to close early.

State fair winner

Todd Tatlock, 12, of the Simply Smile 4-H Club of Arlington Heights, received two perfect scores at the Illinois State Fair last month.

Todd won blue ribbons in the master of ceremonies contest and in the first aid demonstration.

Todd attends Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove.

Teen-age volunteers to the Americana Healthcare Center, Arlington Heights, were honored recently with a swimming party and wiener roast at the home of Mrs. Rocco DePaul, 1201 S. Hickory, Arlington Heights.

Service pins for 100 hours of service were awarded to Mary Kopkowski, Lisa Linder, Ann Schaefges and Jenny Weir, all of Arlington Heights.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to other volunteers with fewer hours.

Panel approves 'meaningless' ethics ordinance

An ethics ordinance for elected and appointed Arlington Heights officials has been approved by the village board's legal committee, although some trustees called the law "meaningless."

The ordinance, first proposed more than a year ago, "is just window dressing," Trustee David Griffin, chairman of the legal committee, said.

The state statute regarding ethics is much stricter, he said.

The village's ethics ordinance will not restrict the application of any state statute.

The ordinance will apply to all elected officials, appointed officials, members of village boards and commissions, and any village employes with salaries in excess of $20,000 per year with the village clerk.

The law requires that statements of ownership, gifts, loans, business interests and other employment be filed every year before May 1.

The ordinance carries a penalty of $500 per offense.

A major change made in the ordinance since it was originally drafted, requires persons employed as attorneys, insurance agents or real estate brokers to report only the firm or corporation they are employed by and clients who do business with the village.

The ordinance now will be sent to the village board for final approval.

Zinging bullets disturb family's TV viewing

by DANN GIRE

John and Amy Greno moved to Hoffman Estates from Chicago three months ago to get away from the high crime area where they lived.

They thought the suburbs would be a nice place to raise their two children, Mark, 4, and Laura, 5.

That was before bullets began zinging through their apartment at 216 Grand Canyon Pkwy. Wednesday night.

"I was watching 'Starsky and Hutch' when I heard what I thought was a lot of pounding on the walls," John, 23, said. "Then after three or four shots, I knew bullets were coming through the wall. I shouted to Amy to stay (in the bedroom) with the kids. I hit the floor."

ONE BULLET went through the kitchen wall, bounded off the ceiling and hit the living room curtain rod. Others were imbedded in a kitchen cabinet. Another put a sizable dent in a steel filing cabinet. The apartment was sprinkled with falling plaster.

"At first I thought something had been knocked over," said 22-year-old Amy Greno, who an hour after the in- and asked her to get the police."

The Grenos' moment of terror lasted only long enough for some unidentified persons to pump 15 bullets through a vacant apartment window at the Grand Canyon apartment complex.

The bullets not only had passed through the window of the vacant apartment, but also through a dividing wall, kitchen cabinets, an apartment wall and finally into the Greno apartment next door.

"Usually I lay down in front of the TV (where one slug came to rest). I'm sure glad I wasn't there tonight," cident still was visibly shaken. "I got on the phone and called the operator John said.

HOFFMAN ESTATES police said the empty, bullet-riddled apartment was last occupied by Andrew Viso and his mother, who had moved out Monday night.

Two school teachers were to have moved in Tuesday or Wednesday, Mrs. Greno said. "The landlady said she was glad they didn't," she said.

Greno said he heard the bullets being fired, sometimes two at a time, "which makes me think there was sure more than one gun involved." He said one gun used in the incident "was either a .44 or .45 caliber. It's too big to be anything else."

Police earlier said that "small caliber" weapons were used in the assault on the apartment.

"We came to Hoffman Estates to get away from the neighborhood we lived in. We lived in a nice apartment, but we were afraid to have our children walk to school," John said. "Now we may move again."

GRENO IS A service repairman for a Des Plaines cash register company and Mrs. Greno is an office cashier in Chicago.

Hoffman Estates police, meanwhile, are seeking a dark blue 1963 or 1964 Chevrolet that a resident reported seeing shortly before the shooting began.

Police said Wednesday night they have several leads in the shooting but would not release information.

Village shows votomatic machine

A votomatic machine is on display at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building so voters may familiarize themselves with the new punch-card voting process, Village Clerk Ruth Ruff said.

Mrs. Ruff also said her office will be open today from 7 to 9 p.m. for residents who have not registered to vote in the Nov. 2 general election.

Voter registration will be accepted at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., until 5 p.m. Friday. The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Cook County Clerk's Office will accept voter registrations until 5 p.m. Sept. 27, Mrs. Ruff said.

The county clerk's office at 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

The county also will conduct a general precinct registration day in Arlington Heights from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Oct. 5 at all precincts.

For more information, call the village clerk, 253-2340.

Second set of unit school hearings

The second series of hearings on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at Elk Grove High School.

Members of the committee that filed petitions seeking a referendum on the unit district issue were contacted by County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick this week and were told the hearings would deal with the financial and educational aspects of unit district consolidation.

Finances and educational considerations of a new unit district have sparked a heated debate between officials in High School Dist. 214 and Dist. 59.

THE CONTINUATION of the hearings — which began with a hearing in July on the legality of the petitions — indicates Martwick found the petitions in proper legal form.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

Dist. 59 officials favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools and Dist. 59 schools. The proposed boundaries are the same as Dist. 59's boundaries.

A unit district would place the high schools and elementary schools under one school board and administration. Currently Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary school districts in the Dist. 214 area.

ANYONE AFFECTED by the proposed unit district may present evidence at the hearings at Elk Grove, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

After all interested parties have been heard, Martwick will make a recommendation on the petition's request to the state schools' superintendent.

The state superintendent will decide whether there will be an election on the issue. If an election is held, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Ruling sought on school aid

A court decision on the Illinois Office of Education's interpretation of state-aid limitations for school districts is being sought by High School Dist. 214.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education approved filing a suit with other high school districts to get a clarification on the state education office's opinion.

State law limits the additional amount of state aid a district may receive each year to 25 per cent more than the amount the district received the previous year.

THE STATE OFFICE is figuring the limitation for additional state aid on the actual amount school districts received in state aid last year instead of the amount districts would have received if the state could fully fund state aid, Robert Weber, associate superintendent for business services, said.

Weber said Dist. 214 officials believe the percentage formula should use the amount of state funding a district is qualified to receive, not the actual amount received.

Because a limited amount of state money was available for state aid last year, districts received about 95 per cent of the money they were entitled to receive.

WEBER SAID THE state's interpretation of the funding limits would cost Dist. 214 $123,000 in general state aid for the 1976-77 school year. Dist. 214 anticipates receiving $10.8 million in state aid.

Parks to host trips to play, Chinatown

The Arlington Heights Park District is sponsoring two out-of-town trips this month, one to Chinatown and the other to the Pheasant Run Playhouse in St. Charles.

The Chinatown excursion is scheduled for Friday. Buses will leave Camelot Park, 1005 E. Suffield, at 6:30 p.m. and return by 11:30 p.m.

The $9 tickets, which can be purchased at Camelot Park this week between 1 and 5 p.m., include dinner at Chiam's restaurant.

Luncheon and the theater is the agenda for women who wish to participate in the park district's feminique program Sept. 22.

The $12 tickets, which can be bought at Camelot Park, include transportation to the Pheasant Run Theater, lunch and the comedy "Catch Me If You Can," starring James Drury.

Buses will leave Frontier Park at 11:45 a.m. and Pioneer Park at noon and will return by 5:30 p.m.

Scholarship contest by General Mills

College scholarships of $500 to $5,000 are available to high school seniors entering the General Mills Search for Leadership in Family Living contest.

Each participating school will administer a 50-minute written examination. From the examination results a General Mills Family Leader of Tomorrow will be chosen, acknowledged with special awards and their examination will be entered in state competition.

Each state winner will receive a $1,500 college scholarship while every state second-place winner will receive a $500 grant. State winners are then entered in national competition for the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow title and a $5,000 scholarship.

For information students should contact their high school counseling office. Deadline for entering the contest is Nov. 1.

Weber part of panel on school financing

Robert Weber, High School Dist. 214's associate superintendent for business services, is one of a number of professionals participating in the Illinois School Finance Study. Weber is a member of the 31-person Technical Task Force, a committee composed of groups interested in education and representatives of the academic community active in school finance.

The study, authorized by the state board of education, will examine a school finance program to meet the state's needs during the period 1977-82.

McDonald to introduce vandal law

An ordinance to make parents responsible for youthful vandalism in unincorporated Cook County and county forest preserves will be introduced in October to the Cook County Board by suburban Comr. Mary McDonald.

Mrs. McDonald, a Republican, said Wednesday she is preparing the ordinance, modeled after similar statutes adopted by suburban municipalities, with the cooperation of suburban officials and Democratic County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

Mrs. McDonald said the ordinance will call for a fine of up to $500 to be imposed on parents whose children commit vandalism and require the parents to pay for the damage.

She said those working on the ordinance with her have disagreed over whether the parental fine should be imposed for a first offense or whether parents should receive a warning on the first offense and a fine if their child is caught the second time.

MRS. McDONALD SAID "I will probably go for the tougher ordinance." She said the village of Deerfield has had a year's experience with an anti-vandalism ordinance which provides for fines on the first offense and "they have had 300 first offenses and not one second offense."

Northwest suburban municipalities have been discussing anti-vandalism ordinances for some time. Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and other communities have adopted parent responsibility ordinances.

Mrs. McDonald said in addition to urging the county board to adopt an anti-vandalism ordinance, she plans to meet with Chief Circuit Court Judge John Boyle and suburban judges to discuss enforcement of the ordinance.

Mrs. McDonald acknowledged that it is unusual for a suburban Republican commissioner to draw up an ordinance since most proposals come from Dunne. She said, however, "I've informed all the commissioners of what I'm doing because I want everybody to know what is going on. I think doing it this way I'll be able to get bipartisan support."

Legislation moves to Senate

House OKs school-aid, tax speedup bills

by STEVE BROWN

The Illinois House adjourned in chaos Wednesday after passing a series of bills to change the state school-aid formula and speed up the collection of certain state sales and income tax receipts.

However, the effect of the action was clouded because the House voted to delay the effective dates of the tax collection bills until July 1, 1977.

The legislation still must be passed by the Illinois Senate, which returns to Springfied today. If the Senate finds the necessary votes, the House will need to go back into session Saturday to vote to concur with the Senate action. The delay in effective dates was required because the bills did not receive the necessary three-fifths majority needed for passage.

THE CONFUSION in the House action Wednesday was very similar to what occurred in June. When the regular legislative session adjourned, the lawmakers had approved the formula changes but had failed to pass the tax speedup bills.

Gov. Daniel Walker used his amendatory veto power to delay enactment of the formula changes until the legislature acted on the tax bills. He said the $95 million the state will receive from the tax bills was needed to fund the formula changes. He called the lawmakers into special session to act on the bills.

State Rep. Virginia MacDonald, R-Arlington Heights, said the House action Wednesday may amount to nothing more than a parliamentary move to get the bills to the Senate. She said the Senate would probably amend the effective dates on the tax bills to make the plan start immediately. But that will require another House session and more "yea" votes than were mustered Wednesday.

House members were shouting objections to a plan to return to Springfield Saturday when the chamber shut down for the day.

Republican lawmakers dropped their solid opposition to the legislation, which has been held up for more than a week, and supported the formula changes by 121-41 vote with four representatives voting present and 11 absent.

STATE REP. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, were among the Democrats who opposed the formula changes.

Mrs. Chapman said she opposed the bills because it would have hurt six of the seven school districts in her legislative district.

"I voted for the school children in my district," she added.

The vote on the tax speedup bills received more divided support from both Republicans and Democrats. Locally, State Representatives John Porter, R-Evanston; Harold Katz, D-Glencoe; Mugalian; Chapman; Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; Ted Leverenz, D-Maywood; Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park; and Edward Bluthardt, D-Schiller Park, supported the measure.

State Representatives John Friedland, R-Elgin; Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates; Macdonald; and John Carroll, R-Park Ridge voted for a single tax speedup bill that passed with the necessary three fifths majority.

With the action shifting to the Senate, local members of that chamber become the focus of attention. State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, said he doubts whether there will be enough votes to pass the measure in the Senate.

THE QUESTION of the accelerated tax collection plan became a political football as a number of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic candidate for governor, called on his Republican opponent, James R. Thompson, to back the tax speedup plan.

Thompson resisted the challenge until Tuesday and then offered only a limited endorsement, saying he supported the move to give extra money to education but for no other state spending.

The changes in the school aid formula allows school districts to stop rolling back their real estate tax as the amount of state aid increases, changes the formula for computing attendance for the purposes of receiving state aid and modifies the formula for penalities assessed school districts that fail to meet the minimum number of class days.

The early-closing penalty change was sought by Chicago lawmakers because Chicago schools would have to pay about $53 million to the state for closing 16 days early last year.

Fly paper supply low? Visit this old feed store

Today

Mike Klein's people

Morning crawled slowly into the old feed store where thousands of shoe and boot wearers have beaten down the once-proud wooden plank floor, perhaps since red men and white men watched each other with caution across the vanishing plains.

The new day, already a few hours old but still cool, sneaked atop sacks of dog and horse feed, past large bags of sunflower seeds and down one aisle where farmers can select from brown or white salt bricks.

Saddles and stirrups, combs and mane treatments, belts and buckles, crops and brushes; they all fill out this old feed store, either hung upon the walls, tucked into tight corners or suspended from the high ceiling.

Emil Reuter greeted morning without a fuss one day this week. He looked out upon it from behind the old counter of Main Supplies feed store, which Emil, 58, and his younger brother, Leroy, operate near Barrington.

Morning began to crawl inside when Emil and Leroy swung the doors open at 8 a.m. It brought the promise of another fine late summer day, and most likely cash-paying customers, too. Some did pay by check.

A WOMAN paid her bill, but left without any goods. She had placed a large order that would be delivered later. Emil said goodby and then turned toward another customer.

"Can I help you?" Emil asked the visitor.

One small white card exchanged hands. Emil studied the card, then placed it on the old counter alongside the beaten-to-death spiral notebook. Sheets of paper inside that old notebook contain feed and supply order records.

"Well, this old building's got to be close to 100 years old," Emil said. "Started out as a farmer's grocery store. Meat and such.

"The farmers used to haul their milk down here. Far as I can tell, there was a millwork shop in here once. An antique shop, too.

"That's as much as I can tell you," Emil said. "What was in here before that I don't know."

EMIL AND Leroy started their feed and supply store business eight years ago. Emil had worked for a lumber supply company and Leroy had been a painter before their business venture.

More than just feed and farm supplies are stuffed inside the old white building at Northwest Highway and Hart Road.

There also is fly paper. It is the good, old sticky kind that Grandmother always hung in her fruit and vegetable cellar.

"You can't hardly get that stuff no more," Emil said. "But we can. We know where to get it. It's just sticky. They light on it and there they stay."

By all observations, Emil was right. A length of that yellow fly paper hung from one of two light fixtures above their old counter, silent proof that many flying pests had gone to their eternal reward alongside the Great Fly.

"That strip has been there quite a while," said Leroy, who had just returned from an errand. "The glue is dry. They hang there as long as the glue is good.

NUMEROUS "improved" fly killers glut the market today. Emil and Leroy stock some of those products, too.

"There was that other type," Leroy said. "What did they call that, Snip Strips?"

"Man," Emil said, "we used to hang that across the door at night. We'd come in the next morning and the floor would be just black."

"Flies would land on the strip, absorb the stuff through their feet and then fall in a line," Leroy said.

Leroy said that he needed to make a trip to the hardware store. Emil began to take a few telephone calls. That's when I noticed the sign.

Emil or Leroy had affixed it near their very high ceiling alongside a window where many flies were in morning convention.

"NATIONAL HORSE WORMING MONTH," the sign announced.

"Have you wormed your horse in the past three months?" the sign asked in smaller letters.

IT SEEMED to be such a strange sign, certainly not like anything that had ever struck my attention before.

"Well," Emil said, "you do have to worm them."

But when is horse worming month?

"Most any month," Emil said.

Emil talked briefly about his old store just before the woman arrived. She would need to order 100 pounds of dry dog food, 48 pounds of canned dog food, 20 pounds of cat chow and 50 pounds of kitty litter.

"People come in here and say they haven't seen a store like this in years," said Emil, who drinks his coffee from an old white cup. "An old country store, that's what this is. There's nothing fancy about it."

The woman approached the old counter and placed her large order. Emil scratched numbers onto paper. "What you're running up is my standard order," the woman said.

Emil said that her standard order would cost $52.50. "I can remember when it used to run $26 and something," the woman said. "Don't know how many years ago that was."

THE WOMAN walked outside. Emil lugged the heavy bags outside his old store and placed them into her car. Then he walked back inside and began to discuss the hay.

Hay is very expensive this year. Summer rain clouds have not been kind to northern farmers. Emil and Leroy make their own hay in nearby fields.

"It all depends upon the rains," Emil said. "This year has been rotten. Even the lawns are dead."

Emil talked some more. Leroy returned and then Emil departed to rake the dry hay field.

Another woman walked inside Main Supplies. She approached the old counter. Leroy stood near the box of old-style fly papers, the kind that the more flies there are, the more you get.

The new customer asked whether Leroy sold rabbit food pellets. "Yes," Leroy said.

"Only have to feed one rabbit," the woman said. "The other one died. Don't know what happened. It was sick, but it was getting better."

LEROY LOOKED at this woman. He spoke quietly. "It couldn't have been getting that much better," he said.

"Oh," the woman protested, "but the color was coming back. It was yellow before."

The hour was correct to end this splendid morning visit. Emil already had gone to rake his dry hay.

Now Leroy went in search of rabbit food pellets for the woman whose other rabbit had died.

"Got to get to work," I volunteered toward Leroy while clutching one pen and one notebook, in my palms.

"Yeah," Leroy agreed. He stooped very low and began to grapple with two enormcus bags of rabbit food pellets. "That work is something else."

In 1977 National Merit program

53 area students make scholarship semifinals

Fifty-three Northwest suburban students have been named semifinalists in the 1977 National Merit Scholarship Program.

These students are among 15,000 nationwide who will compete for about 3,850 merit scholarships to be awarded next spring.

In order to become finalists, semifinalists must be fully endorsed by their high schools, present high school records that substantiate their academic standings and confirm their high qualifying test scores with a second examination.

MORE THAN ONE million students from more than 17,000 high schools entered the 1977 merit program by Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholar-Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Semifinalists are the highest scoring students in each state.

Finalists will compete for at least 1,000 National Merit $1,000 Scholarships. Each finalist will compete with all other finalists in individual states for these scholarships, which are allocated on a state representational basis. The scholarships are supported by grants from businesses and industries. Finalists will also be considered for about 2,850 four-year merit scholarships.

This is the 22nd National Merit competition. About 45,800 students have won scholarships valued at more than $124 million.

THE FOLLOWING semifinalists are from the Northwest suburbs:

Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid St., Arlington Heights: James J. Ernst, Robert E. Kelly, Karen A. Mills.

Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights: James W. Klann, Thomas J. Kodadek, David S. Legg.

Your vote could decide the election, so register! I need you!!!

The way we see it

You must be registered to vote

Time is running out for persons not registered to vote in the November general election. Only one more day remains for registration at local village and township halls.

Registration at the Cook County Building in Chicago remains open until Sept. 27, and there will be a special one day voter registration in the precinct polling places on Oct. 5. But the local registration still remains the most convenient option.

Voters who have moved since the last election should register again. County officials have made an effort to simplify the process by offering registration at local village and township halls.

In a democracy, the most fundamental right held by the people is that of voting. This right also represents an important responsibility.

Democracy cannot function without the participation of the people in the process of selecting leaders.

This principle cannot be put into action unless a person has first registered to vote.

A presidential election year always takes on special importance, because the voters are not only picking their representatives in both Springfield and Washington, but they also are selecting the man who will set the general tone for the nation.

Here in Illinois, voters also will select a new governor.

All of these positions are important and affect the lives of every citizen.

The process all begins with voter registration.

A reasonable plan to end library controversy

We urge the Mount Prospect Village Board to amend the 1976-77 budget to assure that adequate funds will be available to run the new Mount Prospect library scheduled to open next month.

The key vote in the compromise agreement between the village board and library board is expected Sept. 21 from Trustee Leo Floros who, after months of firm resistance to additional library funds, now says he is pleased with the budget agreement. The compromise reinstates about half of the funds trimmed by the village and at the same time forces the reopening on Saturdays of the library which was closed by library officials as an economy move when the financing was in doubt.

We believe both groups originally had the best interests of Mount Prospect residents in mind, but as the financial controversy unfolded, both sides became emotional and occasionally unreasonable.

The library board said the funding of the new $3.2 million library building, 14 E. Busse Ave., was insufficient to provide library users with an adequate selection of books and adequate staffing in a facility three times as large as the present building.

The village board, faced with increased taxes and a hold-the-line budget promise during the last campaign, said the library request was extravagant.

After months of heated negotiations, this compromise should end the feud. With the bitter disagreements behind them, both groups should concern themselves with other issues and concerns of Mount Prospect residents.

Nostalgically, we leave logjams to legislatures

Another era of American history is coming to an end as the last log drive on the Kennebec River in Maine comes to a conclusion.

No more will the mighty lumberjack ride the rapid river, peavey hook and pickaroon in hand, to guide massive pieces of timber from forest to the sawmill.

Issues of the environment and economy caused the demise of river logging. Lumber companies found it cheaper to use trucks, and environmentalists argued the process affected the ecology of rivers.

We may be better off because of the change, but whenever a tradition that helped to develop this nation vanishes, a moment must be taken to recall the efforts that went into making the country great.

Tom Tiede

The peoples' choice versus people

WASHINGTON (NEA) —Contrary to the best image of government, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes will be coming back to Congress next year. The Florida Democrat won his party's primary last week and as usual will have no Republican opposition in the general election. Unless his constituents get religion, and boycott the November polls unanimously, the aging warlord is guaranteed his 19th legislative term.

Hence justice loses again. Wrong triumphs. Democracy weakens. It is not just that Robert Sikes deserves reelection less than anyone in Washington, it is also the manner in which his victory will come. He is one of the few congressmen ever to be reprimanded by his peers for official irregularities, he is widely suspected of having regularly used his office for personal gain, yet there is no one in his district willing to challenge him in the November ballot.

He is not, of course, the only federal lawmaker without opposition this fall. By latest count there are 25 Democrats (including one senator) and six Republicans who have no general election opponents. Add to this the 150 or more legislators of both parties who have only token opposition and the nation is faced with the sad fact that about 40 per cent of November's contests are merely formal exercises. Small wonder reform in Washington remains a thing of a remote future.

Who are these automatic returnees? In many instances they are good men and women whose service is such as to discourage challenge from newcomers. Just as often, however, they are questionable stiffs who are locked into power by political machines and ignorant voters. Sikes is in the latter category. Actually, he leads the category. His story darkens a candle on America's Bicentennial birthday cake.

Sikes came to Congress in 1941 from the panhandle of Florida. The war was on, and he was swift enough to realize benefit from it for himself and his district. He hopped aboard the military bandwagon and turned it in the direction of his supporters. In 36 years of effort Sikes has remade Florida's First District into a kind of armed camp with nine major military installations, which now receives about $500 million in annual subsidies from the nation's defense budget.

Undoubtedly this has been good for the folks west of the Apalachicola. As chairman of the House Military Construction Subcommittee, Sikes has become "Mr. Military" at the Pentagon, and his every wish has rained profit on his constituents. The average congressional district receives about $7 million a year in military construction money, but Florida's First receives seven times this sum. Those who have voted for Sikes all these years have voted for their own bank accounts.

But while his people have prospered, Rep. Sikes has grown rich. According to public records he has used his federal and military influence for various personal advantages. He has been a major stockholder in a U.S. naval base bank which he helped establish; he has held substantial holdings in Fairchild Industries (while voting for $170 million worth of federal finances for the military contractor); and despite the rules of the House, he has sponsored legislation to enhance the value of land in which he has had a financial interest.

It was for these reasons Sikes was reprimanded by his colleagues recently. It was a mild rebuke; congressmen dislike punishing their own, for who knows whose turn is next? Still, Sikes is disgraced.

And yet back home he remains unbeatable. He rolled over a primary challenger with 75 per cent of the vote. And in November he will appear alone on the ballot. This says far less about Sikes than it does about those who defer to Sikes. Never mind his ethics, his misuse of power, his breaking of legislative rules; as long as he can keep the money flowing from Washington to Pensacola, the people are blind.

And so it is in many other congressional districts. The legislature is crammed with the corrupt, the incompetent and the arrogant, yet 90 per cent of those who stand for reelection this year will be reelected, because that's the way the people choose it.

It's chilling. The noise you hear is the restless bodies in the graves of the founders.

Heart Association is grateful to all who participated in swim

On behalf of the Chicago Heart Association and its five suburban divisions, I would like to thank the swimmers and other residents of the Northwest Suburban communities for making the First Annual Swim For Heart a success by raising $57,000 to help fight heart disease.

This success is due primarily to the outstanding efforts of the children and adults who swam for heart, the generous sponsors who pledged their support and to the extensive press coverage by The Herald. A special thank you is due the Suburban Parks and Recreation Association (SPRA) for sponsoring the swim and to the participating park districts for their cooperation and for providing, on a continuing basis, recreation programs such as swimming which provide exercise to help condition the heart and vascular systems of the young and old alike.

Results of the Swim For Heart have just become available due to the two to three week period following the swim in which the swimmers collected and turned in their pledges based on the number of laps they swam.

A sincere, heartfelt, thank you to each swimmer, sponsor and volunteer for their commitment to the efforts of the Chicago Heart Association and its North Cook County Division in its fight to reduce the incidence of heart diseases which kill more people each year than all other causes of death combined. Swim For Heart dollars, as with all Heart Fund contributions, help in the fight by supporting heart related research, professional and lay education and community programs.

To help express our gratitude for their individual efforts and for personally demonstrating the merits of exercise which helps condition the heart and vascular system, each swimmer will receive a Chicago Heart Association Special Merit Certificate.

From one Heart Association volunteer to another, congratulations on a job well done.

Rolf M. Gunnar
President
Chicago Heart Association.

Worthy of note

Tuesday evening, Sept. 7, about 9:30 p.m., our car stalled in front of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit.

My husband and I and our two children would like to extend our appreciation to two young men by the names of Nick Gattorna and his friend, Jim, who stopped to offer their assistance, and also to Mr. Ron Leaf who passed by and also tried to help.

After all efforts failed, we thanked the two young men and offered them a few dollars for their effort, which they refused to accept. Thereafter, Mr. Leaf was kind enough to offer us a ride home.

We feel this is a marvelous example of people helping others which one so seldom hears or reads about and should be acknowledged. It was a refreshing experience for us and we shall not forget their kindness.

For failing to take preventive steps

'Office crime executives' fault'

Law enforcement officials place the blame for white-collar crime squarely on the shoulders of neglectful management, and say it's up to business leaders to curb the $40-million-a-year thievery.

Corporate and police representatives and prosecuting attorneys beratt take preventive steps against employe take preventive steps against empllye crime, and refusing to prosecute the criminals they catch.

"If you're meeting a payroll, the potential for crime is there," Edward S. Donnell, chief executive officer for Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., told businessmen attending the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry seminar, "Business and Industry — Targets of Crime," in Chicago Wednesday morning.

"It's either a kid gloves or gloves-off strategy" in fighting crime, Donnell told an audience of 200 at the Pick-Congress Hotel.

IRA HARRIS, director of preventive programs of the Chicago Police Dept., slammed businessmen's apathy toward white collar crime, saying at least 30 per cent of business failures each year are caused by dishonest employes.

Norris A. Lynch, director of consumer goods and services of the U. S. Dept. of Commerce, in citing an example of white collar crime, said the grocery industry loses an average $600 million to thieves yearly, yet fewer than 30 per cent of grocers keep records of losses attributable to crime.

When an instance of white collar crime is discovered, corporations usually are hesitant about notifying police, seminar speakers agreed.

Harris said "a vast majority" of white collar crime goes unreported because:

- Executives fear costly civil suits should they openly accuse an employe of deceit.
- A firm wishes to conceal negligence by its management, which failed to prevent the crime.
- The culprit, once caught, agrees to pay restitution, and is dismissed, often without a bad mark on his reference. Such persons usually move on to unsuspecting firms and resume their criminal activity, Harris said.
- The firm fears adverse publicity if a crime is made public.

Harris recommended that executives identify and eliminate irresponsible persons; pursue investigations into suspicious employe activity; reject white-collar crime as merely a part of doing business; and make use of local law enforcement agencies in setting up crime prevention programs.

In setting up a crime resistance program, Donnell suggested businessmen:

- Understand the nature and scope of their security problem.
- Keep abreast of crime prevention techniques.
- Make security a top-level management objective, and implement a security policy at all levels of a corporation, from the boardroom down to the loading dock.
- Follow through on prosecutions of offenders, especially in instances of bribery.
- Don't fire a first offender for a petty offense; "take the risk of helping."

Ford parts may be hard to obtain during strike

by TONI GINNETTI

Owners of Ford automobiles could have difficulty obtaining parts for vehicle repairs if the strike by the United Auto Workers against the Ford Motor Co. is a lengthy one, area Ford dealers said Wednesday.

The strike against the country's second largest car manufacturer idled some 7,220 members in the Chicago area Wednesday, including the 180 at the Ford parts depot in Melrose Park.

Parts for all Fords are warehoused at the depot, which was shut down by the strike along with Ford's assembly plant at 12600 S. Torrence Ave., Chicago, and Ford's stamping plant in Eact Chicago Heights.

NEW CAR sales managers at sev- models already are on hand, but parts deliveries on all models have been stopped due to the strike.

"That will affect all Ford dealers because we all get our parts from the same place," Steve VerVynck of Woodfield Ford in Schaumburg said Wednesday. "It will be a matter of a dealer exchange program and whoever has the better inventory (of parts) will be in the best position to hold out," he said.

Paul Meegan of Cass Ford in Des Plaines said the lack of parts delivery could hurt car repair services but he said his dealership has a 90-day supply of new 1977s already on hand.

Both Meegan and Patrick Simmons of Schmerler Ford in Elk Grove Village said a long strike is not expected. "We have heard passed down through the grapevine that it could be settled Monday," Meegan said. "It should be a very short strike."

"We have not heard anything from Detroit, but I would imagine after tomorrow when the brunt of things have been felt we'll get some word," Simmons said. "But nobody's going to panic."

WALLY SHEPHERD of Fallon Ford in Arlington Heights said he does not anticipate a long strike. "It's been business as usual here," he said.

A spokesman for Chalet Ford Inc. in Arlington Heights said the strike is not expected to cause any immediate problems. "We've got 1977s here now and service mechanics are not on strike at all," he said.

At the three area Ford plants Wednesday, striking UAW members walked picket lines throughout the day but officials reported no incidents.

Robert Harnar, regional public relations manager for Ford, said both sides plan to return to the bargaining table Monday.

HE ADDED NEW car deliveries are planned to continue on schedule. "We have a 60-day supply of new cars nationally and that is split between 1976 and 1977 models," he said.

Harnar said servicing of emergency vehicles will not be a problem but supplying parts to dealerships will be hampered by the strike.

"The management will be able to service and man the parts depot for emergency vehicles, but we are a team management operation and if a dealer runs out of parts it will be a problem," he said.

Ford's Chicago assembly plant employs 3,370 and the East Chicago Heights stamping plant 3,670.

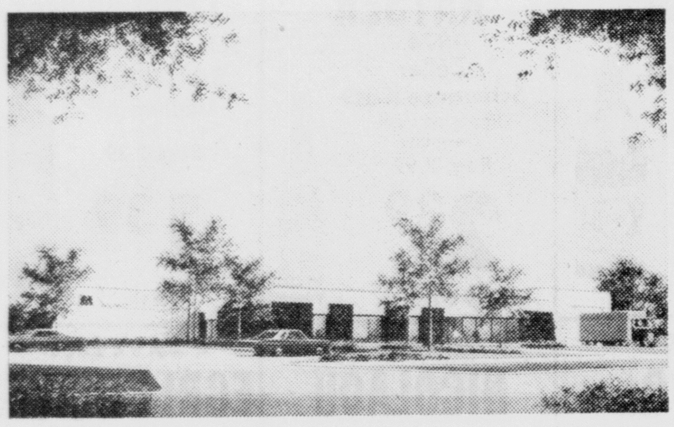
VW signs papers for U.S. plant

Volkswagen of West Germany Wednesday signed a final master agreement to locate its first North American automobile assembly plant in New Stanton, Pa., to better compete with other foreign importers. Gov. Milton J. Shapp signed for the Commonwealth and handed the first $8 million check of a $40 million state agency loan to Siegfried Hohn, VW's top fiscal officer, who signed for Volkswagen. The plant, located in New Stanton, about 40 miles southeast of Pittsburgh's mills which will supply the steel, initially will employ about 2,000 persons and be increased to 5,000 within two years, according to Volkswagen. In addition, state officials said an estimated 23,000 to 35,000 workers will be needed in various support industries.

Steel firms layoff workers

A "soft" steel market has caused at least three producers, including United States Steel Corp., to announce temporary layoffs. U.S. Steel has laid off "several hundred" workers at its Gary, Ind., works, while Bethlehem Steel Corp., has shut down a blast furnace at its Sparrows Point, Md., facility. And Kaiser Steel Corp. said it has begun laying off about 400 workers at its Fontana, Calif., plant because of a falloff in steel orders.

An unknown factor at this point could be the United Auto Workers strike against the Ford Motor Co. A lengthy walkout could hurt companies which supply steel to the automaker. Edgar B. Speer, chairman of U.S. Steel, said the company's third quarter "will be a little flatter than anticipated, but the last half (of the year) should measure up to forecasts."



MID-WEST AUTOMATION Inc. of Skokie has purchased a 70,000-square-foot site on Holbrook Drive in Wheeling. A 17,000-square-foot fully air-conditioned building designed by Thelander Nelson Associates will be built by D. J. Velo & Co.

People in business

MR. AND MRS. GLENN CARSON of Hoffman Estates recently returned from a seven-day trip to London, England as guests of Life Savers Inc. The confectionery company, in celebration of the Bicentennial Year, sponsored a special program for its wholesalers and retailers.

WARREN C. McGOVNEY of Mount Prospect was recently elected a member of the board of directors of the Advanced Management Institute, Lake Forest. A personnel consultant, he was elected vice president and director of the management development and continuing education programs at the school in 1974. He has served as an instructor there for 13 years. The Advanced Management Institute is a school for advanced training in management, open to practicing managers in business and industry.

McGovney also holds memberships in the American, Midwest and Illinois Psychological Assns; Speech and International Communications Assns.; American Society for Training and Development and the Illinois Training Directors Assn.

ANTHONY DeMARIA of Arlington Heights, president of the First Security Bank of Wood Dale, recently attended Bank Administration Institute's School for Bank Administration at the University of Wisconsin.

Stocks make up early losses; Dow gains

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market overcame early selling for a small gain Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange in a confusing news background.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off nearly four points at the outset, finished up 0.67 to 979.31. It had been ahead two points at one time. On Tuesday, the blue-chip average lost 4.65 points.

Advances edged declines, 692 to 639, among the 1,866 issues traded. Volume totaled 17,570,000 shares, up from 15,550,000 traded Tuesday.

ANALYSTS SAID some buying was sparked by Alan Greenspan, the chief White House economic spokesman, saying that the recovery was based on a "firm foundation" and should continue.

Greenspan said the "most recent evidence suggests another acceleration in the pace of the recovery is probably now getting under way." James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, agreed with Greenspan.

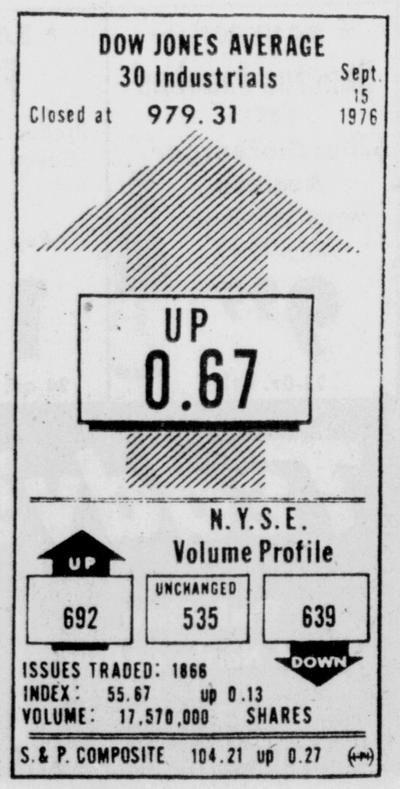
The nationwide strike by 170,000 United Auto Workers union members against Ford began early in the day and generally, traders discounted the walkout. The length of the strike now is the major uncertainty confronting investors and the economy.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & Telegraph, the most widely held stock in the nation, gained 5/8 to 60-¾ after the company reported record quarterly earnings of $1.60 a share.

Reserve Oil & Gas topped the active list, up 1-3/8 to 15¼ on 270,700 shares.

Gillette was the second most active issue, off ¾ to 30-1/8 on 221,800 shares. Pacific Gas Electric followed, up 3/8 to 22-7/8 on 203,400 shares.

Prices closed slightly lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index lost 0.10 to 102.23. There was no change in the average price of an Amex share. Declines topped advances, 283 to 253. Volume totaled 1,690,000 shares, compared with 1,560,000 traded Tuesday.



We Suggest a Safe Deposit Box.

There are many convincing reasons for a safe deposit box. But the best one we know is the complete peace of mind it gives you to realize that your valuables are safeguarded day in, day out, every day of the year! The cost is insignificantly small when you compare it with the replacement value of your possessions ... if indeed they can be replaced! We will be happy to arrange for the rental of a box with you. When you're here, ask about our other services.

March of Dimes mile walk Oct. 10

The National Foundation-March of Dimes will sponsor a walk-a-thon in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove Oct. 10.

The 14-mile hike to raise funds for the prevention of birth defects will begin at 9 a.m. at Buffalo Grove High School, 1101 W. Dundee Rd. Checkpoints along the route will provide restrooms and snacks for walkers, whose sponsors pledge donations for every mile completed.

The walk-a-thon will end at Buffalo Grove High School where the rock group Sahara will give a two-hour concert. Free refreshments will be donated by the Burger King restaurant, Palatine; and the McDonald's restaurant, Wheeling.

The two walkers who collect the most money for the March of Dimes will receive 10-speed bicycles.

For more information on the charity walk, persons may call Laura Gray, March of Dimes community affairs representative, at 341-1370.

Step aside, golfers, housing projects are your neighbors

by LYNN ASINOF

Take a golf course. Now add the rising expense of property taxes, fertilizer, gasoline and labor. Chances are that you'll end up with a real estate development.

This trend doesn't mean the end of golf courses in the Northwest suburbs, although one or two already have disappeared. It just means more and more condominiums and townhouses are taking their place next to the fairway.

A typical example is the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect, originally proposed by Hollywood Builders and now being built by Falcon Development Co. Inc. When completed, there will be 2,100 condominium and townhouse units on the 205-acre course.

To accommodate the housing, five holes on the course were completely changed. The biggest change, however, was in the golf course's tax bill and the money made by selling the land.

"THERE'S A LITTLE give and take on each side," Jim Johnson, assistant manager and pro at Old Orchard, said of the double usage. "It really hasn't hurt the over-all play of the course, although it's a little shorter in length."

The Rob Roy Golf Course, just down the road from Old Orchard, originally was proposed for a similar type of development. The Mount Prospect Village Board turned down the high density project, and developers now want to build houses that will wipe out the course.

Bob McDonald, a member of the family that owns Rob Roy, said he liked the idea of being able to preserve the golf course. "We tried to do that and Mount Prospect voted it down. It would have been the same thing as Old Orchard," he said.

McDonald said the problem isn't that you can't make a living from a golf course. It's just that the return on the property is small compared to what it could be if the land was developed.

TO ILLUSTRATE HIS point, he said it would take 200 acres to build a new golf course. At about $20,000 an acre, the cost of land alone would be $4 million. "And you haven't even done anything yet," he said.

That is one reason there are few private golf courses being built these days.

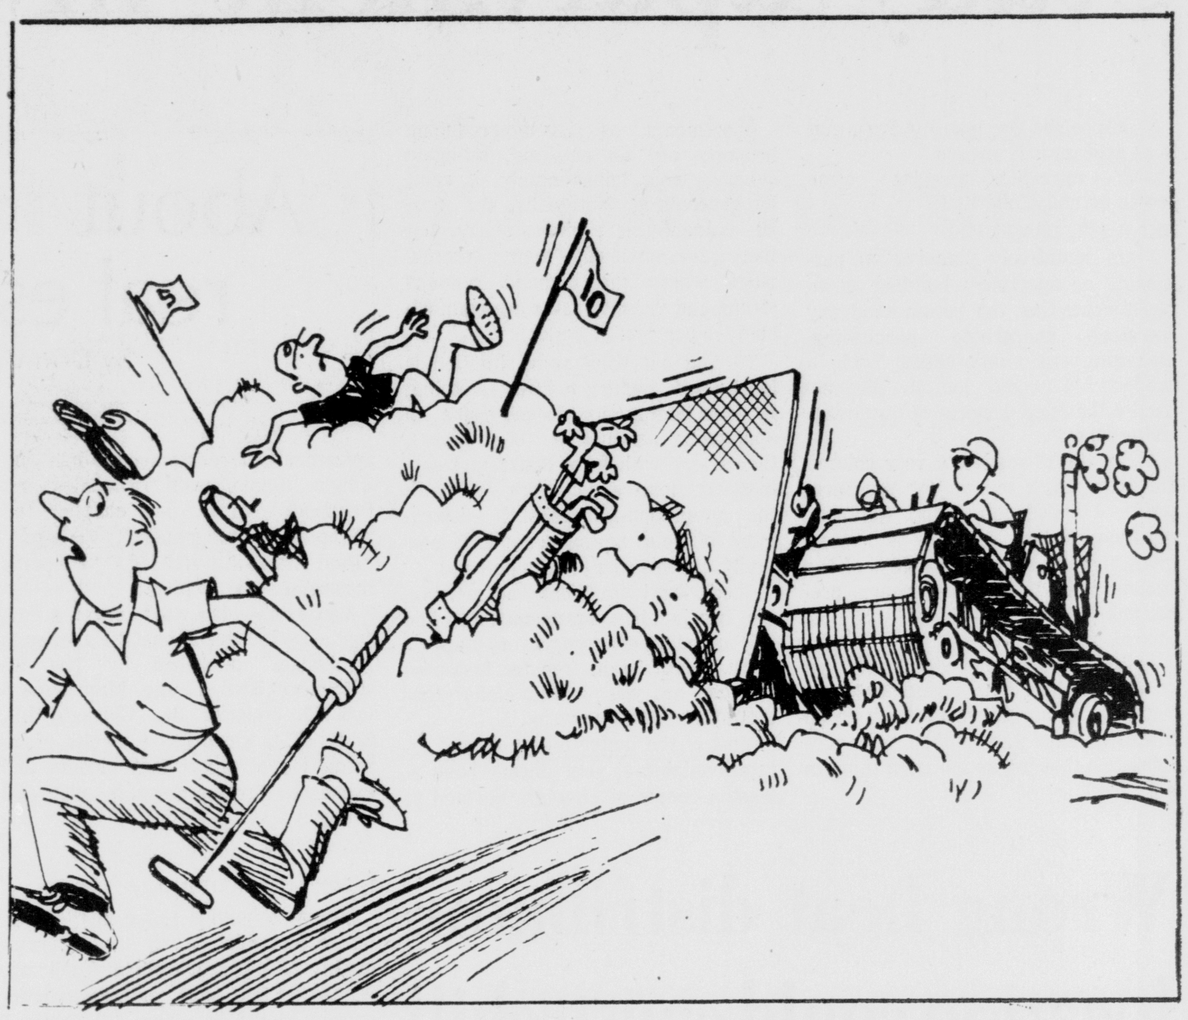
"Most of the new courses are either municipal golf courses or being developed as part of a real estate project," said Denny Davenport, assistant executive director of the Chicago District Golf Assn.

National Golf Foundation statistics show that 75 new golf courses and additions were built in the first six months of 1976. Twenty-nine were part of real estate developments.

IN ADDITION, eight executive golf courses, which are shorter than regulation courses, were built during the same time. Four were part of real estate developments.

"Some courses changed from private to municipal, and some changed from daily fee to a municipal course," said Donald Rossi, executive director of the National Golf Foundation.

Rossi said municipally owned courses do not have to worry about paying property taxes, one of the biggest headaches of golf course operators.



"The higher the property taxes go up, the harder it is to keep all of the amenities going," Rossi said. "It's a problem nationally. There is much work being done trying to get golf courses in a different tax bracket because of that."

SOME OF THAT work is being done by the National Assn. of Public Golf Courses, a group still in its formative stages. It is designed to bring course owners together to discuss common problems.

"You've got to remember, when you start being hit with property taxes, the cost of fertilizer and the cost of water — there's strength in numbers. That's why they organized," Rossi said.

Golf is a growing sport, which means there is a growing demand for facilities. Davenport said the growth spurt of the 1960's has leveled off, but said the public interest in the sport has made golfers more demanding.

"The golfing public is much more aware of what quality conditions are around a golf course," he said. "They want not only a good course but good clubhouse facilities."

A COMBINATION golf course-housing development, therefore, cannot afford to skimp on its facilities.

At Mission Hills Country Club near Northbrook, developer Eugene R. Corley spent some $3 million rebuilding the golf course before beginning construction of more than 800 townhomes and condominiums.

Many people who live at Mission Hills are not golfers, but marketing director Win Gould said the open space and greenery created by the course makes the property attractive to nongolfers as well.

Davenport said some golf purists don't like to play on "real estate courses," but said most people don't see much difference.

"It doesn't change the quality of the game. It just changes the type of shots required by a golfer playing an 18-hole round," he said. "It somewhat limits a player in the number of clubs he can use in a round."

Seeking jobs for members

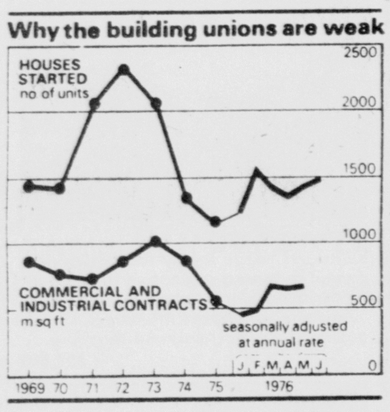
Building unions approve cuts in pensions, salary

NEW YORK (LENS) — With unemployment among organized members of the building trades running from 25-50 per cent, leaders of local building unions have reluctantly agreed to reductions in the pay and pensions that they have won over recent years in order to obtain jobs for their rank and file.

In New York City, the unions have signed a contract for federally-supported urban rehabilitation projects involving a cut of 25 per cent in wages and pensions. As rehabilitation work now accounts for most of the jobs available, the unions felt that they had no choice. A similar deal has been negotiated by unions in Philadelphia.

In Michigan the president of a unionized construction firm negotiated a deal with local unions that brought an end to featherbedding. The unions ceded power over the size of crews needed and gave up coffee breaks and travel pay rather than take a cut in wages, thus enabling the firm to beat the non-union competition for a $10 million building contract awarded by Shell Oil.

REPORTS THAT other local branches are making unpublicized concessions, including pledges against strikes, as a means of getting more work has led the national building trade unions to examine the extent and nature of the erosion in contracts across the country.



Historically, the building crafts have been among the oldest and strongest of union organizations in the United States. They have also been faithful to the precept of Samuel Gompers, the patron saint of organized labor in America, who insisted that unions should concentrate on getting more — in wages and working conditions — rather than on political power.

During the late building boom of holy memory, the construction workers won enormous benefits that made them labor aristocrats, at least in terms of wages and pensions. But construction, both commercial and residential, has been in the doldrums for several years. It has not revived noticeably with the recovery in overall economic activity, and many of the declining number of jobs available have gone to non-union workers who not only work for lower wages but for longer hours.

NOW UNION branches are themselves engaging in price cutting. Given the wholesale unemployment — and underemployment — in the construction industry, these concessions are not being opposed by the national leadership. Yet the heads of the building crafts unions are concerned that their branches may be forced into excessive concessions by depressed conditions.

They also fear that the local unions might come to special terms with an individual contracting firm, which would give it an unfair advantage in bidding on jobs.

The crafts unions have long sought uniformity in contracts on a regional basis. Like wage rates in New York and work rules in Michigan, uniformity is no longer sacrosanct. In retrospect, the unions appear to have won too much in the great boom, enabling nonunion labor to grab more and more of the dwindling jobs in the field. If the unions are to keep their hold on the industry, they will probably have to accept more concessions before a new level of uniformity in the industry is reached.

Retirement villages offer busy life

For modern golden agers, retirement need not be the end. It can be the beginning of a new way of life — particularly when they find a new place in the sun in a so-called "retirement community."

These special areas provide richer recreational fields. Activity, rather than passivity, is their way of life, according to a recent nationwide survey of retired couples conducted by the Family Housing Bureau of Chicago Title Insurance Company.

The survey shows that one out of four couples who relocated chose to move to a retirement community. Of those choosing retirement communities, 94 per cent are happy with the move and probably would make the same move again.

The chief reasons given for the high level of satisfaction among retirees living in retirement communities are the sunny climate and an abundance of recreational activities. Also important factors are a small town atmosphere (often near on in the retiree's original home town or birthplace) and proximity to friends and relatives, water and beaches, other retired people or friendly neighbors, and shopping facilities.

Summarizing the situation for the vast majority, a Fort Meyers, Fla. respondent commented, "We like the weather, the people around us, and the area."

ONE OUT OF FIVE retiree respondents report no major problems. About 18 per cent indicate some financial problems with the chief culprits being inflation and the limitations of a fixed income. About 13 per cent complained of poor health while an equal number complained of missing family or friends.

Another responder characterized a frequently mentioned problem: "I don't have enough time to do everything." The thought was echoed by another Florida couple who listed 10 major hobbies and activities, including growing tropical vegetables and fruits.

The 6 per cent who say they would not choose their retirement community again give one primary reason — they miss their family and friends.

The surveyed retirees living in retirement communities have overwhelmingly selected the warm, sunny southern and western states — specifically Florida, California and Arizona.

Two-thirds of those who relocated to retirement communities moved more than 500 miles from their former residences. This appears to be a mixed blessing, with many praises for sunshine, but a few regrets about leaving "the place where our roots are."

FOUR OUT OF five own rather than rent their residences in retirement communities. Those purchasing dwellings split almost down the middle between new dwellings and previously occupied ones. Almost one half or 46 per cent chose single family homes, while one out of three opted for mobile homes or trailers.

According to the Family Housing Bureau survey, retirees generally seem to prefer a quieter environment — but one that provides maximum leisure-time outlets in the form of social and recreational activities. Besides the expected shuffleboard, golf and card playing, unusual retirement activities abound.

For example, the emphasis on natural or rural settings of many retirement communities results in such reported hobbies as shelling, rock collecting, bird house building and studying earth sciences.

Some specialized activities also emerge, such as "search and rescue work" for the Coast Guard Auxiliary, editing a mobile park publication, lawn mower repair, antique car judging and lawn bowling.

Others reveal talents in retirement they may not have had time or inclination to develop earlier such as glass cutting, painting china, graphoanalysis, bead embroidery and, as one inventive respondent described it, "Making things out of practically anything."

Don't overlook an important investment opportunity...

IT'S CALLED A SAVINGS ACCOUNT.

When someone tells you high return investment may involve high risk, something is being overlooked. Savings accounts and certificates at First Federal Savings. It's true that most of us can't afford investment for quick big profits when the possibility of losses goes with it. But that doesn't eliminate the opportunity for high earnings, as the savings plans described here demonstrate. These savings ininvestments require no commissions or fees and each saver's account is insured to $40,000 by an agency of the United States government. You know what your high return is going to be. Don't overlook the investment called savings, and it's available at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines.

Study apartment investment carefully

"Look before you leap." Advice that is as good as it is ancient.

And — miracle of miracles — some people actually follow it!

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I am tentatively planning on purchasing an apartment building as an investment. Can you recommend any literature concerning purchasing, managing and maintaining such a property? I would let an attorney handle the legal aspects of ownership and tenancy.

As a faithful reader of your column and with much respect for your professional knowledge, I ask the next question: do you feel this is a good investment in the present state of the economy and for the near, predictable, future? — Mr. L. S. (E. Stroudsburg, Pa.)

ANSWER: I want to compliment you on approaching this investment cautiously. The normal tendency is to go ahead and do it, and then seek confirmation that it was the right thing to do.

Apartments as income-producing property are an on-again, off-again situation and, unfortunately, it can't be generalized. Nationally, the market currently is a little mushy, but there are obviously many communities where the demand remains strong and vacancy rates are comfortable (10 per cent or under).

To find out what your situation is locally will require a little sleuthing. If your community doesn't have an apartment association (of owners), then check with local banks and savings and loan associations and with the promotion-and-research department of your newspaper which normally has this sort of data on hand.

Check local "for rent" advertising, too. If it is fairly commonplace to find ads offering enticements to tenants (first month's rent free for instance) you can bet your bottom dollar that the market is very mushy.

Most of the better books on real estate available at your library have at least a couple of chapters devoted to apartments. I recommend North and Ring's "Real Estate Principles and Practices" which has chapters on "Property Management," "Leases," "Real Estate Advertising," "Property Insurance" and so forth.

You might also want to get a current copy of the annual "Experience Exchange," published by The Institute of Real Estate Management (155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Ill., 60611, $35), which has a wealth of information on apartment income and excpenses broken down by city and category.

Good luck.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I plan to build a house in the near future for which I will need approximately $50,000 in additional financing. Please let me have your recommendations on the following: (1) Should I sell part of my $100,000 stock portfolio and pay cash for the house? (2) Should I get a mortgage to pay for the house? (3) Should I use a combination of 1 and 2? — Mr. J. K. P. (Tucson, Ariz.)

ANSWER: Let's try No. 3. I'm a little baffled as to what sort of house this is going to be that requires $50,000 in "additional" financing. How much do you have on hand now, and what percentage of the total cost of the house does this "on hand" and "additional" money, combined, represent? I find myself envisioning a $500,000 establishment.

I don't know your age or what your income is so it's a little difficult for me to suggest how deeply you should dip into your stock portfolio. I think you have to work this out backwards.

By all means, plan on financing it with a mortgage, but determine first how much you can afford in monthly payments. Once you have this figure it is a simple matter to compute how much you are going to have to pay "down" to arrive at the size mortgage you can afford.

In any event I wouldn't liquidate more than 25 per cent of that portfolio for this purpose.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I'm having a fight with my real estate broker which maybe you can straighten out. I put my house up for sale with the broker (90 days), but about a month later a new man was transferred into our company and was in the market for a house. I showed him mine and it was just exactly what he wanted.

I had my lawyer draw up the papers, arranged the financing through my own savings and loan association, and now the broker wants a commission for doing nothing! I am refusing to pay him and he is threatening to take me to court. Can he do this? — Mr. P. L. J. (Philadelphia, Pa.)

ANSWER: Sure, why not? A deal is a deal and you just went to a lot of personal trouble for nothing. Once the new man expressed an interest in your house you should have turned the whole deal over to your broker.

I'm a little baffled as to why your lawyer didn't point this out.

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

Wrong heat distributor location could cause chill

If your thermostate indicates that your house is warm enough but you still feel chilly and uncomfortable, maybe your heat distributors are located in the wrong places, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Although comfort requirements may vary from person to person, there are certain criteria which are accepted as standard. For instance, people are most comfortable when there is a minimal difference in temperature between the floor and the ceiling.

Tests conducted at the University of Illinois demonstrate that hydronic baseboard heating panels, when installed under windows, are particularly effective in maintaining even temperatures between floors and ceilings.

Another important point to remember is to locate all thermostats away from direct contact with heat, cold and sunlight. This permits them to record only the temperature in the room and nothing else.

Homes equipped with hydronic baseboard heating panels never suffer from cold floors, even if they are built on slab foundations, the council reports.

That's because hydronic baseboard heating emits radiant heat which warms the floors.

Professor sees offices in houses

Commuting and rush hour traffic may be long-forgotten aggravations when offices of the future are located in people's homes, Robert C. Turner, professor of business economics and public policy at Indiana University, predicts.

Turner presents his outlook for "Housing in the 1980's" in the current issue of the MGIC Newsletter, published by Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp.

"Already, many large corporations are decentralizing their operations becaust communication technology has made it unnecessary to locate all employees in one place," Turner writes.

"It is only one step further to locate people's offices in their homes, so that no commuting at all is required. People will then live where they want to live, for non-occupational reasons, where land costs are lower."

Turner also predicts that demand for housing, measured in dollars of constant purchasing power, should increase by 32 to 40 per cent from 1975 to 1985.

"Demographic influences alone will mean a strong demand for housing for at least 10, and perhaps 15 years," he writes.

"What counts in determining demand is not total population, but the number of households," writes Turner. "In recent years, there has been a marked increase in the number of 'live-alones' and households with children headed by a single parent. There has also been a tendency for elderly people to continue to occupy a residential unit, rather than to move in with their children.

"Smaller households indicate smaller residential units — one or two instead of three or four bedroom houses. Therefore, although the number of housing units built will probably rise, the cost per unit will probably decline," he said.

"If the rising costs of construction relative to other costs can be stopped, consumers will be in a better income position to buy housing than they have been in the past," Turner predicts. "People are coming to realize that a house is about the best inflation hedge there is."

Appraisal class signup still on

Registrations are still being accepted for the real estate appraisal course I-A being offered by the Chicago Real Estate Board (CREB) and the Illinois Chapter No. 6 of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers (AIREA).

Although enrollment is limited, there is still time to register for this 'Basic Appraisal Principles, Methods and Techniques' course. The course will be offered on Monday and Thursday evenings from Oct. 18 through Dec. 13 with the final examination on Dec. 18. Location for the course will be the Chicago Bar Association, 29 S. LaSalle St., Chicago.

Registration for the course and further information may be obtained by contacting Mary Lu Olszowy at CREB, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60603.

Superblock mall buoys merchants

The $12 million Superblock project in downtown Des Plaines is well into Phase II, the construction of a 185,000-square foot mall.

Des Plaines' merchants, some of whom have been in business since 1890, said the Des Plaines Mall will benefit the city and increase their businesses.

Owners of stores that are not moving into the mall feel that the mall will revitalize downtown Des Plaines and will bring customers back to Des Plaines to shop.

Robert Spiegler, co-owner of Spiegler's Department Store, a clothing and general merchandise retailer based in Des Plaines since 1890, explained why his store is moving into the Des Plaines Mall. "We at Spiegler's believe our success is based on our long-term ability to maintain steady customer traffic patterns."

A crucial decision faced Spieglers' owners when their customer traffic pattern started to decrease due to a decaying central business district. Spiegler's had to decide whether to move from the community or stay, and move into the proposed Des Plaines Mall which would be located directly behind the existing store.

Spiegler's decided its success had resulted from emphasis on the warm home town department store, an image they could maintain while located in the downtown business district.

Des Plaines' merchants believe that, with Spiegler's decision to occupy 23,000 square feet on three levels, and serve as its anchor store, the Des Plaines Mall will bring back "home town shopping" to Des Plaines.

Monthly payments major factor in buying house

When buying a home, the determining factor should be the monthly payments rather than the price.

That formula will help prevent future financial difficulties, said Rudy Mussar, manager of the Callero & Catino Realty office in Des Plaines.

"The common rule that you should buy a home priced no higher than 2½ times your gross annual income doesn't necessarily apply any more," he said. "There are too many variables that can pop up later to create problems."

A more realistic measure is that the total payment debt does not exceed 30 per cent of the combined gross monthly income, Mussar said.

The 2½ times method isn't always feasible because it doesn't consider the down payment, interest rate, insurance, real estate taxes and mortgage terms, he said.

He said it simply implies that if you earn $20,000 a year you should be in the market for a $50,000 home.

However, down payments and interest rates on a $50,000 home can mean the difference between thousands of dollars in the total cost of the property, Mussar said. He cites these examples:

With 5 per cent down on a 29-year, $47,500 mortgage, the monthly payments at 9 per cent interest amount to $348.83.

With 20 per cent down on a 29-year, $40,000 mortgage, the monthly payments at 7 per cent interest come to $268.86.

In addition, you should add around 2 per cent for real estate taxes (a $50,000 home in most Northwest suburban communities has a yearly tax bill of $1,000, or $83 per month), plus $10 a month for insurance.

As a result, two buyers who each earn $20,000 a year will make different monthly payments based on different down payments and mortgage terms.

The buyer who put down 5 per cent at 9 per cent interest will pay approximately $447.83 per month, including tax and insurance.

While the buyer who put down 20 per cent at 7 per cent interest will have total monthly payments of $361.86.

"That's a difference of $115.97 per month, or $1,391.64 a year," said Mussar. "Since most families are operating on a budget, that kind of money can buy a lot of groceries, furniture, vacations and cover other expenses."

Mussar also said that these monthly payments are similar to some rents, emphasizing the advantages of home ownership over apartment rental.

"The homeowner is gaining equity and tax breaks for the same amount of money as the apartment dweller pays, not to mention privacy and other conveniences," he said.

Do only critical work

Pre-moving house fixup costly

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

The following question is one that is frequently asked by homeowners. It has to do with what repairs to make when selling a house.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Last year my next door neighbor sold his house. Prior to selling, he worked almost every night and every weekend for three months repainting the entire exterior and interior. When he finally ifnished, he put the house on the market and was able to sell it in three weeks.

I am now planning on selling my house. Is it necessary to do a complete repainting job first? How will this affect the value? —UNPAINTED.

I hope I am not the only one old enough to remember when the first thing you would do to a new car was install slipcovers. The car owner would then drive the car for three or four years with the slipcovers on, and would not remove them until it was time to trade in the car.

The end result was that the second owner would reap the benefit of a new-looking interior. The first owner spent the last three years on inexpensive slipcovers.

Too many people follow this same practice with their houses. They live for years in properties that need decoration or renovation work. They only perform the work when it is time to move. Therefore, the original owner never gets the benefit of any of the repairs.

Experience has taught me that the only type of repairs that should be made before a sale are critical ones, such as broken plaster, peeling wallpaper, deteriorated flooring, etc. As far as the typical decoration is concerned, the new homeowner expects to do this himself. If he pays additional money, it will only be for the equivalent cost of the paint job.

Before selling, clean up your house, eliminate excess water, repair major items, but don't go to the expense of repainting the entire property.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am an automobile mechanic and own my garage. About 15 years ago I bought a nice building with a good-sized parking lot in the rear. Last year the highway department decided they were going to widen the road that runs in the rear of my property.

As a result, they condemned 80 per cent of my parking lot. They paid me a fair price for the land that was taken. However, I am unable to stay in business at this location without my parking lot. Do you think this is fair?—CONDEMNED

Not only is it unfair, but you are entitled to additional payment by the highway department. You should have been compensated for two types of damages — damages for land taken and damages to the real estate remaining.

As a garage building, your property is not as valuable without the parking lot as it was when you owned it. I would suggest that you hire a good real estate appraiser and a lawyer who knows something about condemnation situations.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Every time I turn on my water spigot, I get rusty water for the first 10 seconds. The water clears after that. Is there some sort of cleaner I can use to prevent this?—MUDDY WATERS.

It sounds to me like a case of iron plumbing. At one time, iron was standard type of plumbing pipe. This has been changed to copper and plastic in the areas where plastic is legal.

The problem with iron is that it rusts easily. Copper and plastic do not do this. When purchasing an old house, it is important to be very careful in seeing that the plumbing system has been converted. Sometimes this is difficult to determine because the pipes in the basement are all copper. This does not mean that the risers in the walls have been changed.

In your case, you either have to live with it or spend the money to convert your iron plumbing. If you do decide to live with it, you can be assured that it will get worse, until eventually replacement is mandatory.

DEAR MR MELTZER: We are really suffering terribly this summer with the heat. We have been talking about air-conditioning our house for years, but never got around to it. But it can't be put off any longer!

Since our house is steam heated, we had to install window air conditioners. Though it is not a large house, it has a total of seven rooms — three of them fairly small. Putting a separate unit in each of these rooms will break us!

Do all people have to go into debt to keep comfortable?—SWEATING AND STRAINING.

I don't think it's necessary for you to put a separate unit in all seven rooms. If you install oversize units in the principal rooms, sealing the other rooms against the outdoors, all you will need is an exhaust fan at the far end of the house. In that way, one air conditioner would take care of several rooms.

Try it! I think it will work.

United publishes new moving data

United Van Lines has announced the availability of new editions of its popular consumer information publications, "The Pre-Planned Moving Guide,)' "Thinking about doing your own packing. . .?," and "How to sell your house faster. . .and for more!"

Carol Sellew, United's marketing communications manager, said the new publications are "working tools which everyone should have handy when preparing for a relocation."

"The Pre-Planned Moving Guide's major feature is a timetable checklist of specific considerations before, during, and after the move," Mrs. Sellew said. "Our 20-page, illustrated book also contains a two-page personal household inventory, carton labels, change-of-address cards, and an important papers pocket to aid in keeping in one place all papers concerning the move."

In United's pamphlet "Thinking about doing your own packing. . .?", there's a wealth of information and tips on the best packing methods and materials to use for preparing fragile items, books, appliances, tools — everything that is included in a household move.

Selling a house is undoubtedly one of the major financial transactions facing an individual or family. United's "How to sell your house faster. . .and for more!" pamphlet presents straightforward hints and information about pricing, property appearance, advertising, and handling the details of a sale yourself. There's a special section devoted to selecting and working with realtors.

"Your local United agent will be glad to make these publications available without charge to anyone," Mrs. Sellew said. "To request them, or information about moving appliances, plants, buying a house, and tax-deductible moving expenses, just call him. He's listed in the Yellow Pages under 'Movers'."

United Van Lines is one of the country's largest household goods movers with more than 900 agents in 150 countries around the world.

Different home fire detectors on market

More and more homeowners are becoming aware of the protection provided by "fire detectors" for the home, but few home owners are really aware of the differences in the types of detectors available.

With the increase in consumer demand, more of these devices are now readily available at retail outlets, but they all do not provide the same life-saving protection, the Insurance Information Institute says.

There are at least four types of fire/smoke detectors currently being marketed commercially: ionization, photo-electric, flame and thermal.

The ionization detector offers the earliest warning and perhaps the best protection. Basically, the device senses gases in the air, therefore providing a fire warning on the gases given off from a fire often long before smoke builds up and certainly way before the flames become intense enough to set off a thermal detector.

The photo-electric detector, often called a smoke detector, is activated by smoke — even minute quantities that may be invisible to the naked eye — breaking a beam of light. This type of detector is considered by fire departments and by several studies to be equal in quality to the ionization type.

Less desirable detectors are the flame/heat and thermal types. The area in which these detectors are located must be fairly well involved in flames before they will sound a warning. These devices are recommended for use as a secondary part of a protection system and should be installed in garages, furnace rooms and kitchens.

For primary protection, and as a basic beginning to a home fire protection system, the Institute recommends that all homes have at least one ionization or photo-electric device located on the ceiling immediately outside of bedrooms. If the home owner desires greater protection, then the basic system can be augmented by flame/heat and/or thermal operated devices located in the kitchen, garage and furnace rooms.

The next step up in improved home fire protection, according to fire departments, would be for the home owner to have all of the various detecting devices wired together so that if one is set off all of the devices in the system will sound a warning.

The sensitivity of the ionization and photo-electric devices makes them undesirable for use in kitchen, garage or furnace room. But it is exactly this sensitivity that makes them most desirable for use near bedrooms where the earliest possible warning of a fire is necessary.

Each of the four basic types of detectors is available from several different manufacturers and usually with one of three choices of power supply: battery, alternating current and a combination system.

Most battery-operated detectors meet National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) requirements by incorporating a minimum seven-day warning system that will indicate low battery voltage. These detectors will warn the home owner when the batteries are ready for replacement; however, it is possible to miss this warning and become unprotected when the batteries finally fail.

An additional disadvantage of this type of power source is that some of the types of batteries used are difficult to find and others may be expensive to replace. Battery-operated detectors, generally, are more expensive for the retail customer, but as long as the batteries are maintained in good order these detectors provide excellent fire protection.

Alternating current or plug-in types of power sources for home fire detectors are probably the type most generally available and least expensive for the public to purchase. These devices will be ineffective during power outages, however, and, in areas susceptible to severe storms and frequent power failures, they may be less than desirable.

A popular misconception about plug-in type fire detectors is that they are likely to be rendered useless in the event of an electrical system fire. Extensive testing by the NFPA and others indicates that it is unlikely that all circuits in a home electrical fire will be destroyed before a fire detector with this type of power supply sounds the warning, particularly if more than one detector is in use.

There is at least one manufacturer now marketing a detector that uses both batteries and alternating current for a power source. This type is perhaps the most expensive, but it does seem to blend the best attributes of both detector power source systems.

Some insurance companies now provide discounts on homeowner's insurance policies for the installation and maintenance of home fire detectors, and many companies are considering discounts.

The Institute cautions that the home owner should purchase only detectors that have been approved, or listed, by Underwriters' Laboratories and/or Factory Mutual. The devices frequently can be installed by the home owner, but the manufacturer's instructions should be closely followed.

Finally, building code requirements on the installation of fire detectors vary greatly from area to area. It would be best to check with your building department about code restrictions of these devices prior to purchase.

Town square fixups increase

Nice things do come in small packages, especially when one comes across the restoration of yesteryear's town square.

This development concept is now emerging in rural as well as some sububran areas, said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc. IMIC.

"Tucked away in quiet, rural communities off the beaten path and far from city bustle there is emerging a restoration pattern — all reflecting the nostalgic charm of another day," Goss said. "It is a rewarding experience for those seeking this type of life style."

These whimsical restorations are beginning to appear in mountainous regions where small villages have almost become ghost towns — deserted and abandoned.

"Enterprising developers, interested in preserving these quaint hamlets, are indeed bringing them back to life — the old way of life.

"Old mills — with accompanying waterwheels — are being converted into handsome residences. Even the wormy chestnut walls find themselves the background for old prints and paintings," Goss said.

Stables, blacksmith shops, former sawmill sheds and even silos are making a new entrance on the pastoral scene. All are carefully and painstakingly restored to their original forms.

"Besides being converted to residences, many of the old town square buildings also serve as shops where artisans can display their wares," he said.

In some cases, a shop and residence will become a "package deal. The shopkeeper resides above his shop — a community within a community."

A stone's throw from these tiny squares, condominium housing is also appearing — all in authentic period architecture. Mini-townhouses, colonial detached single family cottages, and low-flung stone garden apartments are built to fit in with the surroundings.

"For anyone who wishes to enjoy remembrances of the past amidst present day conveniences, it would pay them to find their very own town square of yesteryear," Goss said.

Bug damage you should know, and how to fight it

It's your landscape

by George Creed

It would take an encyclopedia to describe the tell-tale marks that are characteristic of all the many varieties of insects that attack plants in your landscape. But the four here are fairly common and easy to identify.

Sketch A shows scale on a twig of magnolia. These are sucking insects that are protected by a soft brown shell. If present, they are usually conspicuous on twigs and branches of magnolia, but there is another sign of their presence if you can't immediately spot them — sooty-colored leaves caused by a fungus that apparently flourishes on the sweetish excreta of the scale insects.

If a magnolia is infested with a great many of these scale insects, it becomes debilitated and sickly-looking. To control, spray with an oil spray when the tree is dormant. Or spray with Sevin or malathion in August or September when the scale insects can be seen crawling. Spraying at other times is not effective.

If you have columbines in your garden, you have probably noticed that in many of the leaves there are brownish-green winding tunnels that disfigure them. These are caused by leaf miners, chewing insects that tunnel between the upper and lower leaf surfaces. To control them, spray with lindane as soon as you notice small gray kidney-shaped areas in the leaves about the middle of May. Spray again in the latter part of June. Sketch B shows damage done by leaf miners.

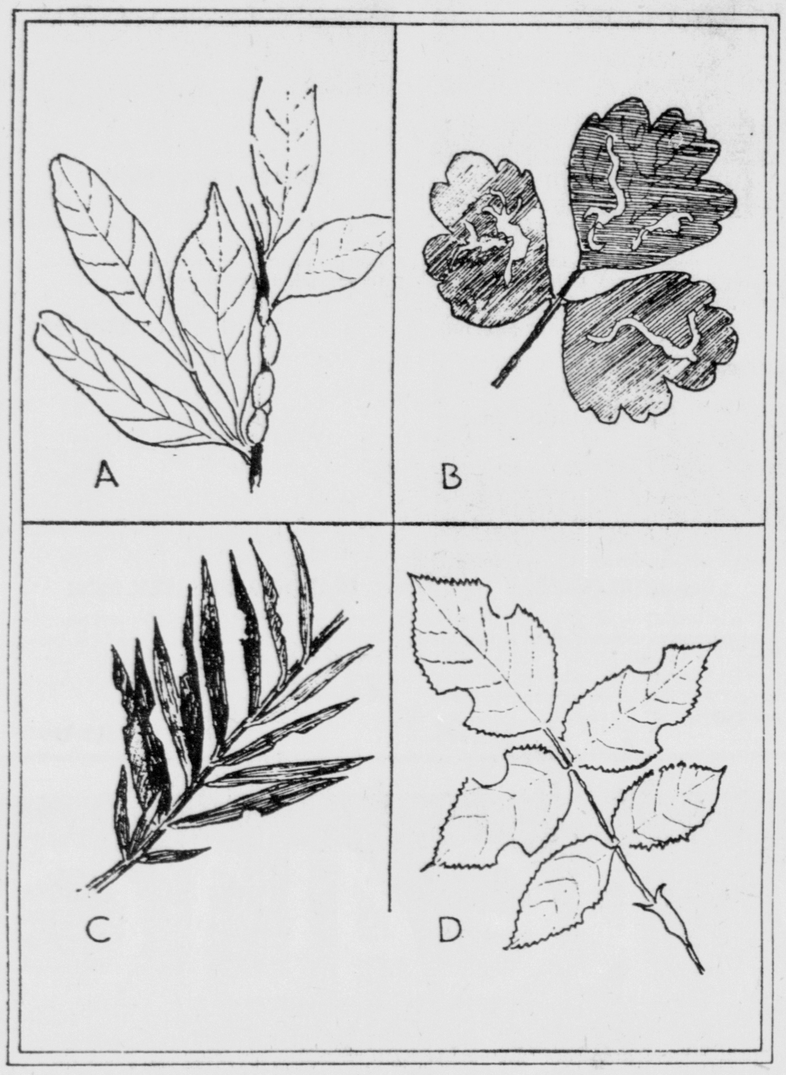
The black vine weevil, a brownish-black insect with a short snout, gnaws the edges of yews, rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants. The jagged edges of the yew shown in Sketch C illustrate the kind of damage this weevil does.

But the black vine weevil does not confine its efforts to the leaves alone: in the grub stage it also eats roots. If you have an evergreen that turns brown suddenly and dies, it is possible that the grubs of this weevil have eaten off all or most of its roots. To control, spray and drench the soil with lindane or heptachlor from the 15th to the end of June.

The leafcutter bee is properly named. It is this bee that cuts out ovals and circles from the leaves of your roses. It uses the oval-shaped leaf tissue to line the sides of its nest and circular forms as partitions between egg cells. Its nests are made in burrows in hollow stems of plants or in old wood. While the bee's work does not improve the appearance of rose leaves, it does little actual damage; in fact the bee does more good than harm, for it is a pollinator of plants.

Q. Can I use sawdust as a mulch to good advantage?

A. Yes. If it is fresh sawdust, spread nitrate of soda around plants before placing the sawdust. Keep the soda from contact with plants.



LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

An oral contract can be as valid and as binding as a written one. Any attorney can tell you it is just as easy to provide all the necessary elements verbally as in written form.

The problems arise later, when the parties disagree over exactly what was said or meant. Sworn testimony from witnesses becomes important. A written contractual agreement can be re-examined whenever necessary to verify all terms and conditions, but the validity of an oral contract depends on the memories of the parties involved.

When we handle a real estate transaction for you, we see that all agreements are in correct, written form, for your protection. When you first start thinking about any real estate matter . . . that's the time to come in and "Talk It Over" with us.

FACTS FOR VETS

DID YOU KNOW THAT . . .

1. Most vets who have served since (and including) WW II, are still eligible for VA home loans.
2. VA home loan program is not a one time thing. As long as previous VA loan is paid in full, and not assumed, a vet will be restored to full eligibility.
3. Obtaining your certificate of VA eligibility is a simple procedure; we'll be glad to do it for you.
4. Qualified vets can buy no money down up to $70,000.

Mullins Real Estate is dedicated to serving the VA home buyer. Our 5 offices have, this year, sold to approximately 100 vets, and our salespeople have been specially trained and are specialists in obtaining VA financing.

We also are specialists in obtaining conventional financing with as little as 5% down.

Mullins Real Estate is proud of this record and we are always available to answer any questions on an individual basis.

Nora Walther

Ellen Kucera

CENTURY 21 ARLINGTON REALTY announced that Ellen Kucera of the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg office and Nora Walther, from the firm's Palatine office, became eligible for the Million Dollar Club.

Ellen Kucera joined Century 21 Arlington Realty this year and become the first to qualify for million dollar honors from her office in 1976. She is the third sales associate in the firm's 26-year history to qualify for the honor in her first year in sales. She also won sales associate of the month honors for her office in August. She currently leads all company sales associates for listings and listings sold for the first eight months of the year.

Nora Walther, a Palatine resident, last year became the second sales associate ever to qualify for the Million Dollar Club in her first full year in real estate sales. She was sales associate of the month for her Palatine office for the months of June and July.

Mortgage banking makes big, uneven recovery

The mortgage banking industry, spurred by record single-family home mortgage sales in 1975, is making a dramatic but uneven comeback from the 1973-74 recession that plagued the nation's economy and the housing market.

Mortgage company closings of single-family VA loans broke the 1974 record by 17 per cent, according to the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America. Single-family FHA closings were up 28 per cent, reversing the long downward trend that began in mid-1971. However, conventional home lending dropped 10 per cent.

Although the average firm reporting in the annual survey of financial statements just released showed a loss for the second consecutive year, this loss was $85,000, off sharply from the average $304,000 loss reported in 1974. Only 67 of the 258 reporting firms showed net operating losses, compared to 96 the previous year. Virtually all the reported losses came from companies with large (over $400 million) mortgage servicing portfolios.

Average income from net interest on mortgage operations was boosted by the return of a favorable spread between long-and short-term rates. The prime interest rate at commercial banks, which peaked at 12 per cent in 1974, plunged from 10½ per cent at the beginning of 1975 to 7¼ per cent at the end of the year. Short-term rates were consistently lower than the prime throughout the year.

Although mortgage rates began zigzagging after the first quarter, mortgage company gains were protected by an influx of favorably priced investor commitments. Savings flows at thrift institutions grew at a record pace, revitalizing their secondary market mortgage activities. Attractive GNMA security yields also drew many investors from outside the traditional mortgage markets.

However, the surge in single-family activity was partially offset by mixed performances in other areas. Conventional multifamily lending was hit hardest. Loans closed and new commitments from investors on apartments fell to less than half their 1974 levels. The face amount of construction loans closed was down 25 per cent, a hangover of the 1973-74 inflation-recession spiral. Nonresidential activity was the least affected, with investor commitments down only 10 per cent and loan closings unchanged from 1974 levels.

The report noted that rising costs for loan originations and servicing exerted a considerable drag on company profits. With no end in sight to the steady stream of laws, rules and regulations swamping the industry, these escsalating administrative costs will become a significant factor impinging on the future health of the industry.

Despite these problems, the report stated that single-family lending will continue to rise through 1976 and 1977, followed by improvements in construction, nonresidential and even multifamily lending activity. The association predicted that "the 1976 report should present an even better financial picture for mortgage companies, especially since the economy is giving every indication of being able to sustain growth without rapidly rising inflation."

Furnishing home exciting, costly

You have just purchased your first home. Now furnish it says Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc.

"Setting up housekeeping can be a very exciting project — albeit, an arduous and expensive one," Goss said. To make the project easier, Goss said to stand back — count to 10 — and take a good look at the overall situation. Then make lists to clearly show what you have — what you need. The first list should be made up of furnishings you already have — to avoid any duplication while shopping. Newlyweds should add what wedding gifts they anticipate. When asked by fritnds or relatives what they want — refer to these lists.

One good money-saver is furnishing the home with secondhand items. These can be re-cycled as you go along. For instance, a chest of drawers originally bought for a bedroom can be repainted later for use in the pantry or kitchen.

Don't expect to achieve the comfort and attractiveness of the homes of friends who have taken years to accumulate their belongings, Goss said. Starting out simply — with absolutely minimum furnishings — will get you on the road to a lovely home quicker than trying to do it all at once.

Goss warned against letting friends and family make choices for you — it's your dwelling and you know what you want in it.

Improve if the budget is drained, Goss said. Some of those make-do ideas never seem to go out of style. Just framing a travel poster can add a decorative note — and at minimal expense.

If a room is short on furniture, fill in with plants. Young people, particularly, literally mass their rooms with greens to achieve the effect they want.

Finally, don't fret if you make a decorating or purchase mistake. A first home is for fun — for experimentation. If an inspiration backfires, you are free to change it.

Mortgage foreclosures decline

Mortgage payment delinquencies turned up sharply during the second quarter, but the doreclosure rate dropped to a record low during the quarter.

The National Delinquency Survey, a quarterly report by the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America (MBA), showed that the foreclosure rate on home mortgages was only 0.15 per cent in the second quarter of 1976, down from 0.18 per cent in the first quarter. In sharp contrast the 90-day delinquency rate (which includes mortgages three or more months in arrears) hit a record high of 0.57 per cent.

Although MBA had predicted a rise in FHA delinquencies due to the new HUD servicing requirements, the comparable rise in VA and conventional delinquencies was unexpected. The FHA-insured 90-day delinquency rate jumped from 0.49 per cent of loans outstanding on March 31 to 0.59 per cent on June 30.

The 90-day VA loan delinquency rate rose from 0.46 per cent to 0.55 per cent. Delinquencies on conventional loans rose to 0.39 per cent of loans outstandeng from 0.33 per cent three months earlier.

"It is unclear why non-FHA loans also took such a sharp upturn in delinquencies," said John Wetmore, MBA's chief economist.

Responses to the survey cited spillover effects of the new HUD reuirements on FHA loans as one factor. The industry's loan servicing operations have been so over-burdened by the new HUD procedures that they have been forced to cut back collection efforts, Wetmore said.

He noted the slowdown in growth of real GNP during the second quarter, continued inflation, and increases in unemployment, taxes and utility rates as contributing causes to the delinquency rise.

"We've also had a significant change in the mix of loans on the books," he said. "The recent record home sales pace has produced an exceptionally large payoff of older, low interest rate mortgages, which are replaced by loans with high loan-to-value ratios. These unseasoned loans traditionally have higher delinquency rates. Furthermore, a larger proportion of homebuyers are in younger age brackets, which means they don't have large savings as a cushion against unexpected strains on their budgets," Wetmore said.

"The decline in foreclosures may be misleading," Wetmore said. "All of the decline from the first quarter was due to a drop in FHA loans going into foreclosure. The new HUD procedures may have distorted the numbers since the backlog of FHA mortgages awaiting HUD approval for foreclosure action has mushroomed. That puts mortgage bankers right in the middle since this HUD processing delay merely postpones FHA foreclosures."

The MBA National Delinquency Survey analyzes over 7 million mortgage loans on one-to four-family residences totalling an estimated $97 billion of debt. They represent about one out of every four outstanding single-family mortgage loans in the nation, and over two-thirds of all VA and FHA loans in force.

House buy for young, expert says

Young people — singles or couples — often regard the purchase of a home as something beyond their financial means. Virgil E. Grand, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors said they're the ones who should seriously consider buying a home.

Most young people have a rising scale of earning power ahead of them. What may be a tight budget to them now will become easier as time passes, Grand said. And payments on a home are seldom higher to them than apartment rentals if they choose wisely and stay within their current and projected income level.

The usual comparison of rent receipts against growing equity is a valid one, Grand said. Also, modest monthly mortgage payments — even at high interest rates — will accumulate substantial equity growth over five to 10 years. There are advantages in income tax deductions for taxes and interest paid — and in the satisfaction of ownership.

A survey conducted recently by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) cites $247 as the average monthly cost of owning a home. The breakdown, according to the FHA, is this:

Mortgage payment	$161
Heat, utilities, repairs & maint.	52
Real estate taxes	34
Total	$247

Home ownership isn't right for all young people. A job that requires frequent relocation could mean that home purchase isn't the wisest course. The mobility afford by renting is so attractive to some people that they're willing to forego advantages of accumulated capital. Rental payments can sometimes buy more spacious quarters than the same dollars in mortgage payments.

An alternative to buying a single-family home is purchasing low-cost income property, such as a duplex. The down payment requirement usually is comparable to that needed for a single-family home. Half of the property supplies income from rental which helps retire the loan. Maintenance costs generally are higher and ownership of income-producing property carries with it additional responsibilities.

If young people purchase income property now, in a few years, they may be able to use both sides of the duplex for income and purchase a single-family house, Grand said.

It's wise for them to consider all the alternatives and to examine their particular circumstances before entering into any kind of property ownership agreement, he said.

SACRIFICE
LOT & HOME — $9,995

We must sell our 10 remaining sites within 200 yards of a lake near the Wisconsin Dells. This is about 3 hours from Chicago. These will be sold individually with an owner completion home of the purchaser's choice at 1 total package price. We will sell our 2 bedroom A-frame and basic 3/4 acre site for $9,995. 2 and 3 bedroom ranch homes, log cabins, 3 bedroom A-frames and premium lots are also available at slightly higher prices. Excellent bank financing is available. These are not Pre-Fab or Pre-Cut homes, but are built from the ground up by our professional carpenters. They are beautifully finished on the outside and are studded and ready for you to complete on the inside. All purchasers have the use of 1,000 ft. of lake frontage.
Because we only have 10 remaining sites, this special sale will be held so that they can all be sold immediately. Our representatives will be there this coming weekend, Sept. 18ht & 19th. Should there be anything left, they will be sold on the following weekend, Sept. 25th & 26th.
Call J. D. Bergman Corporation for further information, directions & reservations.
If you've ever wanted a summer home, don't miss this sale.

The good — and bad — of covering Bears' game

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

When you earn a living writing about sports, you have to expect comments like this every so often:

Neighbor: How about playing golf Sunday.

Writer: I have to work.

Neighbor: Doing what?

Writer: Covering the Bears' home opener with the Lions.

Neighbor: That's hardly work. Imagine, getting paid to watch a game for free, having a great seat, eating and drinking all you want and meeting all the big-name pros. You've got it made!

Writer: Oh, it isn't all that rosy a situation.

Neighbor: Yeah, yeah. I know. Sure. See ya.

Nobody ever wants to hang around to hear the other side of the story. They just visualize all the good aspects, never thinking about the bad. If they would just consider the minuses along with the pluses:

(+) Enjoying the beautiful day despite the drive into Chicago.

(-) Fighting the traffic on the Kennedy.

(-) Seeing Soldier Field — Chicago's "white elephant."

(+) Overhearing the comment, "When Chicago had the great fire, the water tower and this place somehow survived."

(-) Seeing someone in awe of Irv Kupcinet, the rah-rah announcer for Bears' radio games.

(+) Knowing that I wouldn't have to listen to his color commentary like so many fans had to because of the TV blackout.

(-) Eating a lukewarm frankfurter and a warm Coke, compliments of the Bears.

(-) Wondering if classier meals were being offered at places like New York or Los Angeles?

(-) Wading through piles of pro statistics. Critical information that the average fan isn't privy to — the Bears have scored 1009 points in all previous season openers while giving up just 869, or the 43 Bears' total shower weight is 9,652 pounds minus towels.

(+) Remembering that by being at the game also meant not having to listen to Jack Brickhouse's cheerleading on radio.

(-) Forgetting my No-Doz pills. Can you imagine the embarrassment of having to tell your boss you couldn't report the full story because the first half put you to sleep?

(+) Having the Bear boo-birds to keep me awake.

(-) Choking on a ham and cheese sandwich at halftime.

(-) Wondering if hot meals were being served by classy pro football organizations like New York and Los Angeles?

(-) Wondering if Soldier Field is the only stadium in the National Football League that doesn't sell beer?

(-) Having my thoughts of food and drink disrupted by the start of the second half.

(+) Enjoying the second-half play, especially several exciting moments.

(-) Discovering the Lions' den deserted. Losers tend to shower very quickly.

(+) Finding plenty of Bears to interview.

(-) Being frustrated because naked Bears all look alike.

(-) Finding a few famous faces to talk to, but none could give any good reasons for the lack of a more potent offense.

(+) Walking out of Soldier Field.

(+) Finding my car still in the parking lot.

(+) Failing to discover any noticeable new dents.

(-) Fighting the traffic on the Kennedy.

(+) Managing to pound out a story before deadline.

(+) Hoping to end the long day by running into my wise-guy neighbor.

(-) Failing to see him, unfortunately.

Weighing all the pluses and minuses, covering the Bears isn't too bad, especially because I don't have to do it every Sunday. That's the biggest plus of all.

North runners open conference schedule

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

Slowed by injuries and illness, the Palatine cross country team will dive into Mid-Suburban North dual meet competition tonight at Wheeling, and head coach Joe Johnson admits his team is not yet at peak form.

"(Jon) Dahlgren is injured and he probably won't run," said Johnson. "The others will not be at full strength, but they'll probably run."

The others Johnson referred to are senior captain Tony Vargas and juniors Chuck Elliott and Tom Johnson. All three have missed a lot of workouts because of illness. Elliott and Johnson, who clocked sub-9:35 two-miles last spring, have yet to run in competition this season.

"When we're completely healthy I think we'll be one of the top five teams or so in the state," Johnson said.

Without their top four, Johnson's Pirates will meet an improved Wheeling team led by junior Ben Sanchez, Kevin Lucas and Dennis Kelly.

"Right now our No. 1 man is Kevin Nikolai," said the Palatine coach.

Nikolai led the depleted Palatine squad past Crystal Lake, 22-46, on Monday as Elliott, Johnson, Vargas and Dahlgren sat it out.

In other North Division openers today, defending champ Fremd visits Buffalo Grove and Arlington hosts Hersey. In the South, Conant (2-0) entertains Rolling Meadows (1-1), Schaumburg (0-2) hosts Hoffman Estates (1-0), and Prospect (1-1) visits Elk Grove (0-1).

Forest View (1-1) hosts St. Viator in a non-conference clash.

Fremd, too, has been plagued by injuries and coach Ron Menely hopes to have his Vikings at full strength when they run a young Buffalo Grove squad today.

John Filosa, the defending MSL individual champion, and teammates Dan Inbody and Dan Tischler have been slowed recently by minor injuries.

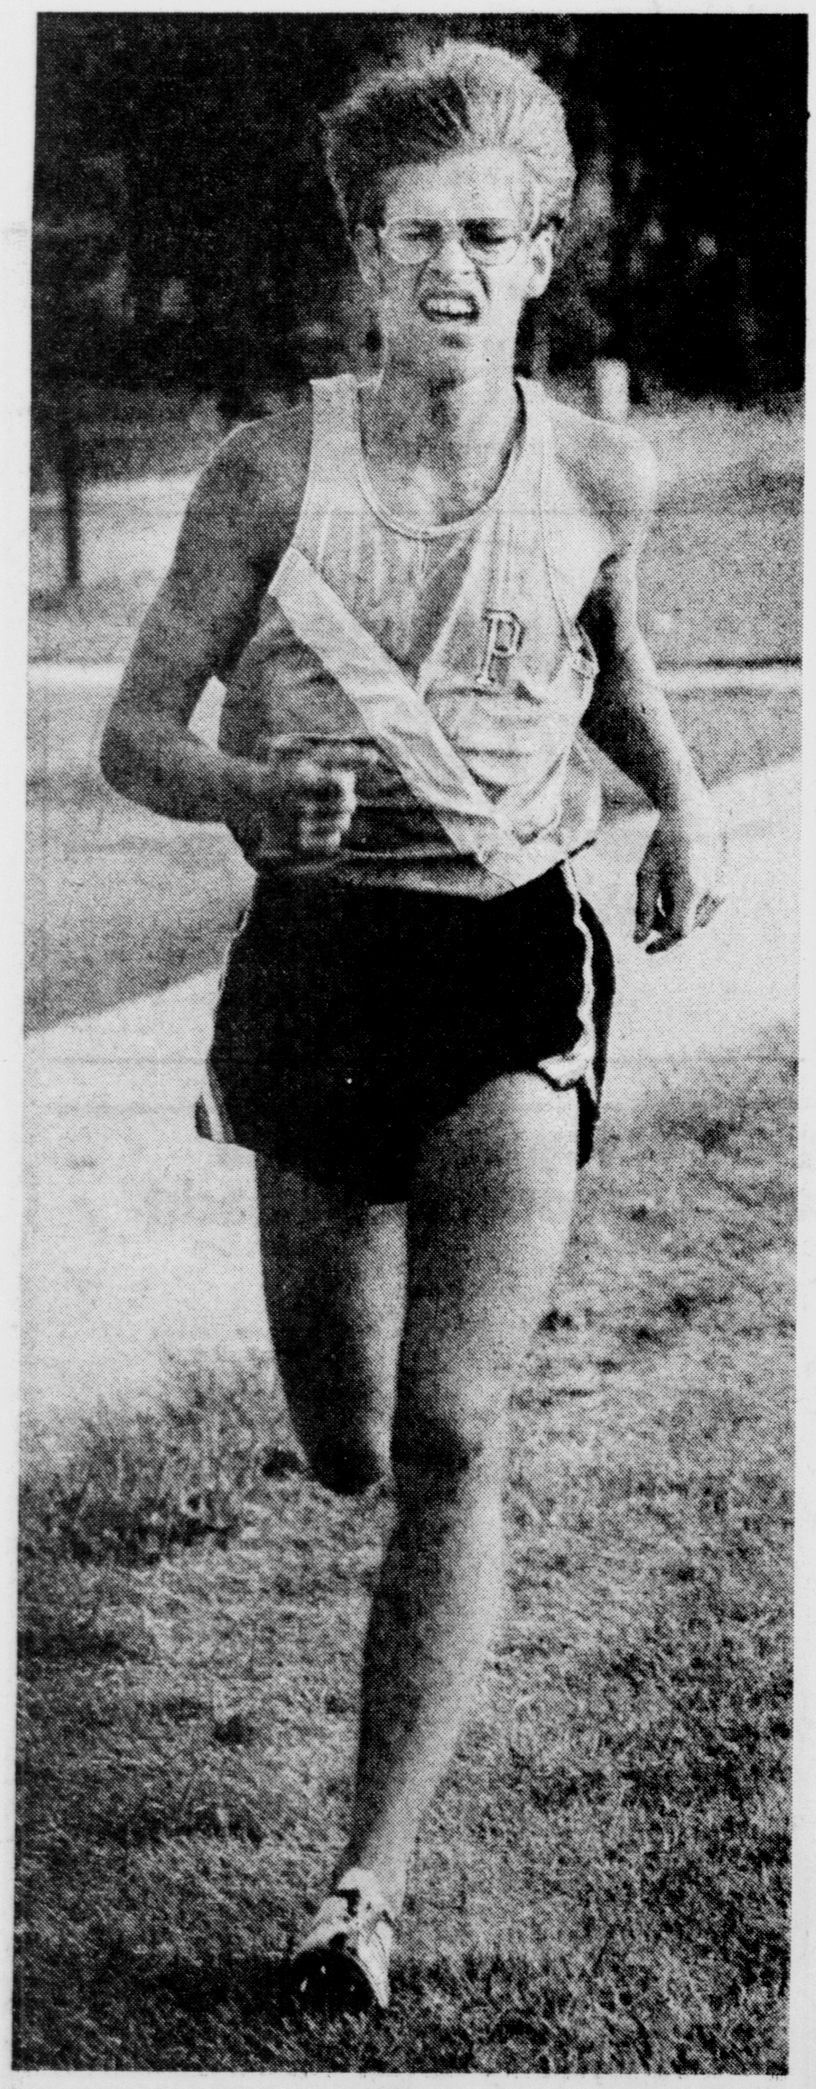
Filosa's younger brother, sophomore Matt, was the Vikings' first finisher at the Crystal Lake Invitational Saturday. Matt ran seventh.

A young and aggressive Arlington team, which ran second ahead of Fremd at Crystal Lake, will meet an even younger Hersey team today. Arlington, led by juniors Jim Lear and Tom Tremblay, is already the talk of the league.

Hersey's promising sophs, Rich Rieger and Steve Johnson, are the core of coach Larry Travis' varsity.

In the South, Conant and Hoffman Estates will try to maintain their undefeated marks with their Oct. 7 showdown looming ahead on the schedule.

A classic confrontation could take place in the Forest View-St. Viator race where Falcon Darryl Robinson and St. Viator's Dave Efken match their impressive early-season records.



THE LONE RUNNER. Prospect's Mark Smith is by himself and in the lead in dual meet against Hoffman Estates. Smith, a talented junior, was the winner in 14:05 on the Knights' home course, but Hoffman Estates won the meet, 20-37.

Pittsburgh back in hunt, powers past Phillies, 7-2

PHILADELPHIA — Bill Robinson and Richie Zisk each connected for their 20th home runs and Dave Parker added his 11th Wednesday night to power the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-2 victory over Philadelphia which cut the Phillies' National League Eastern Division lead to five games.

John Candelaria scattered three hits over the first seven innings to pick up his 15th victory against six losses. Kent Tekulve finished up.

Jim Kaat, the first of five Philadelphia pitchers, served up Robinson's and Zisk's homers and suffered his 13th loss against 11 victories.

Robinson connected following a single by Parker to put the Pirates in front 2-0 in the third inning. Zisk hit a solo homer to make it 3-0 with two out in the third and a double by Willie Stargell plus Parker's single made it 4-0 and knocked out Kaat. Parker added his solo homer in the ninth.

Dick Allen hit his 14th homer following a walk to Mike Schmidt in the fourth, but the Pirates scored twice more on Tug McGraw in the eighth.

Parker doubled and tallied on a single by Robinson, who scored the sixth run on a pinch-hit double by Tommy Helms.

SURVEYING THE scene is Philadelphia Phillies' manager Danny Ozark. The Phillies had a 15-game lead at one time in August in the National League East.

Team Canada wins crown in overtime

MONTREAL — Darryl Sittler faked out Czech goaltender Vladimir Dzurilla, then fired into the vacant net at 11:33 of the first overtime session to give Canada a 5-4 victory over Czechoslovakia Wednesday night and earn for the host nation the championship of its own Canada Cup of Hockey tournament.

The victory, before a standing room only crowd of 18,040 at the Montreal Forum, enabled Canada to sweep the Czechs in two straight games in the best-of-three final series. Sittler took a pass from Lanny McDonald at the Czech blueline and faked out Dzurilla.

Earlier in the overtime session, Guy Lapointe had an apparent Cup-winning goal disallowed. He shot with one second left in the first half of the first overtime, but his shot trickled past Dzurilla after time had expired in the session.

Guy Lafleur also had a goal disallowed 8:30 into the overtime when the Czechs deliberately knocked the goal cage off its post and received a bench penalty for it.

Canada, which finished first at 4-1 in the round robin portion of this six-nation tournament to earn $100,000, received an additional $50,000 for the finals victory, meaning each player on the 25-man squad got $6,000.

The Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Orr was selected the Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

Bears place Nordquist on waivers

The Bears put offensive guard Mark Nordquist on waivers Wednesday and assigned defensive end Gary Hrivnak to the injured reserve list.

To fill out the roster, the Bears signed rookie free agent Gary Fencik, a safety from Yale who was the Miami Dolphins' 10th draft choice, and reactivated defensive end Jerry Meyers.

Hrivnak will be out for the season.

Oakland stars consider contracts

KINGSTON, R.I. — Five Oakland A's players will tell owner Charlie Finley within three days whether they will accept his latest contract offer, according to their attorney.

"We're going to try to talk with him again within three days," said Jerry Kapstein, attorney for relief pitcher Rollie Fingers, outfielders Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, first baseman Gene Tenace and shortstop Bert Campaneris. The five will become free agents at the end of the season if they do not sign.

"They'd like to stay in the Oakland area," Kapstein said Wednesday after a two-hour meeting with the controversial Finley. "They like it there. They like to play together. They'll take a little less to stay in Oakland, but not a lot less," Kapstein said. He declined to reveal how much Finley offered the players.

The offer was the first from Finley since he sold Fingers and Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each last June. The sale was voided by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Finley is contesting the ruling in federal courts.

Kapstein said Finley "has done more than anyone else to establish the value of players. All I have on the table are some new proposals from Charlie," he said. "We're going to consider them. We're going to give him an answer and even if we reject we still hope we can continue talking."

Kapstein said he hoped to meet with Finley again during his stay at a resort hotel in this seaside community. However, a clerk at the hotel said Finley checked out immediately after the talks.

Expansion teams join NBA talks

NEW YORK — The newly-expanded Board of Governors of the National Basketball Association will meet today in Chicago it was announced Wednesday by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien.

"The inclusion of four new governors at the meeting was made possible late Tuesday when U. S. District Court Judge Robert Carter dissolved the injunction that would have prohibited the expansion of the NBA," O'Brien said. "Judge Carter also entered an order approving the settlement of the class-action suit by the American Basketball Association Players' Association.

"The court action and the payment today of $8-million, representing $2-million each by the former ABA teams — Denver, Indiana, San Antonio and the New York Mets — clears the way for these teams to formally join the NBA and take part in our meeting tomorrow."

O'Brien said the four teams are required to pay an additional $200,000 each next June, completing the payment schedule for the $3.2-million total per team.

College cage tourney back on tube

NEW YORK — The National Invitation Tournament regained national video exposure Wednesday when it announced an agreement with the Mizlou Television Network for coverage of its 40th annual post season basketball tournament championship game on Sunday, March 20, 1977. CBS held the previous contract for NIT telecasting.

College players who have starred in past NIT's include Frankie Baumholts, George Mikan, Easy Ed Macauley, Tom Gola, Len Wilkens, the late Maurice Stokes, and Walt Frazier. Kentucky won the NIT title for the second time last year. The Wildcats' took their first NIT championship 30 years ago in 1946.

Bando sues because of no coverup

RENO, Nev. — Oakland A's third baseman Sal Bando and his wife have filed a $2 million lawsuit charging the publishers of "Swank" magazine with defamation of character and invasion of privacy. In the suit, attorneys for Bando and his wife Sandra accuse the magazine of intentionally and wrongfully publishing a lewd photograph depicting him. The suit says the photograph, when accompanied by Glenn Dickey's article "Jock Sex," combine to wrongfully accuse Bando of "promiscuity, immorality and infidelity."

Bando's name was not mentioned in the article itself and Dickey, author of The Jock Empire and a San Francisco Chronicle columnist, was not named in the action. Bando said the article is "untrue, libelous and defamatory," and exposed him to contempt and ridicule.

'Nice doggie'

The morning jogger has some visitors

Staff Sportswriter

While out for an early-morning jog the other day, I was joined by two members of the canine family who, it turned out, weren't interested in chasing fire engines or digging up bones.

They, too, were getting in a few miles and nothing was going to stop them — or almost nothing.

I was chugging along on my third mile when I spotted them about 50 yards ahead, near a road-construction site. They were two of the biggest retrievers in the world: one, a black Labrador and the other a Golden Retriever. Neither of them appeared to have eaten in several days so I elected to detour around them.

No runner likes dogs, especially a slow runner, and especially unleased, unmuzzled, unsociable dogs. "Nice doggie," I have often pleaded. "Go pick on a cat with fur." Then I end up on the ground, flagging down passers-by and trying to separate nice doggie's teeth from my leg.

I wanted to run around these monstrous puppies, but an advancing bulldozer blocked my route on one side and a creek cut off my retreat on the other. So I decided to forge ahead and practice my charm.

"Lovely day today," I offered to deaf ears. The roaring bulldozer made conversation impossible.

Apparently, these dogs didn't care for talk anyway because they set out at full speed for a rendezvous with a point just below my left knee.

To my surprise, however, they didn't attack. Instead they pulled up and began running alongside me, one on either flank, as I looked down incredulously.

I crossed the highway, turned a couple of corners, and cut through a backyard. My panting pooches were keeping pace. Occasionally, one or the other would stop to sniff a fire hydrant, and the black one often ran ahead to reconnoiter. But they continued to run.

In my paranoid and oxygen-starved brain, I was beginning to think that these were two highly sophisticated dogs I was dealing with. Their plan was to run me into the ground — and THEN bite me.

By now I was into my fifth mile and tiring, having picked up the pace in a futile attempt to shake the hairy harriers. On the contrary, they were still right with me, although the Golden Retriever's tongue was dragging.

We headed down a narrow, two-lane road where every car had to slow down or come to a complete stop because of the strange man jogging with two large dogs. "They're with me," I called out in explanation.

But they weren't and I didn't want them to be. I couldn't go home because I didn't want the dogs to know where I lived. The whole episode was becoming a little too Kafka-esque for my liking.

Something had to be done.

Repeating my first circuit, I ran past the construction site, hoping someone would claim the errant pups. One worker, who denied ownership, suggested I keep them. "I may have no choice," I gasped.

Soon, the Golden Retriever began to drop back, obviously hyper-ventilating. The black one, though, was in good shape and leading the pack, as it were. Occasionally he would cut me off by swerving his big, sweating body in front of my legs. Smart dog.

Eventually, I stopped at a 24-hour grocery with its front door blocked open. The dogs, puzzled but relieved at the respite, wandered aimlessly. I started to sneak around the building, planning my getaway. As I glanced back a last time, the proprietor of the store was shoving two huge Retrievers out of his establishment.

On the other side of the building, freedom was beckoning. I was sprinting now, away from the grocery, not wanting to look over my shoulder but unable to resist. No dogs. Free.

There, ahead of me, to my wonderment, was the black dog. How he managed to get that far in front I'll never understand. But there he was in the middle of the street. Grinning.

He had company too. It was the biggest, ugliest Doberman I ever laid eyes on. My black canine friend didn't seem to think the Doberman was so ugly. They scampered off into the bushes.

I ran off in the opposite direction, tired as a dog.

Burris zips Expos, 2-0

From Herald Wire Services

MONTREAL — Ray Burris pitched a five-hit shutout and the Chicago Cubs scored a pair of unearned runs in the third inning Wednesday to defeat the Montreal Expos, 2-0.

Burris, now 13-13, struck out four and did not give up a walk.

Mick Kelleher led off the third with a single against loser Steve Rogers and Burris sacrificed him to second. After Rick Monday struck out, Joe Wallis grounded down the first baseline.

Montreal first baseman Earl Williams then threw wildly to Rogers covering first and the ball ended up in the Cubs dugout, allowing Kelleher to score and Wallis to go to second. Bill Madlock's double scored Wallis.

Madlock drilled two hits in three official trips to the plate to up his National League-leading average to .345.

The defending batting champion has opened a full 10-point gap between his closest competition Gary Maddox of Philadelphia who went into last night's action with a .335 mark.

The Cubs close out the current road trip with an afternoon game today in Montreal. They'll come home to the role of spoiler when East Division leader Philadelphia and challenging Pittsburgh invade for six games.

'King and His Court' fall to Johnny-O's in softball

Some sports history was made last week.

Eddie "The King" Feigner, the winningest pitcher of all time, lost a game at Thillens Stadium in Chicago.

Known as "The King and His Court," Feigner and his three teammates are famous for taking on all comers in a game of fast-pitch softball. Using just a catcher, first baseman, shortstop and himself, this foursome has defeated nearly 5,000 teams while losing less than 300 games during the past 30 years.

But Friday night they met their match in the Johny-O's team. Playing under the sponsorship of this Palatine lounge, this local nine knocked off the court foursome, 4-1. In over 25 years of stopping his road show each year for three games at Thillens, Feigner's mini team had never lost.

Johny-O's — a team made up mainly of players from the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area — played Feigner's team even for the first six innings. Jerry Larsen pitched his way out of several jams and received some fine assistance from his defense.

In the bottom of the sixth, Johny-O's loaded the bases with Mount Prospect's Terry Van Winkle, Arlington's Dave Kern and Skokie's Bob Voltl. Jim Ruppert, who tripled the first time up only to be left stranded at third, stepped to the plate.

Feigner, who has struck out over 96,000 batters (over 19,000 blindfolded), tried to fan Ruppert as he had done earlier in the game. Instead, Ruppert ripped a triple to left-center field, clearing the bases. He, too, scored on an overthrow by the shortstop.

Larson gave up one run in the top of the seventh and forced the court's top home run hitter to pop up with two men on. He allowed just four hits to match Feigner in that category.

A crowd estimated between 1,000 and 1,500 saw the rare upset.

Feigner regained his winning form by beating Woodruff Edwards on Saturday, 2-1, and Archie's Pub on Sunday, 5-3. He has pitched 220 games this season.

Feigner has recorded over 700 no-hitters and has faced over 12,000,000 batters since he began his road tour in 1946.

So for the Johny-O's team and Ruppert, who had a pair of rare triples, it was a victory they'll never forget.

Knight booster club to show grid films

The booster club at Prospect High School will again sponsor a varsity football film show the Tuesday after each game.

The Knights' game films, narrated by head coach Gary Grouwinkel, will begin about 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. Coffee will be served.

Rangers jar White Sox

Toby Harrah's 13th home run on Bart Johnson's first pitch in the sixth inning Wednesday night sparked the Texas Rangers to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Rangers added two runs in the eighth after Harrah's blow gave them a 2-1 edge.

Harrah, Mike Hargrove and Jeff Burroughs singled in order to open the eighth with Harrah scoring on Burrough's hit, and after Roy Howell was walked intentionally, Hargrove scored on Len Randle's infield out.

Johnson, the Chicago starter, took his seventh straight loss and 15th overall against nine wins, while Rangers' starter Bert Blyleven got his 12th victory versus 15 defeats.

Mount Prospect

SENIOR DIVISION

Colts 2, Cardinals 0

The Colts pulled out a victory in the fourth quarter when a Card snap went out of the endzone for a safety. Exceptional defensive play for the Colts went to Daley, Vincent, Dealba and Boint and the secondary of Kolls, Schmidt and Conlin. Cardinal defensive stars were Jennings, Ayers, Gordon, Borneman, Moran, Malloy, Francis and Cichon.

Lions 12, Packers 12

Lion halfback Ochab scored on a dive play behind the blocks of Pfester and Tchon as the Lions notched their second tie. Mooney returned a 65-yard kickoff as Koepke and Damiano threw key blocks. On offense, Blondell and Borscha blocked well while Hassan, Koepke and Zoellick led the defense. Esquivel had a fumble recovery and Prawitt an interception. Defensive tackle Matella scored on a 35-yard fumble recovery and safety Bowman returned a fumble 96 yards for the two Packers' scores. Kotwica blocked well for quarterback Lydon.

JUNIOR DIVISION

Eagles 0, Cowboys 0

The defending champion Eagles moved the ball inside the Cowboy five yard line twice with the running of Grasse, Predovich, Donner and receptions by Wolfe, but could not score. Fine defensive play by Altenbern, Saccone, O'Brien, O'Brill and fumble recoveries by Kay and Hefertepe.

Raiders 25, Redskins 0

Raider quarterback Kuehl passed for 120 yards and three touchdowns. Hunt grabbed a 10-yard scoring pass and ran for another with an interception. Kowalczyk galloped 35 yards for his score and Anderskow ran for a 15-yard touchdown. Defensive standouts were Van Rooyan, Zavodny and Kuehl.

Falcons 14, 49'ers 0

Falcon backs Fredko and Pargulski scored two first half touchdowns with good offensive teamwork by Czapla, Garr, Russell and Krause and then let its defense of Paisley, Tuefel, Mangiamele, Cain, Girard, Staniak, Skeple, Hunyady and Carlson hold the 49ers. Russell scored a fourth quarter safety. 49er backs McEnelly and McTigue ran well behind Dell, Kreischer and Scully.

Oilers 20, Steelers 6

Outstanding defensively for the Oilers were Sprinkman, Larawiec, Funk, Kier, Kugasa, Koyanasy and the running and scoring of Maher and Iwanski.

Chiefs 13, Rams 0

Girolomo recovered two fumbles while pressure from Cileate, Moren and Schreiber forced the Rams to throw interceptions to Maloney and Nicholson. Biedo, Hansen and O'Connor also made key defensive tackles. Chief TD's were by Maloney on a six-yard pass from Rachman and by Nicholson on a six-yard run. The Rams got blocking from Watkins, Notto, Santi, Dellacqua, Sramek, Billeck and defensive hitter Desmond.

BANTAM DIVISION

Gophers 19, Hoosiers 0

Defensively the Gophers were led by Neal with fumble recoveries by Nemec, Girolomo, Huska and Krachuk. A score by Kellner led the way to TD's by O'Callaghan and Krachuk. The Hoosier defense was led by Limperis with two fumble recoveries and the tackling of Gorham.

Scoreboard

Badgers 12, Tigers 7

Badger halfback Jrancis ran for 102 yards and two TD's behind the blocking of Lamb, Barker and Matovsek. Key runs by Fedro and Scully and the pass receiving of Simms showed the Badger balanced attack. Defensively, the Redmen were led by Brennan's interception, Pfaff, Gerber, Boba and Sinars. A 40-yard run by Paisley set up a De Luca score. Wojciechowski, Grovnak, Muehlbauer and Hammer defended the Tigers.

Spartans 0, Wolverines 0

The Spartans were strong on defense with the play of Dvoracek, Burke, Tuzik, Majercik, Wolfe and Benson, two key interceptions by Knuth, Johnson, Boron Allegretti and Carrico. Wolverine backs Weller, Moburg and Steinmetz controlled the ball offensively.

Bruins 19, Illini 0

Bruin back Nelson scored twice, Osborn once and Kelly added the extra point. Blocking by Larson, Jobski, Pappas and Andrds and defense by Calderella, Davidson, Olson, Eshod and Manfield was strong.

Boilermakers 12, Hawkeyes 0

Two second half TD's by Gavre behind the blocking of Golec, Zorebeck, Quast and Raftery. The defense was led by Glatt, Best, Roefe, and Mjorn. The Hawkeye defense was led by Freeze, Prendergast, Kmiec, Collins, Allegretti, Weiand, Collodi and offense by Wallace, Fitche, and Krist.

Youth soccer

Palatine Celtic

Boys
Beginners
Seals 3, Marlins 0
The Seal scorers were Ric Berens with two and Bill Hull with one; and their stars were Brett Pfister and Steve Christensen.
Gators 2, Sting Rays 0
Goals by John Walz and Mark Strazzanti.
Dolphins 6, Barracudas 0
The 'Cuda rookie goalie Randy Moore put up a stalwart defense, but the Dolphins swam over the team to score six (by Eric Nelson, Dale Suslick, Louis Schager, Dan Hibner, Matt Lopresti, and Mark Conning) and a shutout for Jim Sonnenberg.
Sharks 1, Gators 0
Forfeit.
JUNIORS
Lions 3, Alley Cats 2
Lion goals were scored by Eric Steinert, Bob Brunk and Mark Lemonidis and the Cat goals by Larry Kast and Bruce Peterson.
Pumas 7, Wildcats 0
The Pumas had it all the way with good defense and aggressive play plus goals by Joe Berktold (3), Kevin Smith (2), John Campagnolo and Dan Hogan. Bob Sunderlin earned the shutout.
Jaguars 6, Cougars 0
Cheetahs 4, Bobcats 0
The Bobcats never gave up as Danny Moller, Dan Raby, and goalie Pat Diamond fought to hold the line, but they were overwhelmed by Cheetah double scorers Todd Bleecker and Mike Polizzi, triple assistor Eric Eads, and outstanding player Paul Excell.
Panthers 3, Tigers 1
Solid defense by Panthers John Pabich, David Lentz and Doug Schneid held the Tigers to a single tally by Tom Schager, while Scott Padgett scored twice (one on an assist by Dan Schuman) and Mike Swanson once (on an assist by Mike Stevens).
INTERMEDIATES
Turkeys 5, Swifts 2
The Turkeys strutted into the new season, still undefeated, on two goals each by Rick Ruzbasan and Ron Reiter (who also made an assist), and one by John McDaniel. Ron Ferlaak, Dave Shoaf, and Jeff Brouk also made assists. Fullbacks John O'Driscoll and Steve Horness held the back line against all comers except for Swifts Mike Updike and David Graveline who each tallied once. Graveline, Mike Hogan, and Robert Eads all earned coaches' commendations.
Blue Jays 5, Orioles 2
Excellent midfield play by Randy Pabich, an exciting debut by Clarke Decker, two goals by Brian Tow, one each by Brad Burgess, Ted Brunk and Mike Diamond, and assists by Brunk and Tow helped the Jays to an opening victor. The Oriole goals were by Erik BoHansen and Steve Malouf.
Cardinals 4, Condors 1
The Cardinals conquered the Condors on counts by Matt McElman (2), Sean Stevens, and Clark Lush; assists by Tom Mueller, and outstanding play by Greg Gildea, Jeff Kraeger, and Mark Endicott. The Condor tally was by Kris Thibodeau and their outstanding defensemen were Chris Kingsborough and Jim Hebert.
Eagles 10, Flickers 5
Hat trick for each side (Flicker Dave Christensen and Eagle Mark Wolter), and doubles for George Kelly (white), David Eck, David Hardy, and James Joll, and a single for Desi Czoka (all citrus). The outstanding Eagle defensemen were Kevin Barrett and Daryl Warren.
Road Runners 2, Hawks 1
The Runner goals were by Brett Hartman (assisted by John Pejchl) and Chris Abbick (assisted by Scott Repplinger) and their strong player was Rich Drozd. The Hawk tally was by Tom Chernesky on an assist by Chris Benson.
SENIORS
Rams 2, Wolves 2
The first tie of the season resulted from an all-out effort by both teams; two goals by Ram Jay Babler, an assist to John Chope on a direct kick, and excellent defense by Greg Dorhout. The Wolf goals were by Rick Puls and Jeff Moore.
Beavers 5, Gazelles 2
Outstanding effort by halfback Jacques Mobille, fullbacks Mike Eme and Dave MacDonald; Scott Pfister debuting in goal, a hat trick by Tom Seiter and singles by Chris Braun and Jim Pejchl made it possible for the Beavers to squeak past the Gazelles. Both Gazelle goals were by Steve Barr on assists by Jeff Ernst and Bill May.
Mustangs 3, Wolves 1
Fine performances by Craig Harding, Brian McLean, Jeff Abrahamson, and Ed Lange, plus goals by Harding (2) and McLean made the Mustang win. The Wolf goal was put in by Steve Landeene.
Impalas 4, Bears 0
The Impalas awoke after a very lazy first half to score three goals against the undermanned Bears. Their scorers were Bob Wegener (2; assisted by Dave Moller and Rob Parenzan), Dave Castillo (assisted by Bill Dahlborn) and Parenzan (assisted by Moller). The shutout goalie was Jim Rance.
GIRLS
Streakers 4, Sun Devils 0
Several good saves by Devil Karen Sohn and good defensive play by CHB Mary English was not enough to stop the Streakers who won on goals by Michelle Regini (a hat trick), and Sue Ullmer; good play by Stephanie Olsen and Lisa Genovese; and a shutout by Maribeth Lydon.
Soccer Boppers 3, Jolly Green Giants 1
The Boppers triumphed on two goals by Cathy Molohon, one by Karen Barrett, assists by Joyce Randall, Mary McNamara and Barrett, and fine defense by Laura Carlile, Jennifer Mandala, and Merita O'Brien. The Giant score was by Cindy Curylo.
Streakers 1, Jeans 0
Super defense by Streakers Lori Love, Sally Eme, Ellen LaMarre, and shutout goalie Maribeth Lydon, and a single tally by Stephanie Olsen pushed the Streakers into the winner's column, despite strong opposition by Jeans Sarah Delaney and Laurie Petersen.
INTERMEDIATES
Flaming Tigers 3, Skylarks 0
All the Larks looked super with terrific kicking by Leslie Dammes and Sharon Scolpino, but the Tigers did all the scoring with goals by Collen Patten, Colleen Molohon and Carol Thielen, assists by Jane Randall, Leslie Miller and Molohon, and a shutout for Vanessa Hadley.
Royal Runners 5, Red Barons 3
The Runners high scorer was Karen Groth with four. Nancy Plazza belted in a PK, and Danielle LeFevre and Beth Schaffnit were in superb form. All three Red goals were by Vicki Swanson, and Beth Herndon and Heidi Sunderlin were their superior players.
Golden Eagles 6, Green Machine 0
The Eagles made a flying start with terric team work, four goals by Nancy Shellander (assisted by Kelly Cernok, Marilee Richards, Cathy Buist and Cindy Chope), one by Mary Kay McShea and one by Richards (assisted by Margery Morris and Chope), and a shutout for Maria Breen.
SENIORS
Bumblebees 2, Golden Eagles 1
Excellent passing and control by the Bee forward line, good defensive playing by the whole team, and two goals by Cathy Cernok edged out the Eagles whose goal was by Ann Lange and whose outstanding defensewomen were Mary Jo Skangel and Rhonda Reiter.
76'ers 4, Orange Blossoms 2
The Blossom defender of the day was Julie Brehm and Karen Felix did all their scoring. 76'er tallies were by Lori Solimene (2), Dana Howard, and Laura Francis — on an assist by Solimene.
Grasshoppers 7, Orange Blossoms 0
The Green goals were by Nancy Melberg and Lauree Small (two each) Holly Meyer, Patty Melberg, and Lorrie Norys. The shutout goalies were Norys and Cindy Kist; and Cheryl Willmann and Jo Barrett were the outstanding players.

Childless couples band together

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

For many couples, the scene is a familiar one: the well-meaning in-laws stop by for a visit, wine flows freely and by dessert the assault has started in earnest.

"How time flies . . . married three years already," the would-be grandmother says with a slight strain to her voice. "Pretty soon I'll be out hunting for bargains on a bassinet."

Ten years ago, the badgered daughter-in-law would have little recourse but to mumble something about "maybe next year" and retreat to the kitchen. But today, thanks to the National Organization for Non-Parents (NON), the voluntarily childless couple can come out of the closet.

Organized in 1972 by "The Baby Trap" author Ellen Peck, NON now has more than 2,000 members nationwide and an Illinois roster of 50 active members. The state/local chapter, headed by Marge Haddix, Oak Park, holds meetings four times a year and has a mailing list of 250.

NON'S GROWING membership is not made up of free-wheeling, get-that-kid-out-of-my-hair baby haters, declares Ms. Haddix. Almost one-third of the members have children, and many are single. But regardless of their family or marital status, all they ask is that prospective parents take a "good, hard look at why they want children," she says.

Although NON does emphasize the over-population aspect of non-parenthood, keeping the birth rate down is not the group's only concern. They don't spit on parenthood, but they do want people to be aware that in many cases, it's just not what it's cracked up to be.

"We're not against mothers," Haddix adds with a chuckle. "But parenthood should be optional. Now, society does all but rape and impregnate you. There are so many pressures to have children — our goal is to identify them and make people aware that they exist."

TAKE A LOOK at television, Ms. Haddix suggests. Those series like "The Waltons" and "The Brady Bunch" make it seem as if the trials of parenthood mean little more than an occasional skinned knee. And as for the Clairol pitch that shows Mommy skipping through a dewy field with her young daughter — "Come on now, what mother with an active preschooler is going to have time to flit through a meadow?" Ms. Haddix challenges.

Perhaps the day-to-day exposure to children— and the elimination of any romantic notions about them — are what has prompted several teachers to join the ranks of NON. At any rate, many do belong, along with factory workers, professional men, ministers and priests. Definitely not the shallow, selfish, neurotic type you'd expect to find, says Ms. Haddix.

"One of our members has five children, so she definitely doesn't fit the selfish image," Ms. Haddix says, "but she does agree with our philosophy. Many parents have had their eyes opened . . . nobody wants to go out and drown their kids, but more parents are admitting that they may not have made the choice they did if all the options were explored beforehand."

BUCKING THE Mom, apple pie and kids'-football-photos-on-the-desk syndrome may not be easy, but Ms. Haddix says most of NON's members are becoming more accepted by family and friends — even in that bastion of the family, the suburban subdivision. And the increasing interest in the group's philosophy leads her to believe that more and more "typical suburbanites" are questioning the child-centered lifestyle around them.

Ms. Haddix herself likes children . . . "I've babysat all my life," she explains, "but I realized that my reason for wanting children — to create a miniature me — was a pretty selfish one. When you think about it, some of the other reasons aren't much better. To 'give Johnny a sister' or 'have security . . . someplace to go on Thanksgiving' just don't hold water."

Linda Wagner, a Des Plaines woman who has been married for two years, hasn't quite made up her mind about the possibility of children. But she belongs to NON because "I'd always had doubts, and this organization is a support to me."

"I JUST CAN'T find many good reasons to have children," says Mrs. Wagner. "After 'The Baby Trap' came out, I realized how many pressures there were, and children are something we just don't need right now."

Has she received much flack from her more motherly friends? Mrs. Wagner admits that co-workers needle her about being selfish for foregoing a child-centered lifestyle, but she and her husband are content with their decision.

"It all comes down to the fact that being a mother or a father isn't the ultimate goal in life," says Ms. Haddix. "There are plenty of ways to enjoy children without rearing one . . . all we're asking for is a real choice."

WMAQ's Chuck Neff

He fits his own image to a T(V)

WITH HIS FILM crew, NBC-TV health reporter Chuck Neff attended last week's Buffalo Grove-Conant high school football game to do a report on football injuries. Neff feels particularly gratified when he gets viewer response to his health reporting.

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Chuck Neff's TV image is that of handsome, confident, competent health reporter. In person he more than measures up to his electronic self.

Talking to the friendly local NBC TV station's reporter was both informative and fun.

"I like being recognized, but I try not to let it go to my head," he said jokingly as he discussed his work with WMAQ-TV in Chicago.

Initially Neff wanted to be a sports announcer, but started out in news and remained there. He still covers news assignments occasionally, frequently appearing "live" on camera, such as the recent tragic airplane accident near Midway Airport.

HE BEGAN REPORTING health news in March 1975. A survey showed health to be the No. 1 concern of viewing audiences and when NBC management decided to air health news, Neff got the job. Working with a film crew and a full-time writer-producer, he does daily health reports that often are syndicated and aired nationally on NBC TV news.

To date Neff has filmed more than 250 reports running from one to five minutes. "I try to do one report a day, average about four a week," he said. "We do anything that deals with health, and we travel anywhere there's a good story."

Sometimes it's a one-spot report, other times a series, such as the three-parter he did last year on "How to Brush Your Teeth." As part of that one he explored baby bottle tooth decay.

MARRIED AND FATHER of two young children, Chuck takes an active interest in their health. Recently he accompanied daughter Sarah, 5, to the dentist, and the visit rekindled his interest so he's planning another tooth story.

"Sarah's dentist told me that 60 per cent of 2-year-olds he sees have cavities," he said.

"I am going to contact oral surgeons to see just how serious childhood dental problems are, then explore the causes. Is it sugar in food? If so, why do baby food manufacturers put sugar in baby foods?"

How often should a child visit the dentist? At what age should a child start seeing the dentist? These are other questions Neff will ask.

PROVIDING CORRECT and helpful information to the public is one reward of his job. Audience reaction and interest are others.

"I did a story on narcolepsy (a deep sleep, usually not long, brought on by an epileptic attack or by an inflammation of the brain) that got unbelievable response!" he said.

"People who had been living with the ailment wrote or called in to say they didn't know what was wrong with them and to thank us."

Chuck's good looks and pleasant voice are familiar not only to national and local television viewers but to Northwest suburban residents for he lives in Arlington Heights with wife Judy, daughter Sarah and son Billy, nearly 2.

"THE NEIGHBORS' kids might think 'Wow! Sarah's daddy has a pretty neat job,' but Sarah plays it low key," Neff said, chuckling softly. "She'd rather watch 'Mr. Rogers.' And my wife is detached enough to serve as a good critic," he added.

Neff often films locally and is aided by health professionals who provide him with up-to-date information.

"I do what any good reporter does: report the experts. Whether it's politics, medicine, or whatever, if I get the correct information to the public so they understand it, I've done my job," Neff said.

"Willing to sweep floors" to get started in his chosen profession, Chuck landed his first job by perseverance. It was during Christmas vacation of his junior year at the University of Missouri that he began job hunting.

"I HAD BEEN TO every radio-TV station and newspaper in St. Louis and was on my way home. Halfway there I realized I had missed one station and turned around," he recalled.

The news director was in, welcomed Chuck and spent two hours showing him around. He advised the aspiring newsman to call in once a week and Chuck did. The result: a general assignment job for Easter vacation and the next summer, later a full-time job after getting his degree.

"I learned all the basics there. I had no real background, no hard experience. Interviewing the mayor of St. Louis, for instance, scared the hell out of me!" he said recalling his first big interview.

Married right out of college and facing the draft during the Viethan war, Neff relocated in Terre Haute, Ind., where he worked for WTWO-TV and joined the National Guard. He attended officers candidate school and applies the leadership philosophy he learned there to his work-a-day life.

"A GOOD LEADER listens to his people. If I have enough confidence to hire someone, I have confidence in him," Neff declared.

After two years in Indiana, the Neffs moved to Denver where Chuck joined NBC affiliate KOA-TV. Here he made the contacts that eventually brought him to Chicago and his present job.

For newcomers coming into this overcrowded field, Neff has this advice:

"THOUGH I COULDN'T wait to get out, college is a good solid base from which to start. Get a good solid job in a small market, then try for a bigger one. Springfield, Peoria and Champaign are good places to start. And be willing to listen to older, more experienced people."

Chuck recognizes his own good fortune and is grateful. Though he works hard, he now has more time for friends, travel, sports (he plays golf and tennis) and church . . and especially his family.

"I like to go home! We have two super little kids!" he said, smiling that familiar TV, nonetheless genuine, smile.

Pros, cons of proposed food ad rules aired

by BARBARA LADD

If meat builds strong bodies and milk makes hardy bones, are both health foods? Or natural foods?

Neither or both, says the Federal Trade Commisssion (FTC), and consumers might be confused about what they are eating.

To remedy the confusion in semantics, the Commisssion has proposed a package of regulations at would wipe the phrases "natural," "organic" and "health" foods from the food advertising vocabulary. The proposals would also require printing or airing extensive nutritional information in all food advertisements — including those for ice and chewing gum. (Alcohol and infant formulas are excepted.)

HEARINGS OPENED Monday in Chicago on the proposed food advertising regulations and the FTC was met by a force of pro and con interests. The Grocer's Assn., the egg industry, advertising and "natural food" people, among others, were legally represented. Testimony ends today.

Speaking on behalf of consumers Tuesday, Sheila Sidles of the Iowa Consumers League advocated the need for regulations but felt some of the FTC recommendations were unnecessary.

"A great deal of regulations are costly and people get around them anyway," she said. "But with food we need some (regulations) to protect the consumer."

The reason, she said, is partly because the food industry now adds food-altering chemicals which increase shelf life, replace lost nutrients and make food "look nice" and taste good. Also, the number of products on the market has increased and with so much consumer confusion, many persons turn to other forms of food, including organic, health and natural foods.

BUT THE FTC regulations are just a "Band-Aid," she said. She also advocated "the moral responsibility of the food industry to educate the public on nutrition."

Mrs. Sidels continued, "There's a great misunderstanding now as to the meaning of the words 'natural' and 'organic' because they are used in so many different ways by people who put out those foods . . . But regardless of what the FTC says, those are words of our language, and we could look at Webster to determine what they mean instead of banning them."

However, another witness Tuesday, Jane Voichick, associate professor of nutritional sciences and Extension nutrition specialist at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, disagreed.

"It's my opinion that use of these words should be prohibited," Ms. Voichick said. There is no consensus to date among nutritionists as to the meaning of the words, she said.

Use of the term "health food" is also misleading, she pointed out.

"HEALTH IS A condition of a person and the term might make consumers think a certain food will give them health. But any specific food is not alone in providing health."

The food industry should be bound by some regulations on its advertising of these and other products so consumers will be provided with "factual" information, said Ms. Voichick, noting that "advertising has a significant effect on the buying and eating habits of Americans."

Although many legal counsels agreed that advertisers should be made to tow the mark on facts, they expressed dismay at the FTC's proposed regulations and said industry could control its abuses. Possible advertising deceptions should be met on a case by case basis, they maintained.

The regulations, among other things, include these other controversial points:

- Specific typed size of nutritional information in printed advertisements and full disclosure in all aired segments — including 15 second spots.
- Elimination of the words "energy" or "food energy," which actually mean "calories," unless full caloric disclosure immediately follows the claim.
- Exclusion of advertisements which claim prevention or cure of heart disease.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Column enlightened her on osteoporosis

I was enlightened by your column on "Porous bones in women." I suffer from osteoporosis of the spine and am interested in learning what proportions of sodium fluoride, calcium and vitamin D I should take daily. Would it be possible for you to inform me what you consider a reasonable dosage? I am 61 years old and am recuperating from a bad attack of sciatica.

I have never taken calcium and do not enjoy milk. I plan to start taking calcium tablets immediately. Lately I have been reading articles on nutrition and realize as a nation we do not pay enough attention to our diets.

You should see your doctor about what you should take for your own individual case. There is a lot to the proper management of a person with dissolving bones (osteoporosis).

The Mayo Clinic reported good success using daily a combination of 50 milligrams of sodium fluoride and 600 to 1000 milligrams of calcium carbonate or gluconate supplement plus 50,000 units of vitamin D twice a week. This was reported in Postgraduate Medicine, October 1973 and Modern Medicine, March 5, 1973, in case your doctor is interested in my source for a reference.

And I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis, to give you more information on this common problem. Others who want this issue can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Just what is a varicose vein and is it true that jogging causes this?

Sorry, you are getting the benefits of an article from Playboy magazine that I disagree with entirely.

Varicose veins are dilated veins, usually of the legs commonly seen in women after pregnancy. Normally there are small valves inside the leg veins to make the venous blood all flow one way, up toward the heart. When the veins dilate and overstretch, the valves don't work. The veins become nonfunctioning sacks, like overstretched balloons, and when a person is on his feet they are full of stagnant blood.

The veins in the outside of the leg normally drain directly into the deep veins of the leg. When one stands still, there is a lot of pressure from the upright column of blood in the legs. The pressure can increase the swelling of the leg veins. But as soon as you take one step, the contracting muscles in the legs squeeze down on the deep veins and milk the blood toward the heart. The net result is that the pressure inside the veins falls dramatically with walking and hence with jogging.

Walking and jogging then, as opposed to standing still, decreases the pressure inside the veins of the legs and helps to protect against varicose veins rather than causing them. The writer of the Playboy article apparently did not consider the important difference of muscular contraction with jogging as opposed to standing still. So you and many others have been needlessly alarmed.

Practiced seamstress shares sewing hints

Dear Dorothy: I sew a lot and have a couple of handy hints for dressmakers. (1) Fold your patterns inside the direction sheet when returning to the envelope. It protects the pattern, keeps the parts you've used separated and is much easier to get in and out of the envelope. (2) I use a large-headed, long-shanked corsage pin to feed material under the presser foot on my machine when my fingers won't fit. This is especially good for gathered edges of any kind and any situation where fabric "creeps." — Mrs. Virginia Murphy

Dear Dorothy: My brother, home after being stationed in Japan, produced a recipe for fried chicken and cashew nuts. He says the dish is delicious. It calls for one teaspoon of ginger juice. Where would one find this? — Mrs. H. E. Ausmus

Get a medium-sized fresh ginger root, take off the skin, then grate with a very fine grater into a piece of cheesecloth. Squeeze the grated ginger to get out the juice. Sayoko Tomizawa says that when she lived in Japan they got the juice out this way, but she thinks the dish would taste just as good if fresh grated ginger is used.

Dear Dorothy: Had my nylon carpeting steam-shampooed. Pieces of aluminum foil were put under the feet of furniture with metal claw feet. However, the pieces weren't large enough and rust stains are evident. How can I remove these stains? — Eleanor Moller

They ought to come off by rubbing with rust soap; then sponge off with a damp cloth, rinse and dry the area. It's worked for me.

That's some big pumpkin

by Mary B. Good

"Don't nag me now," I told my dog. "I'm performing surgery on my pumpkin." I was trying to grow a 200-pound pumpkin.

I say "was" because I am losing hope that my Big Max will ever get any bigger than the dog. I was shooting for the size of Bigfoot. But then we scientists always seem to have our downers.

My plan was this: use a variety known to produce big pumpkins, disbud each vine to a single pumpkin so all the strength is concentrated and attach a hypodermic needle—I.V. set-up to the subject. There's the wrinkle—fibers within the stem keep clogging up the I.V. Or, perhaps the pumpkin is resisting his organic diet of fish emulsion, liquid seaweed, milk and beer, although I've never heard any compaints. I chose the I.V. method over simply slitting the stem and inserting a tube because of the fear of rot.

THE BIG BLOW to my morale came when a friend called up to ask whether it was necessary to cover her pumpkins against impending frost.

I was just about to tell her about how I was trying to grow a 200-pound pumpkin, when I realized her gem was about 20 pounds bigger than mine already, and she's been too busy to even water it all summer!

So if any reader has tried force feeding pumpkins successfully and has a suggestion for preventing "fertilizer clots," write me before the snow flies.

FOR ALL THOSE readers who are crushed because I didn't run the "Biggest Tomato Contest" this year, take heart. You can enter the contest sponsored by Family Food Garden publications. You have to send them a letter describing your tomato, its weight and include a snapshot. Have the manager or owner of a nearby nursery or garden store write a brief note verifying the weight, and maybe you'll be in line for a $25 first prize, $15 second prize or $10 third. Family Food Garden's address is P. O. Box 1014, Grass Valley, Calif. 95945.

FFG is one of the most helpful publications for vegetable gardeners on the market. It is a magazine, printed tabloid on newsprint. Editorial offices and display gardens are located at 500 Hyacinth Pl., in Highland Park, Ill. Always full of new ideas, they are on top of all that is new and different in growing vegetables. (That's where I got my latest recipe — for making fruit leather.)

IF YOU'RE GOING to preserve garden goodies, try to pick up a copy of "Putting Food By" by Ruth Hertzberg. She emphasizes a commonsense practicality and how-to-do it tips. Root cellaring, freezing, canning, curing, smoking, drying and maverick methods are explained. Incidentally, have you tried the new "Magic Button" Mason jars? They eliminate those "will-we-get-botulism" doubts. And Burpee Seed Catalog offers paraffin in boilable pouches, eliminating messy wax, and tabs to let you take off the wax without losing some of the jelly in the jars. It's called "Wax 'n Tabs," a good idea for making a dirty job less messy.

WEATHER PREDICTION: We're in for a snowy winter, at least up north here. The acrons are falling like hail. I nearly broke my foot walking barefoot across the lawn. While everyone else is getting ready to rake leaves, I'm raking acorns. Does anyone know what to do with acorns besides using one of Euell Gibbons' recipes?

Recycling preferred

Recycled paperboard production for the first quarter this year is expected to be 40 per cent greater than in the same period last year.

A spokesman for the American Paper Institute says a recent national survey indicates consumers prefer recycled packaging for most grocery products. They also indicated recycled packaging would enhance their feelings about brands. (UPI)

Happenings

Come for cards

The annual card and bunco party sponsored by Our Lady of Hope Altar and Rosary Society, Rosemont, will be held Friday, Sept. 24, in the school hall, 9700 W. Devon. Refreshments and prizes will be included in the $2 tickets which may be purchased at the door. Men, too, are invited.

Dominick Days this month

Three area women's groups will be holding benefit days through Dominick Food Stores this month.

St. Emily's Women's Club, Mount Prospect, and the Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Itzchok, Wheeling, will sponsor benefits next Wednesday; First Congregational Churchwomen, Des Plaines, have planned a benefit day for Wednesday, Sept. 29.

To participate shoppers may obtain ID slips from sponsoring organizations or from the store which will then donate five per cent of the purchase to the women's groups.

Weddings

Debra May - Ronald Noble

Long Grove United Church of Christ was the setting Aug. 14 for the candlelight wedding of Debra S. May, daughter of the Kenneth Mays of Buffalo Grove, and Ronald A. Nobles, son of the Maynard Nobles of Northridge, Calif.

The bride, a graduate of Stevenson High School, works for C. F. Industries in Long Grove. Her husband also attended Stevenson High and now works for the Marriott Lincolnshire while studying at Columbia College, Chicago.

THEIR 1 P.M. double ring ceremony was followed by a reception at the Millionaires Club in Niles. Later the couple left for a two-week honeymoon in California and are now back in Buffalo Grove to live.

Vickie Dudek, Wheeling, was Debra's maid of honor and Jenni Cundiff, Buffalo Grove, her bridesmaid. Ron's attendants, all from Buffalo Grove, were Ken Paris as best man, Todd Schuck as groomsman and the bride's brother, David, as usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald A. Noble

Laurel Draper – Richard A. Rollins

The Rev. Martin Schirber of St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., who married the bride's parents 33 years ago, officiated at the wedding Aug. 14 of Laurel Alexis Draper and Richard Alan Rollins. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Draper, Arlington Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arthur Rollins, Mundelein.

The noon, double ring service was held in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, and was followed by a reception for 125 at the Atrium, Rolling Meadows.

An off-white gown trimmed with French lace was Laurel's choice in wedding gown. A coronet held her triple veil, and she carried a nosegay of apricot and white roses with stephanotis.

LAUREL'S SISTER, Mrs. N. V. Costrine, St. Louis, Mo., was matron of honor, and Maureen Farmer, Springfield, Ill., and Roberta Liebovitz, Skokie, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were in pale apricot crepe, and they carried baskets of apricot roses, daisy poms and baby's breath. In an ivory gown with apricot flower trim was the 4-year-old flower girl, Angela Costrine, the bride's niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Rollins

Michael Scheckel, Mundelein, was best man, and the groom's brother, James, Lt. (J.G.(Edward Weston, San Diego, and the bride's brother, Richard, were ushers.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Door County and are making their home in Rockford where Laurel is employed at Rockford Memorial Hospital as a speech pathologist and where her bridegroom is an account executive with WYFU Radio. Until last month he was a teaching assistant at the University of Illinois where he and Laurel, a research fellow, earned both bachelor and masters degrees.

Renee Fuller – Gary Harvel

The Aug. 14 wedding of Renee Fuller, daughter of the Arthur Fullers of Mount Prospect, and Gary Harvel, son of the Eugene Harvels of Wheeling, was a family affair. All the bride and groom's sisters and brothers were in the wedding party.

The Harvels were married in St. Emily's Church, Mount Prospect, and spent a week in Los Angeles before returning to Arlington Heights. The bride, a graduate of Hersey High, is employed at Sears in Northbrook. Her husband graduated from Wheeling High and works as a mechanic at Venture in Mount Prospect. The reception was held at House of Flame in Schiller Park.

THE BRIDE chose a batiste gown trimmed in lace and daisies with a chapel-length veil and carried stephanotis, baby's breath and green ivy leaves. Her sister and maid of honor, Laura, wore a beige and coral gown and carried coral roses, ivy leaves and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Donna and Karen Harvel, sisters of the groom, and the bride's sister, Lisa. All wore yellow dotted swiss gowns and carried yellow roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Best man was Steve Dolan, Mount Prospect, a mutual friend of the couple, and ushers were Larry, Dan, and Jeffry Harvel, all brothers of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Harvel

Cupid's Deadlines:

Engagements due at least six weeks before wedding date.

Marriages due three weeks after wedding for complete story; five weeks after wedding for brief story.

Further information, call 394-2300 ext. 262 or 251.

Cynthia Marie Mayer–Michael Gary Sweda

Ravenswood Presbyterian Church in Chicago was the setting Aug. 7 for the wedding of Cynthia Marie Mayer and Michael Gary Sweda. Married in a 5 p.m. double ring, candlelight service, Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Mayer, Elk Grove Village, and Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sweda, Franklin Park.

Cynthia chose Sue Frantz, Elk Grove Village, as her maid of honor, and Gail Gorecki and her sister, Patty Mayer, Elk Grove, and Caroline Sweda, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was her sister, Judy Mayer, and flower girl was Tanya Foertsch, Rosemont. Tommy Young, a cousin from Chicago, was ring bearer.

SERVING AS best man was Scott Forester, Franklin Park, and groomsmen were the couple's brothers, Richard Mayer and Ron Sweda, along with Rick Frantz, Elk Grove. Ushers were Tom Bono, Franklin Park, and Tom Franch, St. Charles.

A reception for 175 guests was held in the Elk Grove VFW Hall, after which the newlyweds left for a two-week honeymoon in New Orleans. They are now residing in Des Plaines.

Cynthia graduated from Elk Grove High in '73, studied at Harper College and Eastern Illinois University and is now with Dealer Tire, Addison. Michael also studied at Eastern and is now with A. F. Tool and Manufacturing, Rosemont.

Joann Toljanic–James Tackes

An Arlington Heights couple, Joann C. Toljanic and James L. Tackes, were married at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 7 in St. James Catholic Church, then greeted 175 guests at a reception at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

They are currently attending Northern Illinois University, Joann as a junior and her husband a senior. He also works for A. O. Smith in DeKalb.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Petramale, chose her sister, Mary Toljanic, as maid of honor and another sister, Lynn Toljanic, and Laurie Curley, DeKalb, as bridesmaids. Heather Simoni, 6, of Wonder Lake was flower girl; John Toljanic, 8, the bride's brother, ring bearer.

THE BRIDEGROOM, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Tackes, had Robert Curley, DeKalb, as his best man. Groomsmen were Charles Tackes, his brother, and Ken Krewer, Chicago.

The newlyweds are living in a mobile home in DeKalb while going to NIU. Their honeymoon was spent in Ohio and New Jersey.

Both are graduates of area high schools, the bride from Prospect High and the groom from St. Viator.

Dinner fetes anniversary pair

A dinner party for 100 guests at the Maitre D' Restaurant in Elk Grove Village marked the golden wedding anniversary of William and Evelyne Franke, residents at 120 S. Pine in Arlington Heights since 1932.

William, a native Chicagoan, and Evelyne, who was born in Toronto, Ont., were married in Chicago Aug. 21, 1926, and celebrated their anniversary this past Aug. 20. They reared two daughters: Marilyn Gustafson, who with her husband, Vance, lives in San Diego, Calif., and Sana Eakins, who with her husband, John, lives in Minneapolis, Minn. The anniversary pair also has five grandchildren.

A FORMER TRUSTEE of the village of Arlington Heights, William is employed in sales with American Mexican Petroleum Corp., Park Ridge. Evelyne, active in PTA when the children were younger, has been a member of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club for more than 30 years. She is also a past president of her PEO chapter.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Franke

E. Ninnemanns mark 55 years of marriage

A three-day celebration marked the 55th wedding anniversary of Ernest and Birdie Ninnemann who have lived in Arlington Heights all their married life.

Ernest has actually lived in the same town most all his life, moving from Palatine to Arlington when he was a year old. The former Birdie Lynk grew up in Lake Zurich.

Their anniversary Sept. 3 started off the weekend festivities. The next day, Saturday, the Ninnemanns' three sons, William, Roger and Marvin, hosted a family dinner for them at the Arlington Park Hilton.

Then on Sept. 5 the couple held open house at 732 N. Kennicott, their home for the past 17 years. One hundred guests attended, ranging in ages from 8 to 92.

THE NINNEMANNS' only daughter, Jeanette Grupe, and her husband, Eugene, of Sarasota, Fla., could not be present but, by advance arrangements, a toast was raised at exactly 4 p.m. in Arlington Heights and Sarasota to join the famly in spirit if not in person.

Ernest and Birdie were married in Chicago but their reception followed in the Arlington Heights home where they began married life. It was located next to the present Arlington Theatre.

Their son William and wife Lorraine live in Arlington Heights as does son Marvin. The other son, Roger, and his wife Darlene are nearby in Wood Dale. The Ninnemanns have 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Ask Andy

Praying mantis wears out 9 skins

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Beverly Sisseck, 13, of Marcola, Ore., for her question:

HOW OFTEN DO PRAYING MANTISES SHED THEIR SKINS?

The praying mantis is one of the most fascinating insects to watch. His large size allows us to see his intricate movements, from his famous prayingpose to his lightning-fast conquest of insect prey. Should you happen to have one in your classroom or in a cage at home, you know all about the canny way he silently creeps up on a live insect and devours it in seconds.

The praying mantis begins life as a tiny egg among hundreds of others which the female lays in the autumn. Enclosed in a snug egg case attached to a twig or weed stem, the little mantids are protected throughout the winter. One day the following spring, the band down the front of the egg case fills with shiny dark specks. These are the eyes of the babies having their first look at the big world. Within seconds the insects slide out, and soon as many as 50 may swing from threads as their soft, damp bodies seek a firm footing.

A baby praying mantis looks just like his parents except he is tan, not green. He can walk about freely and catch the juicy insects that make up his daily diet. Among these morsels are bees, flies, grasshoppers, ants and even other mantises. A superb hunter even at a tender age, he does not charge his prey with wild gusts of energy. Instead, he silently and cautiously almost glides over to where the unsuspecting victim rests.

His next movements are so fast we really can't see them. His front legs seize the prey in a vise-like hold. His strong mouth parts easily handle the rest of the operation as they can puncture even the toughest insect skeleton. Always hungry, the praying mantis repeats this process as many times as possible throughout the day. In fact, this species takes the prize as the biggest glutton in the insect world.

The adult mantis usually measures from 3 to 6 inches long. On the road to maturity the spurts of growth are followed by molting. He may shed his old skin six to nine times, and each time his coloring changes slightly, too. The grown-up color is green to blend in with surrounding plants, making him hard to find.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Darlene Carr, 14, of Wichita, Kan., for her question:

WHERE DID EGGPLANT ORIGINATE?

Many experts who have studied the evolution of plants feel that the first crop of eggplant grew in northern India. From there it spread to China, Europe and South America. Today the delicious vegetable grows in many tropical islands and as far north as New York. The bush stands from two to six feet tall, and the egg-shaped fruit hangs among grayish-green hairy leaves. The shiny purple variety, which occasionally grows as large as a football, takes from 115 to 120 days to ripen.

Eggplant is a versatile vegetable that can be prepared in may ways — baked, fried, sauteed or broiled. You can bake it stuffed with various tempting items, serve it with any number of sauces or combine it with other vegetables for a zesty casserole. Although eggplant has relatively few vitamins and minerals, its flavor and delightful texture make it an extremely popular dish. What's more, it is low in calories.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

by United Press International

Today is Thursday, Sept. 16, the 260th day of 1976 with 106 to follow.

The moon is at its last quarter.

The morning stars are Saturn and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American historian Francis Parkman was born on Sept. 16, 1823. This is actress Lauren Bacall's 52nd birthday.

On this day in history:

• In 1630, the Massachusetts village of Shawmut changed its name to Boston.

• In 1893, more than 100,000 persons rushed to the Cherokee Strip in Oklahoma as the area was opened to homesteading.

• In 1963, the Asian nation of Malaysia was created, occupying the southern portion of the Malay Peninsula and the northern part of Borneo. The country is the world's largest producer of rubber.

• In 1974, President Ford offered conditional amnesty to Vietnam draft dodgers and evaders. He said they could come home if they performed up to two years of public service.

West misreads signal

If you want to use suit-preference signals, do not let them interfere with your regular signals to show count or desire to have your partner continue the suit he has just led.

North and South reach four hearts, after North responded with a Stayman two-club bid to his partner's notrump. It would have been better for North to forget Stayman and go right to the notrump game, but he did bid two clubs and get in the 4-4 heart fit.

West opened the king of diamonds and East dropped the queen. This is a well-known signal designed to show the queen and jack and give partner a chance to underlead his ace at trick two if he wishes.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

West, one of those suit-preference addicts, took the play as a request to lead a spade. He did just that and declarer had no trouble making five odd.

Actually, the hand should have been beaten. West would continue with the ace and another diamond. East would overtake with the jack. If he led a fourth diamond West would be able to ruff with the 10 of hearts to establish his partner's jack as a sure trump trick.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Crowding around the turkey

Cooking for a crowd whether at home or at a church or a club may often be a challenge for those accustomed to feeding a family of two, four or six.

Roast turkey is a natural for serving a crowd as it is a favorite with most people. Served with stuffing, giblet gravy and all the traditional trimmings roast turkey is one impressive way to satisfy a group. Two 20 to 25 pound turkeys will serve 50 guests generously. Or, to make the turkey go further Turkey A La Queen, Hot Turkey Salad or the Special Hot Turkey Sandwiches are other suggestions. Turkey Quiche makes a perfect appetizer for an open house or reception. These special recipes along with many more for main dishes, salads, sandwiches, desserts and appetizers appear in a new publication.

What to serve a crowd, how much to buy and how to prepare it are all included in a new boklet, "Cooking For A Crowd." The recipes are varied and all are keyed to home-style equipment. The number of servings in some recipes are for as many as 50 while others are just for 12. For your copy of "Cooking For A Crowd," write Martha Logan, Swift & Company, 1919 Swift Drive, Oak Brook, Illinois 60521.

HOT TURKEY SALAD

- 3½ quarts turkey, roasted, cut into cubes*
- 3 quarts celery, chopped
- 3 cups almonds, blanched and chopped
- 2½ cups green pepper, chopped
- ¾ cup pimiento, chopped
- ¾ cup onion, chopped fine
- 2 tablespoons salt
- ¾ cup lemon juice
- 3 cups mayonnaise
- 24 ounces Swiss cheese, sliced
- 3 sticks (¾ pound) butter, melted
- 1½ quarts cracker crumbs

*Yield from about a 12 pound ready-to-cook turkey, or two 4-pound boneless Swift's Premium Turkey Roasts, tied and netted.

Combine in a large bowl the turkey, celery, almonds, green pepper, pimiento, onion, salt, lemon juice and mayonnaise. Spoon into three 13 by 9½ by 2 inch pans rubbed with butter. Top with slices of cheese. Combine butter and cracker crumbs and sprinkle a third of the mixture on each of the three pans. Bake in 350 degree oven about 45 minutes. Makes 48 servings.

TURKEY A LA QUEEN

- 5 pounds (1 gallon) turkey, cooked and cubed*
- 1¼ gallons medium white sauce, hot
- 3 pounds (7 cups) pineapple tidbits, drained
- 3 pounds (6¼ quarts) chow mein noodles
- ½ pound (2 cups) salted almonds, slivered

*Yield from 12½-pound ready-to-cook turkey.

Add cooked turkey cut into ¾ inch cubes to medium white sauce. Stir and heat. Keep hot over hot water to prevent burning. Allow 1 hour to heat and blend. Do not hold over 2 hours. Just before serving, stir in the pineapple. Serve on chow mein noodles. Top with salted almonds. May be heated and served from slow electric cookers. Makes 50 servings.

MEDIUM WHITE SAUCE

- 1¾ cups butter or margarine
- 1¾ cups flour
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 quarts cream, hot
- 2 quarts turkey broth, hot
- 4 egg yolks, beaten

Melt butter. Stir in flour until hot and bubbly. Slowly stir in the salt, cream and broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Cook 5 minutes. Pour about 1 cup over the egg yolks. Stir well. Stir this into the sauce. Cook 10 minutes, stirring constantly to avoid scorching. Makes 1¼ gallons, approximately.

Note: Broth may be made by simmering turkey bones, 1 chopped onion and 1 tablespoon salt in 1 gallon water for 2 hours.

TURKEY OVEN SANDWICHES

- 5 pounds turkey, cooked, sliced*
- 1½ pounds butter or margarine
- 2½ pounds (50 slices) sandwich bread
- 2 sticks (½ pound) butter or margarine
- 2¼ pounds (1½ quarts) mushroom pieces, canned, drained
- 3 quarts special sauce
- 1 pound Cheddar cheese, sharp, shredded

Whip 1½ pounds of butter and spread one side of bread. Butter generously 4 jelly roll pans, 15½ by 10½ by 1 inches. Place bread, butter side up in pans, at least 12 slices per pan. Toast top side in broiler until golden brown. Place slices of turkey on bread (1¼ pounds of meat per pan). Brush with melted butter. Top with mushrooms. Pour sauce over each sandwich, using about 3 cups of sauce for every pan. Sprinkle cheese over all. Bake in 350 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 50 sandwiches.

*Yield from 16 pound ready-to-cook turkey.

SPECIAL SAUCE

- ⅔ cup chopped onion
- ⅓ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 sticks (½ pound) butter or margarine
- ⅔ cup flour
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon garlic salt
- ⅓ cup chopped pimiento
- 2½ quarts milk, hot
- 5 eggs, beaten

Panfry onion and green pepper in butter. Add flour. Stir and cook until bubbly. Add seasonings, pimiento and hot milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Cook 5 minutes. Add a little of the hot sauce to the beaten eggs. Add egg mixture to sauce gradually. Stir. Cook 10 minutes. The sauce should be fluffy. Makes 3 quarts.

QUICHE LORRAINE

Pastry:

- ⅔ cups shortening
- 2 cups flour, sifted
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Filling:

- ½ cup cooked, crumbled bacon
- 1½ cups turkey, roasted and chopped
- 2 cups Swiss cheese, shredded
- 2 tablespoons onion, finely chopped
- 8 eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups whipping cream

To make pastry, sift flour with salt. Cut shortening into flour to size of small peas. Add water, mixing with a fork. Pour onto wax paper and form into a ball. Let stand 15 minutes before rolling. Roll to a 14 by 18 inch rectangle and place in a lightly greased jelly roll pan, pressing onto the sides, being careful not to stretch the pastry. Trim pastry even with the edges of the pan. Prick with a fork. To keep the bottom from puffing, place a buttered piece of aluminum foil over the pastry, pressing lightly into the sides. Bake in 400 degree oven for 10 minutes. Remove the foil and bake 3 minutes longer. Cool.

To fill, sprinkle bacon over crust, then turkey, Swiss cheese and onion. Beat eggs at high speed until frothy. Add salt and cream. Pour over mixture in pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 25 minutes or until table knife inserted halfway to the center comes out clean. Let stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Makes 126 appetizer squares.

Savory Squash and Apple Pie

Apples are one of nature's incomparable delights eaten out of hand or savored in delicious hot specialties, and versatile apples combine well with many vegetables in side dishes — as well as desserts — that have autumn appeal. Try teaming them with Butternut squash, parsnips or white turnips — perfect partners guaranteed to perk up almost any menu.

Savory Squash and Apple Pie is a delectable blend of taste and texture. It uses Butternut, a "winter" squash. But don't let that term fool you. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association points out that Butternut squash, although it does peak in fall, is available most of the year.

THIS SQUASH SHOULD have a thin, hard skin and a buff to light tan color. Butternut squash is rich in vitamin A, and low in sodium and calories — which makes it invaluable for special diets.

Pep-up family dinners with parsnips. For an old-fashioned treat try Candied Parsnips and Apples, a dish that's sweet, nutritious and easy to make — and impressive enough to serve last minute guests.

Parsnips are also delicious by themselves; simply scrub them, steam in the skin and serve with butter. They have a nutty, taste and tender, smooth texture. This root vegetable is usually packaged in cellophane bags, like carrots and should be ivory to buff in color and small to medium in size. You'll be glad to know, parsnips are a good source of vitamin A, phosphorous, calcium and other nutrients.

If you're looking for a fresh casserole idea, try Apple and Turnip au Gratin — a marvelous mixture of good taste and good nutrition. Turnips are a fine source of vitamin C, and their greens are especially rich in vitamin A.

The recipe calls for white turnips, and like parsnips, they should be firm and smooth. If you buy them with their tops on, make sure the leaves are fresh, green and crisp.

SAVORY SQUASH AND APPLE PIE

1 large butternut squash
½ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
3 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh onion
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 cup diced pared, cored, Red or Golden Delicious apple
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Cut butternut squash in half lengthwise remove seeds and place cut side down in baking pan. Add enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 40 minutes, or until squash is tender. Remove from oven and cool. Scoop out pulp from squash to yield 2 cups. In large mixing bowl cream butter and sugars. Beat in egg yolks, onion, lemon juice, flour, salt, thyme and squash pulp. In small mixing bowl beat egg whites until stiff peaks form; fold into squash mixture along with diced apples. Turn into pastry shell. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour, or until knife inserted in center of pie comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting to serve. Makes 8 servings.

CANDIED PARSNIPS AND APPLES

2 pounds parsnips, pared and diagonally sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 Red Delicious apples, cored and diced (do not pare)
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup honey
1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon ginger

Place pared parsnips in 1 inch boiling salted water in saucepan, cover and simmer 20 minutes or until tender. Drain. In large skillet melt butter, add parsnips and apples, and stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over low heat 10 to 15 minutes or until apples are tender. Makes 4 servings.

APPLE AND TURNIP AU GRATIN

1 pound small white turnips, pared and cubed
¼ pound bacon
¼ cup chopped fresh onion
2 Red or Golden Delicious apples, cored and thinly sliced
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/8 teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Place turnips in 1 inch boiling water in saucepan, cover and simmer 20 minutes, or until turnips are tender. Drain. In large skillet cook bacon until lightly browned, remove, drain and crumble. Pour off all but 1 tablespoon bacon fat. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender. Add turnips, apple, lemon juice, salt, sugar, pepper, thyme and crumbled bacon; mix well. Turn into 1-½-quart baking dish; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 375 degree oven 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

For the first time, MONACEP will offer a tempting selection of culinary classes at The Complete Cook, 222 Waukegan Road, Glenview.

Jewish cooking, taught by Cynthia Berland, is first on the list of courses to be held in the store's kitchen-classroom, beginning Monday afternoon, Sept. 27. The four-week series is devoted to preparing, serving and savoring such Jewish delights as kreplach, knishes, sweet and sour trout, gefilte fish, blintzes and kuguel.

Seafood cookery is next on the MONACEP schedule at The Complete Cook. Taught by Elaine Sherman, the two-session course on Tuesday afternoons, Sept. 28 and Oct. 5, and on Thursday evenings, Sept. 30 and Oct. 7, demonstrates how to poach, saute, bake and broil fish. Low calorie and low cholesterol dinner preparations as well as a clam bake and live lobster cooking will be included.

Ms. Sherman will also teach a twin series, Basic Gourmet Cooking, an eight-week course that presents the fundamentals of classic cuisine preparation. The afternoon course begins Tuesday, Oct. 12; the evening class, Thursday, Oct. 14.

Microwave cooking, taught by Karen Roth, is a three-evening demonstration program featuring a wide variety of foods for cooking and sampling. The class will be held Friday nights, starting Oct. 29.

Three single-session classes in bread making are also included on the fall schedule. Taught by breadbaking expert Bertie Selinger, the first demonstration is sweet and dinner rolls on Oct. 22, followed by English muffins and variety uses for fried bread dough, Nov. 26. Completing the list is holiday specials, including plum pudding and sweet bread for brunch and gift-giving. Each is an afternoon session.

Single classes are $8; the series range in cost from $15 to $40. Afternoon classes are 1 to 3; evening 7:30 to 9:30. For further information or to register readers should call MONACEP 967-5821.

Rich lemon bars easy to make when time is short

With a few extra minutes from caring for a new baby and two older children, Susan Foster, Prospect Heights, whips up rich, lemony bars to have on hand for desserts, parties, snacks and lunchboxes. All she needs are two packaged mixes and a couple of added ingredients.

Another of Susan's specialties, Swedish Meat Balls, takes a bit more time but is a treat for her husband, Rick. Dill weed predominately seasons the meat, while nutmeg, allspice, cardamom and onion blend into additional flavor.

To save time, Susan browns the meat balls in the oven, then bakes them in a gravy made with beef broth and cream, also seasoned with dill. Served with cooked noodles and a tossed salad, this is a savory dinner for both family and guests.

AS A CHANGE from an ordinary salad, Susan likes to make Artichokes a' la Grecque. She uses either canned or cooked frozen artichokes, and marinates them in a piquant sauce. Because the marinade is heated, it quickly permeates the artichokes, allowing a 10 minute serving time. However, Susan prefers chilling them for several hours, and serves the artichokes cold on lettuce leaves. It's an excellent accompaniment for a beef roast or steak.

Active in the PTA at Euclid School, Susan has as hobbies tennis and reading. She makes a concerted effort to try at least one new recipe each week, and particularly enjoys cooking for company.

EASY CHEESY LEMON BARS

Crust:

1 (18 ounce) package lemon cake mix
1 egg
¼ pound softened margarine

Mix ingredients together with electric beater and press into an ungreased 9 by 13-inch pan.

Filling and frosting:

1 large package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 eggs

Mix the frosting mix and cream cheese together with electric beater. Add the eggs and beat well. Set aside 3/4 cup of this mixture. Spread remainder over mixture in pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. When cool, frost with the 3/4 cup mixture that was set aside. Store in refrigerator. Cut in bars to serve.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

2 tablespoons margarine
½ cup dry bread crumbs
1 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 pound ground chuck
¼ pound ground pork
1-3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon dill weed
¼ teaspoon allspice
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon cardamom
3 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 can (10½ ounces) beef broth
½ cup half and half

In skillet, melt margarine and saute onions.

In a large bowl, combine eggs, milk and bread crumbs. Add sauteed onion, ground chuck and pork and mix well. Add 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon dill, allspice, nutmeg and cardamom and mix well. Refrigerate, covered, one hour.

Shape into balls about one-inch in diameter and place on cookie sheet. Brown at 375 degrees about 15 minutes. Place meat balls into a two-quart casserole.

Measure 2 tablespoons drippings and put in skillet with the flour, remaining ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper. Stir to blend. Add the broth slowly, stirring constantly. Add the cream and remaining ½ teaspoon dill. Pour over meat balls and bake, covered, at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve with cooked noodles. Serves 6.

ARTICHOKE HEARTS A LA GRECQUE

1 package (9 ounces) frozen artichoke hearts, or a large can, drained
1/3 cup olive oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 small bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon thyme
1/8 teaspoon powdered coriander
Dash of pepper

Place artichoke hearts in a bowl.

Mix remaining ingredients together in a saucepan and heat until hot. Pour over artichoke hearts. Marinate as little as 10 minutes or chill for several hours. Serve warm or cold. Drain and place on lettuce leaves, figuring about three per individual salad. Or add to a tossed salad.

A LEMON CAKE MIX, an egg and margarine make up the crust of Susan Foster's Easy Cheesy Lemon Bars. The filling consitst of a box of lemon frosting mix, cream cheese and eggs, and bakes into a pleasingly rich treat.

Macaroni, noodles stretch budget

Macaroni and egg noodles stretch any food budget and make tasty, pleasing dishes with little effort. Don't be afraid to add different ingredients to a chicken salad for a change. For example, toss in some raisins, curry powder and salted peanuts to make a hot macaroni chicken salad a new favorite on your block. Or add some sour cream and a dash of dry mustard and olives to a one-pot macaroni and meat creation. The egg noodles go into a buffet favorite — a quick beef Stroganoff.

ONE POT CREAMY MACARONI AND MEAT

½ cup chopped onion (about 1 medium onion)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
3½ cups water
2 cups uncooked elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
1/3 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat diced
1½ cups dairy sour cream
1 cup grated Swiss cheese (about 4 ounces

In 3-quart saucepan, saute onion in butter until golden. Add seasonings and water; bring to a boil. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cover and simmer for 12 to 15 minutes or until macaroni is tender; stir frequently. (Most of cooking liquid should be absorbed).

Stir in olives, luncheon meat and sour cream until combined. Cook, uncovered, over very low heat for about 5 minutes or just until mixture is heated through; stir occasionally. Stir in cheese until melted. Turn into warm serving dish. If desired, garnish with additional pimiento-stuffed olive slices. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

EGG NOODLES WITH QUICK BEEF STROGANOFF

3 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 cans (10½ ounces each) condensed cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1 can (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, undrained
1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ teaspoon celery salt
3 cups diced leftover beef
8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water

Saute onion in butter until crisp-tender. Blend in soup, undrained mushrooms, sour cream and celery salt. Add beef and heat to serving temperature.

Meanwhile, gradually add noodles and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve topped with beef mixture. Makes 4 servings.

HOT MACARONI CHICKEN SALAD

12 ounces elbow macaroni (about 3 cups)
1½ tablespoons salt
4 to 5 quarts boiling water
½ cup golden seedless raisins
½ cup chicken broth or bouillon
3 cups julienne cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped red onion
¾ teaspoon salt
½ to ¾ teaspoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon each: garlic salt, pepper
¾ cup mayonnaise
Salted peanuts, parsley

Gradually add macaroni and 1½ tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, combine raisins and broth in saucepan. Let stand 5 minutes. Add chicken and onion; heat to serving temperature. Mix hot chicken mixture with hot macaroni; stir in ¾ teaspoon salt, curry powder, garlic salt, pepper and mayonnaise. Serve sprinkled with peanuts and garnished with parsley. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Snack costs

Americans spent about $1 billion on potato chips in 1974, or as much as they spent on breakfast cereals during the same period, according to the Consumer Education program of New York State's Cooperative Extension service. During the same period, they spent almost $5 billion on other snack foods and almost $8 million on soft drinks. By comparison, they spent only $4.8 billion on fresh fruits, which are much more nutritious than the snacks and soda pop.

New to job soon learn efficiency

I once wrote a short story that began, "There were times when she felt like a pie that had been divided into four parts — one for each of her three children, one for her husband and none for her."

There are a lot of women who feel like that today. For some, it's time to seek a little economic independence and emotional support away from the family environment.

The rest of us who have already taken the plunge wish you luck. It won't be easy the first few weeks trying to cope with a new schedule.

You will be determined that everything around the house will get done exactly as if you weren't working. You will probably drive yourself to exhaustion by vacuuming floors at 6

The working woman cooks

by Joyce Zeller

a.m. before common sense prevails and you look for short cuts.

The easiest place to save time is in meal preparation. Planning two meals at a time can really work. And try to use leftover meat in ways that don't look like leftover meat. Egg rolls are a good example.

I'll give you my recipe for pork rolls, which uses 2 or more cups of leftover pork roast. Do the pork roast simply with just garlic powder, salt and pepper. Egg roll skins may be found in supermarket freezer sections.

PORK EGG ROLLS

- 2½ cups chopped cooked pork
- 4 ounces canned water chestnuts, chopped
- 1 package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- Oil for frying
- 1 package frozen egg roll skins
- 1 beaten egg
- Bottled sweet sour sauce
- Coleman's dry mustard

Mix first five ingredients. Thaw 12 of the egg roll skins and refreeze the rest. Place one generous tablespoon of the pork mixture in the center of a skin. Moisten all the edges with beaten egg. Fold the side nearest you to center, over filling. Fold two sides in about 1 inch. Fold back edge toward you overlaping all. Press all edges to seal. These rolls can be made the night before and will be ready for cooking after refrigeration.

To cook, fry in about 1 inch of oil until brown, turning once. Serve with sweet sauce and hot mustard sauce made by mixing dry mustard with a little water. Makes 12 rolls, enough for 4 to 6 persons.

Pick a pear for fall menu

No matter what the occasion is, fresh Western Bartlett pears are sure to find a place. This Sour Cream Pear Pie is a perfect example. The filling combines juicy chunks of fresh Bartlett pears and golden raisins in a rich sour cream custard. Served warm, it is creamy and sweet; served chilled it is smooth and refreshing.

There is no need to peel fresh Bartlett pears since the skins are delicately tender and add pleasant color as well as good flavor.

Mountain grown Bartlett pears come from the West where they receive the right combination of sunshine and rain to produce plump, flavorful pears. They are picked green and allowed to ripen off the tree. When the skin reaches a golden hue, it means the pears have reached their peak in quality and flavor.

SOUR CREAM PEAR PIE

- 5 fresh Western Bartlett pears
- ½ cup golden raisins
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 eggs
- ¾ cup light brown sugar
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- Unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- Melted butter

Reserve ½ pear to slice for garnish. Core and dice remaining pears, but do not peel. Combine diced pears and raisins. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Beat eggs. Blend in brown sugar and sour cream. Combine with fruits and turn into unbaked pastry shell. Garnish with reserved pear slices. Brush pear slices with melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees 1 hour or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Makes 1 pie.

Jewish food not always Kosher

by JEANNE LESEM

Americans who talk of "Jewish food" are apt to mention corned beef and pastrami sandwiches, bagels, blintzes, gefilte fish and chicken soup with matzo balls. Delicatessens even in small cities stock the meats, and supermarket food freezers and canned food shelves, the remainder.

All these foods are typically Jewish in contemporary America, but they're no more solely Jewish than apple pie is native American.

Apple pie is part of our English heritage. Jewish food is basically food from all the nations where Jews have lived since Biblical times, in Asia, Africa and Australia, as well as Europe and the Americas.

All of the aforementoned "Jewish foods" are adaptations of European dishes, largely Eastern European. Centuries ago, Europeans routinely salted and spiced most of their meat to preserve it. Corned beef is brined before cooking, pastrami is brined and heavily peppered.

BAGELS (PETRIFIED doughnuts was my childhood name for them) are heavy-textured bread dough rings that are boiled before baking. Blintzes are cheese or fruit-filled thin pancakes. Gefilte fish is fish dumplings that strongly resemble those of Scandinavia and Eastern Europe. Properly made matzo balls, another heritage from Eastern Europe, are featherlight dumplings of eggs and matzo meal, the unleavened cracker meal of Jewish origin. The matzos from which they are made commemorate the unleavened bread the Hebrews baked during their flight from Pharaoh's Egypt, when they had no time to wait for dough to rise.

With the exception of matzos and matzo products and afew sacramental and traditional foods linked to religious holidays, Jews for centuries have adapted the food of their native or adoptive nations to their religious dietary laws.

For example, Asian Jews cook Japanese sukiyaki, Latin American or Spanish Jews, arroz con pollo, and Middle Eastern Jews, shish kebab, substituting nondairy for dairy products in meat and poultry dishes as required by dietary law.

EVEN SOME sacramental foods differ, depending on the background of the family observing a particular holiday. Ashkenazic Jews, whose heritage is largely eastern and western European, traditionally make and eat hamantaschen, or cookies with poppyseed filling, for the holiday of Purim; Sephardic Jews, who lived in Spain and Portugal before and during its occupation bh Moslems in the eighth century A.D., make huevos de haman instead: hard-boiled eggs in pastry baskets, and desserts such as baklava, a Middle Eastern pastry.

The sacramental foods of Passover, the Jews' great holiday of freedom from bondage in Egypt, also differ. For example, Sephardics use romaine lettuce instead of parsley for the bitter herb of Ashkenazic tradition, celery leaves or endive instead of horseradish and a glass of wine or vinegar instead of salt water for dipping the bitter herb.

Jewish food as we know it today isn't even necessarily kosher. That term refers to food prepared according to dietary law, to conform to strict rules of slaughter of meat and poultry, and strict standards of sanitation in preparation and packing. Kosher food also requires no mixing of meat or poultry and dairy products at any meal. If a meat recipe calls for butter, Jews who keep a kosher household substitute vegetable oil or margarine; they also use nondairy substitutes for milk and cream.

PORK AND SHELLFISH are forbidden altogether, and only the forequarters of cud-chewing quadrupeds such as cattle and sheep are allowed. Most domestic fowl such as chicken, turkey, ducks, geese, pigeon and squab are permitted, but not scavengers or birds of prey.

Orthodox and Conservative Jews follow the letter of dietary law, but growing numbers of Reform Jews who have assimilated into the American mainstream have adopted its eating habits as well. For instance, you will find cheesecake ending a meat meal, shrimp a popular appetizer or main dish ingredient and beef eaten rare although forbidden by dietary law.

Almost every Jewish-American cook today has her own special cheesecake recipe (another Eastern European heritage), and cookie recipes handed down from generation to generation.

Perhaps the one thing that distinguishes Jewish cookery from all the other cuisines America has taken for its own is individualism: there probably are as many different recipes for each family favorite as there are cooks to make them. Even a daughter preparing her mother's and grandparents' handed-down recipes is apt to add her own personal touch.

The Value Check

COPYRIGHT © 1976 By Eagle Stores. All Rights Reserved.

Total value means many things.

At Eagle, total value starts with storewide low prices...Lower Prices Overall for a lower tape total.

Then we add an extremely wide selection of quality food and meat. Fresh produce, too.

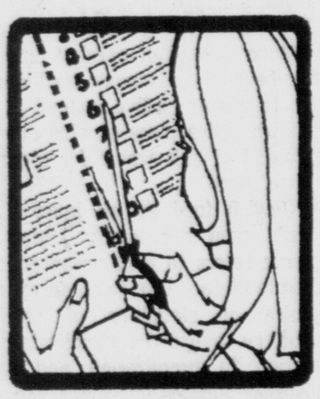
Total value also means convenience and service. So Eagle provides you with shopping conveniences like Single Item Pricing, No Limits and Open Dated dairy and bakery products. And services like Parcel Pick-up.

Total value is all those things. And more!

The Eagle Value Checklist is designed to help you know about the many things a supermarket should do to give you total value...and the many things we do at Eagle.

Use it to compare the Eagle Way. Make your own Value Check, and know your value!

Look over the Value Checklist. Check out all the things we do to give you total value.



Clip it out and keep it as a reminder of all the things you should look for in a supermarket.

Compare the Eagle Way to total value. You'll discover that we're everything a food store should be!

The Value Checklist

Everything A Food Store Should Do To Give You Total Value For Your Food Dollar!

- You get a lower tape total with Everyday Low Prices. No occasional "specials" or scattered "bargains."
- Single Item Pricing. No confusing multiple item pricing at Eagle. One item - one price... that's clear, simple and honest.
- No Limits. Eagle No Limits policy means you can stock-up on as many values as you want and save!
- Guaranteed Value Per Measure. The larger size package of a product will always be a better value than the smaller size, unless indicated otherwise.
- Prices on the shelves are the same as prices on the products. There's no guessing at Eagle.
- Our Price Protection Policy guarantees that you can purchase advertised merchandise at the advertised price for an entire week!
- Key Buys. These are extra savings made possible through manufacturers' promotional allowances or exceptional purchases.
- Open Dated dairy and bakery products assure freshness. There are no confusing codes.
- A wide variety of brand name products are available. You choose from brands you know and trust for quality.
- Lady Lee, our own exclusive line of products offers you brand name quality and selection. And Lady Lee sells for less.
- Bonded Meats, exclusively at Eagle, are chosen according to our own high standards; and they're completely guaranteed.
- Honest Meat Labeling lets you know exactly what you're buying. There's no confusing and costly guesswork.
- Our expert meat men Valu-Trim all fresh cuts of bonded Meat. That means less waste...and a lower cost per serving!
- Three grades of ground beef are available at Eagle: Regular, Lean and Extra Lean. You choose exactly what you need to fit your menu and budget.
- Expert meat men are available to special cut roasts, steaks, chops, whatever, to suit your specific needs...at no extra charge!
- Eagle sells only U.S.D.A. Grade A poultry... the government's highest standard for poultry.
- We do our own produce buying. This allows greater quality control and helps keep prices down by eliminating extra costs.
- We maintain a U.S.D.A. inspector on the produce docks at our distribution center to inspect the fresh fruits and vegetables we receive and sell.
- Much of our Farm Fresh Produce is sold by the pound, so you can choose the exact amount you need.
- Scales in the produce department allow you to weigh your purchases so you can buy exactly what you need.
- We stock our shelves at night so you don't have to shop around a maze of boxes and stock-boys.
- An Express Lane check-out stand is a real time saver when you are making a small purchase of 10 items or less.
- When you've finished shopping, your purchases will be cheerfully loaded into your car at our Parcel Pick-Up area.
- Service at Eagle means more than just bagging your groceries. You can always count on assistance from our friendly personnel.
- We provide you with a clean, uncluttered store in which to shop. We want your trips to Eagle to be very pleasant.

Rosh Hashanah

A time to feast and celebrate

The High Holy Days, opening with Rosh Hashanah, will begin this year on Sept. 25 and end 10 days later with Yom Kippur. During this 10-day period of profound religious observance families will be gathered for feasting and quiet celebration.

Serve a festive autumn menu on the eve of Rosh Hashanah this year. Orange Honey Chicken and Cauliflower Creme make a delicious holiday twosome.

The colorful chicken dish is made by brushing chicken pieces with a mixture of peanut oil, honey, orange peel, ginger and salt before roasting. Cauliflower Creme is an elegant dish that consists of a whole head of cooked cauliflower drizzled with a creamy sauce flavored with nutmeg and chicken broth.

Top off your festive autumn menu with Sweet Potato Cake. This moist, golden cake is laced with cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves and studded with chopped pecans. Peanut oil is used as the shortening.

ORANGE HONEY CHICKEN

¼ cup honey
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 teaspoons ground ginger
Dash salt
1 (3-½ pound) chicken, cut-up
Orange slices

Combine peanut oil, honey, orange peel, ginger and salt. Arrange chicken in baking dish and brush with honey mixture.

Roast at 350 degrees 1 to 1½ hours, or until done, basting occasionally with honey mixture. Garnish with orange slices. Serves 4.

CAULIFLOWER CREME

1 cup water
½ teaspoon salt
1 medium head cauliflower, washed, outer leaves and stalk removed
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Dash pepper
1 cup chicken broth
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

In a large saucepan bring water and salt to a boil. Add cauliflower; bring to a boil. Cover and cook over medium heat until tender, about 20 to 25 minutes. Remove from saucepan. Place on serving dish. Keep warm.

In a small heavy saucepan blend together peanut oil, flour, salt, nutmeg and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat and gradually stir in chicken broth. Return to heat and bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Pour some of hot mixture into egg yolk. Blend well. Pour yolk mixture back into broth mixture. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Stir in parsley. Pour over cauliflower. Serves 4 to 6.

SWEET POTATO CAKE

2¼ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cloves
4 eggs, separated
2 cups sugar
1 cup peanut oil
1½ cups shredded raw sweet potatoes
1 cup chopped pecans
1/3 cup hot water
Confectioner's sugar

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. Stir to blend well; set aside.

Beat egg whites in small mixer bowl until soft peaks form; set aside.

In large mixer bowl combine sugar and peanut oil. Beat until well blended. Add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix in sweet potatoes and pecans. Alternately blend in dry ingredients and hot water. Fold in egg whites. Turn batter into a greased and floured 12-cup Bundt pan.

Bake at 350 degrees about 55 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Turn out onto rack to finish cooling. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes one large Bundt cake.

Crepe cookers not new

by JEANNE LESEM

If you think a crepe maker is a fabrics manufacturer serving the funeral industry, you haven't been near a housewares department recently.

One of the hottest new home appliances, figuratively and literally, makes crepes, or French pancakes. They're almost thin enough to see through, and the best way in the world to pass off leftovers as a fancy European dish. Just wrap the leftovers in crepes and serve with a sauce or browned cheese topping.

OLD-FASHIONED CREPE pans have been around for decades in fancy housewares stores in the United States and even longer in Europe. To the uninitiated, they look like a small frying pan with straight instead of curved sides.

Most of the new electrics are designed tt be inverted, dipped in batter and cooked in that inverted position. Unfortunately, the ones we have tried require considerable practice to produce crepes without holes through which filling can escape. Because they are cooked on only one side, they tend to be rubbery, compared with crepes made traditionally.

Nobody really needs a special pan, electric or otherwise, to make crepes. Any to 7-inch skillet will do as well. Even better, said a UPI colleague of mine, who made a decorative wall-hanging of his wife's new upsidedown nonelectric crepe maker after she spent a whole evening trying unsuccessfully to use it as the manufacturer directed. She has returned to the frying pan method, but thousands of other Americans are snapping up the new electrics as they were, well, hotcakes.

MANUFACTURERS AND BUYERS at the 65th semiannual housewares show in Chicago had mixed reactions to the latest models of the appliance that is designed to fill a need most of us didn't know we had.

A buyer from a major Los Angeles store and another from a major Minneapolis store see big sales this fall, but one St. Louis buyer thinks the peak has passed already, and a spokesman for a nationwide discount chain thinks the market is very limited.

Introducing a multipurpose crepe maker in New York City recently, one manufacturer predicted that a dozen or more different brands would be in retail stores by the end of the year. His particular model is used bottom side up to make crepes on a specially-designed hot plate that can be used like a regular hotplate only for the crepe pan. Right side up, the pan becomes a hamburger or sandwich grill, or a bacon-and-eggs cooker.

,Industry sources said college and university students, singles and other small households are prominent in the market for hamburger cookers, slow cookers and other small kitchen appliances.

Times change but same recipes stay

Food preservation has a long tradition in America, and many homemakers this year are interested in reviving old recipes. Mary Lou Williamson, director of Ball Corporation's Consumer Service, has had numerous requests for information about traditional home canning recipes, and she first points out particular problems to home canners.

Old recipes may be difficult to follow because of vagueness in measuring directions. They also frequently call for open-kettle preparation, a method no longer recommended for home canning.

Mrs. Williamson also reminds homemakers that tastes have changed, and older recipes are often highly seasoned. However, four old-time recipes are still quite popular, very tasty and a lot of fun, she said. They can be recommended because they are nicely suited to today's canning methods. She feels homemakers everywhere will enjoy the simplicity of these recipes, and the tasty product that results.

GREEN GRAPE MARMALADE

1 lime, slivered
8 cups granulated sugar
2 cups water

Wash, stem and measure young grapes. (The seed should be formed, but not hardened.) Add lime, and water to grapes, cook until grapes are soft. Add the sugar and boil mixture until thick. Pour hot mixture into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch headspace. Adjust caps. Process in a water bath canner for 15 minutes. Makes about 4 half pints.

INDIA RELISH

12 cups tomatoes, peeled and chopped
3 cups celery, chopped
2 cups onions, chopped
¼ cup salt
2 pints vinegar
3 cups brown sugar
1/3 cup mustard seed
2 red peppers, chopped
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¾ teaspoon ground allspice
¾ teaspoon ground cloves

Allow the tomatoes, celery, onions and salt to stand for two hours. Add the rest of the ingredients and cook until the mixture is thickened. Fill hot jars leaving ¼ inch headspace. Adjust caps. Process in a water bath canner for 15 minutes. Makes about 10 pints.

SWEET PICKLED CARROTS

2 cups vinegar
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons mixed spices
2 packages carrots

Select young and even-sized carrots, boil until tender and pack into clean, hot jars. Fill the jars with hot pickling syrup made by boiling together for 5 minutes the vinegar, sugar and mixed spices. Arrange carrots in hot jars, leaving ¼ inch headspace. Adjust caps. Process in a water bath canner for 30 minutes. Yield about 4 half pints.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB JAM

4 cups rhubarb, chopped
7 cups granulated sugar
4 cups strawberries, hulled

Wash and cut about 2½ pounds unpeeled rhubarb into ½ inch pieces. Wash and hull one quart of berries. Measure four cups of each into large kettle.

Add sugar. Slowly bring to boil, stirring only occasionally. When sugar dissolves, start stirring frequently to prevent sticking. Cook rapidly until thick.

Remove from heat. Skim off any foam. Pour, boiling hot, into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch headspace. Adjust caps. Process in a water bath canner for 15 minutes. Yield about 10 half pints.

Food storage

Don't store fresh produce or canned goods beneath your kitchen sink, say Extension specialists from Cornell University. Leakage from water and drain pipes can damage the products. Cans and jar lids may rust and deteriorate, providing a feast for growing germs.

Food storage also should be away from a heat source such as oven or range. A cool, dry spot, preferably in an unheated area, is ideal.

Care urged after canning season

There has been advice galore this summer about how to can and preserve fruits and vegetables to make them safe as well as savory.

Now in the lull after the home-canning storm, families are being reminded that safety precautions should not have ended when the last jar lid popped the signal that a firm seal had been established on the succotash or piccalilli.

At least 8 million home gardens were tilled, planted and harvested in America this year, partly to counter inflation. The produce from many has gone into larders in jars and freezer bags, along with tons of fruits and vegetables bought at the height of the season.

THIS CANNING BOOM has prompted the Department of Safety and Research of the Combined Insurance Company of America to urge that as much care be taken in consumption as should have been taken in production.

Of particular importance is the deadly botulism toxin that can lurk in low acid vegetables such as beans, corn, zucchini, cabbage, carrots and peppers, particularly when they have not been cooked under pressure.

To help promote dinner table safety, Combined's experts recommended a few simple precautions.

• When someone gives you the home canned results of a backyard garden, do not hesitate to inquire if the jams, preserves or vegetables have been subjected to boiling water baths after being placed in jars. In the case of vegetables — even tomatoes, which are sometimes low in acid — they should have been cooked under pressure. If the answer is "no," thank the donor and throw out the gift later.

• If home canners follow the advice of Agriculture Department authorities, they will have used self-sealing caps with screw bands. The bands may be set aside for future use when the seal is set, but the lids should be discarded as soon as they have been removed.

• Examine each jar before opening. If there is a bulging lid, a break in the seal, any sign of mold or indications of fermentation bubbles, don't taste. Boil the contents for about 20 minutes and then if you have any doubts, throw the jar and contents into the garbage.

• Do not be concerned about a black deposit that may develop on the underside of the lid. Some foods contain elements that cause these stains even in a well-processed, thoroughly sealed jar.

• The odor of preserved food should be the same as it was before it was placed in the jar. If it does not smell just right, if it seems soggy, cloudy or spurts when you make a hole in the lid, throw it out — and in a place where no human or animal can touch it. Wash your hands thoroughly, as well as the utensil you used to open the jar. Scrub the surface on which you were working. Botulism may be present.

Storage of canned goods is important, too. Combined's safety experts recommended they should be kept in a dark, dry place at a temperature of 70 degrees or less. Refrigerated foods should be held at a maximum of 40 degrees, while frozen fruits and vegetables are best at zero Fahrenheit.

Vegetables receive awards

by Jarvis Rice

So you think that Hollywood stars are the only ones to receive Oscars? Well, guess again. Vegetables get them, too. We offer belated congratulations to the Aristocrat, a new hybrid zucchini, winner of the All-American Vegetable Award for 1973. Zucchini is a summer squash like the crook-neck, straight-neck and pattipan. Summer squash grow quickly and the fruits are young and tender, delicate to the taste. Winter squash, like butternut, acorn and Hubbard, taste richer because they grow slower. Anyone for squash tennis?

They sure don't make ice cream like they used to, do they? They don't serve it like they used to, either. A hundred years ago, ice cream was considered so special they served it in a very fancy manner. They put it in pewter molds — in shapes like hearts for Valentine's Day, the flag for July fourth, a lily for Easter and Santa Claus for Christmas. On ordinary days, they shaped the ice cream like famous people, soldiers, ships, fruits and flowers and other things. But one theing they don't hzve that we have is a Heinz variety of flavors — like peanut butter and jelly, cold duck, jamocha. So what flavor would you like to have? Now please don't answer me with that old cliche: I don't care what flavor it is so long as it's chocolate (or vanilla or strawberry or whatever). One thing sure: You scream, I scream, we all scream for ice cream.

If you believe that fingers were made before forks, then believe this. Peas were here before history began. Popular since the days of the caveman in the Stone and Bronze Ages, peas were found preserved in the mud where Swiss lake dwellers lived 5,000 years ago. Yet the Chinese claim they were the ones who originated peas in their land. Peas became famous in the time of Louis XIV, who considered them "a fashion and a madness." The ladies of the court ate peas for dinner, then ate them later as a bedtime snack. A young unmarried noblewoman would search for a pod with nine peas. When she found it she'd place it over the doorway to her bedroom and the first lad who passed under it would become her bridegroom. Catching a man in those days could be duck soup. I mean pea soup.
